The scheme had broken down because the United States declined to have anything to do with the League, and the Office International, to which the United States of America belongs, must, therefore, remain independent. The solution now put forward was that the League should constitute its organisation independently, and that the personnel of this organisation should, to a large extent, be drawn from the Office International. The proposal of the Council was that the Provisional Technical Committee should be composed of not more than 12 persons, invited to sit on the strength of their technical qualifications (and not of their nationality), together with a representative of the International Labour Office and one of the League of Red Cross Societies—in all 14 members, as against the original 12.

57. M. Rivas Vicuna (Chile), who was the rapporteur, put forward the following draft resolution:—

"The Health Organisation of the League shall provisionally include a Health Committee, the Secretariat of which, appointed by the Secretary-General of the League of Nations and responsible to him, shall be controlled by a Medical Director.

"The Epidemics Committee of the League shall form one section of the Health Committee."

The Portuguese delegate took exception to this, and Sir W. Meyer supported him, pointing out that the Council had materially altered the composition of the Committee as laid down by the Assembly last year. All mention of selections being made with reference, inter alia, to geographical considerations—a criterion which India strongly pressed last year and which the Assembly approved—had now disappeared from the Council's proposal for the constitution of the Technical Committee; and the latter now included 14 members, whereas the Assembly, in the interests of economy, had resolved to limit the Committee to 12.

Sir W. Meyer said that he did not consider the action of the Council to be in accord with the Assembly's policy, and that the Assembly ought not to submit to its being thus set aside. He recognised, in answer to representations made by the President of the Paris Office International (M. Velghe), who was present and was invited to address the Committee, and others, that the matter was urgent, having regard to the present position in respect of epidemic disease, but that did not justify the Committee in practically advising the Assembly to abrogate its functions. He suggested, therefore, the addition of a rider to the draft resolution to the effect that, in view of the urgency of the situation in respect of international health, the Assembly accepted the constitution of the Technical Committee proposed by the Council, but that it did so without prejudice to its full right of control over the constitution of Standing Committees. With some modification of wording this proposal was carried as also an amendment by Sir Rennell Rodd in respect of amplification of the original resolution.

The representative of Denmark (Mlle. Forchhammer) pleaded that an International Committee should include at least one woman member, and this, though opposed by the President, found favour with the Committee generally.

Finally, a Sub-Committee was appointed, consisting of M. Rivas Vicuna, Sir Rennell Rodd, M. La Fontaine and Sir W. Meyer, to come to a general agreement in regard to the precise drafting to be put before the Committee at its next meeting.

58. There was also some discussion as to the danger of overlapping as between the Paris International Body and the League's Committee, and Sir W. Meyer asked whether it might not be preferable to work through the former and to give them a subvention. The latter proposal did not, however, find favour, and as regards the former it was agreed that, in view of the urgency of the situation, matters had better stand as proposed till next year.

Action by the Assembly.

59. At the Assembly meeting on the 8th October M. Rivas Vicuna (Chile) submitted, with an explanatory report, the resolution as finally drafted by the Sub-Committee and approved by the full Committee. It was carried unanimously, with a reservation by the Portuguese Delegation, under instructions from its Government, as to the future settlement of difficulties which it considered might arise by reason of the separate functions of the International Health Office in Paris and the League Organisation. The resolution in the form adopted by the Assembly is printed in Appendix II. (Resolution No. 57.)

THE ORGANISATION OF INTERNATIONAL STATISTICS.

60. This item had been placed on the Agenda at the request of the Netherlands Government. M. Ferraris (Italy), as rapporteur, submitted a lengthy exposé, and the Committee voted a resolution, which had been tabled by the representatives of Great Britain, France, Italy and Switzerland. The principal recommendations contained in this resolution were those that commended to the Technical Organisations of the League the conclusions of the Economic and Financial Committee for the purpose of avoiding overlapping, and decided that statistics in the scientific sense will not be undertaken by the League so long as the question of the organisation of international statistics has not been decided, and that this question is entirely deferred until the next session.

Sir W. Meyer had previously been consulted about the resolution, and said that it would quite meet the objections of the Government of India, as set forth in Mr. Innes' letter of 4th August last to the Under Secretary of State, in which that Government took exception to the proposals suggested by both the majority and minority reports of the International Statistical Commission of 1920.

Action by the Assembly.

The resolution was adopted by the Assembly without discussion on the 27th September. (Appendix II, Resolution No. 12.)

Work of Committee No. III (Armaments, Economic Weapon).

ARMAMENTS.

61. The Committee first of all discussed matters arising out of the Report of the Temporary Mixed Commission (including Civilian representatives as well as Military, Naval and Air experts) on the Reduction of Armaments.

The report began with a short statement on the present political situation of the world, and the difficulties which had to be encountered. In the present position of the world, it would be idle to hope for simultaneous disarmament.

The report then alluded to the Washington Conference, and to the precarious financial condition of the world, a condition which necessitated a reduction of armaments.

The Commission had divided itself into three Sub-Committees; the first had considered the questions of private manufacture, and the arms traffic ; the second had examined the right of investigation and mutual control; the third had undertaken a statistical enquiry.

The report of the third Sub-Committee emphasised the necessity for a statistical enquiry to show the extent of military and naval expenditure in the various countries, and the diminution or increase of armaments. The Sub-Committee had been unable to put forward any definite scheme of statistics ; it had merely outlined the guiding principles of such an enquiry, and had prepared a draft of a questionnaire which was doubtless far from perfect, but calculated nevertheless to furnish very valuable information.

As regards the private manufacture of arms, the first Sub-Committee had not come to any definite conclusion, but it had nevertheless clearly shown the desirability of conducting an exhaustive enquiry, with a view to the preparation of a code of rules regulating private manufacture, which, when drawn up, could be submitted to the various Governments. This code should be adopted by all nations whether they belong to the League of Nations or not, for, supposing that any country—the United States, for instance—did not conform to it, any attempt at control would be useless.

The report then dealt with the arms traffic question in the light of the Convention of St. Germain, which was signed by the United States

62. In Committee III, M. Schanzer (Italy) moved a resolution approving the statistical enquiry into armaments. This was amended, and re-drafted by Lord Robert Cecil at the request of the Committee, which then proceeded to deal with the question of the private manufacture of arms. With reference to the proposal of the Temporary Mixed Commission that an International Conference should be held on this subject, Lord Robert Cecil, supported by the delegates of the Netherlands, Norway and Siam, suggested that the Conference should be held in June next. This was, however, rejected by 10 votes to 7, and the proposal of the Temporary Commission, amended by M Schanzer, was carried in the following form :—

" The Assembly requests the Council to invite all the Members of the League, and interested States which are not Members of the League, to take part in an International Conference on the private manufacture of arms and on the traffic in arms, which should meet as early as possible, at a date to be fixed under the responsibility of the Council. It is considered highly desirable that this date should be prior to the next session of the Assemby. The Temporary Mixed Commission should be entrusted with the task of preparing the programme of the Conference and of submitting to it a draft convention."

The Committee then adopted three draft resolutions proposed by Mr. Fisher, urging upon the Governments early signature and ratification of the Arms Traffic Convention, and inviting the Council to prepare a draft protocol making provision for excluding the import of arms and ammunition in time of peace from countries in which the traffic is uncontrolled.

Lord Robert Cecil proposed a motion in regard to the destruction of surplus stocks of munitions. Mr. Fisher pointed out that the adoption of such a proposal would depend on the ratification of the Convention of St. Germain. It was decided that Lord Robert Cecil and Mr. Fisher should jointly draft a motion with reference to this matter.

63. Eight resolutions proposed by Lord Robert Cecil regarding armaments were then considered. The first, expressing a desire that the Temporary Commission should continue its work, was adopted without discussion.

The second requested the Commission to propose a scheme for the limitation of armaments, to be presented to the next Assembly in the form of a draft treaty, which should be published by the end of June 1922. Much discussion took place on this resolution, exception being taken to its terms chiefly on the grounds that under the Covenant the duty of formulating plans for national limitations was placed upon the Council, and that the task it was proposed to lay upon the Temporary Commission was too heavy. Finally the principle was accepted, but the word "Council" was substituted for "Assembly," and a rider by M. Schanzer was added requesting the Council to reinforce the composition of the Temporary Mixed Commission.

The third resolution proposed to forward once more to all Members of the League the recommendation of the First Assembly that States should not "exceed for the next two financial years following the present year the sum total of expenditure on military, naval and air forces provided for in the budget of that year". This was accepted with the proviso that it should again take the form of a recommendation and not of a resolution.

The fourth resolution, which proposed that all rights of investigation conferred upon the Council by Article 213 of the Treaty of Versailles should be made applicable to Members of the League as soon as a scheme for the reduction of armaments had been accepted, was opposed by M. Reynald (France) and Mr. Fisher. Lord Robert Cecil thereupon withdrew it.

The fifth extended a welcome to the Washington Conference, and was adopted with slight amendments.

The sixth made an appeal to men of science to publish their discoveries in poison gas and similar matters, as this would militate against the use of such discoveries in war. Mr. Fisher pointed out the futility of such a resolution, and as finally amended and passed it referred the advisability of making such an appeal to the consideration of the Temporary Mixed Commission and the Permanent Advisory Commission.

The seventh and eighth resolutions, urging the desirability of propaganda in favour of the reduction of armaments and the necessity of strengthening the Secretariat organisation, were carried with slight amendments.

Action by the Assembly.

64. The report of the Committee is printed as Appendix III, Annex 2, and contains in its last portion a striking description of the general position in respect to armaments and the possibilities of future advance in the way of reduction. It was presented to the Assembly by Lord Robert Cecil on the 1st October, and led to a lengthy debate. Lord Robert Cecil initiated this, and gave a full explanation of the genesis and scope of the recommendations submitted.

Mr. Bruce (Australia) laid stress on the anxiety of his country with its 12,000 miles of seaboard, to have the armaments peril dissipated, and Mr. Branting (Sweden) supported the general thesis of the Committee, as also M. Schanzer (Italy). M. Noblemaire (France) made a very fine speech, stating that his Delegation adhered without reserve to the proposals before the Assembly. France remained pacific, and it was not her fault if the League had not been given adequate means to ensure peace. She was willing to go as far as possible to realise a plan for the limitation of armaments, but there must be two necessary conditions—the completion of the disarmament of certain nations in conformity with the treaties and the organisation of a right of investigation. France was industrious and peaceful. Why should there not be a place for a peaceful and free Germany? France desired the reparations due to her under the treaties of peace and under the Covenant. She must have securities for the future, and she had already accomplished what might be called moral disarmament, but this had not been the case as yet with Germany. Her motto was, "Si vis pacem, para pacem."

Mr. Fisher (Great Britain) congratulated M. Noblemaire on his speech, and agreed with a remark by M. Branting (Sweden) that regional understandings would do much towards the establishment of a lasting peace.

The resolutions put forward by the Committee were finally embodied in a resolution proposed by M. Schanzer (Italy) which was passed unanimously. (Appendix II, Resolution No. 19.)

ECONOMIC BLOCKADE.

65. A report had been submitted on this subject by a Special Committee appointed by the Council. This body indicated the difficulties in the application of Article 16 of the Covenant, e.g., that great exporting countries are still outside the League; that the cutting off of food supplies of the civil population of a defaulting State is an extremely drastic measure, which ought only to be applied in the last resort; and that it is difficult for an independent State to accept without question, the opinion of the Council, or of a majority of the Members of the League, as to a violation of the Covenant having taken place. On the other hand, it was necessary for all States alike to apply punitive measures.

66. The proposals of the Special Committee gave rise to a good deal of discussion on various suggested amendments, and it was decided to ask M. Schanzer (Italy), with the assistance of Lord Robert Cecil, to draft a report on the matter.

67. The report finally evolved is printed as Appendix III (Annex 3), and will repay perusal. The main resolution was that which proposed that Article 16 of the Covenant should be re-drafted as follows :—

Article 16.

(1) Should any Member of the League resort to war in disregard of its Covenants under Articles 12, 13 or 15, it shall ipso facto be deemed to have committed an act of war against all other Members of the League, which hereby undertake immediately to subject it to the severance of all trade or financial relations, the prohibition of all intercourse between persons residing in their territory and persons residing in the territory of the Covenant-breaking State, and the prevention of all financial, commercial or personal intercourse between persons residing in the territory of the Covenant-breaking State and persons residing in the territory of any other State, whether a Member of the League or not.

(2) Nevertheless, the Council may in the case of particular Members postpone the coming into force of any of these measures for a specified period where it is satisfied that such postponement will facilitate the attainment of the object of the measures referred to in the preceding paragraph, or that it is necessary in order to minimise the loss and inconvenience which will be caused to such Members.

(3) It shall be the duty of the Council to recommend to the several Governments concerned what effective military, naval or air force the Members of the League shall severally contribute to the armed forces to be used to protect the Covenants of the League.

(4) The Members of the League agree, further, that they will mutually support one another in the financial and economic measures which are taken under this Article, in order to minimise the loss and inconvenience resulting from the above measures, and that they will mutually support one another in resisting any special measures aimed at one of their number by the Covenant-breaking State, and that they will take the necessary steps to afford passage through their territory to the forces of any of the Members of the League which are co-operating to protect the Covenants of the League.

(5) The Council has to give an opinion as to whether a breach of the Covenant has taken place or not. When the Council gives such an opinion, the votes of the State charged with having committed a breach of the Covenant and of the State bringing the charge, no matter whether these States are Members of the Council by virtue of Article 4, paragraph 1 of the Covenant, or have been specially summoned, shall not be reckoned in determining whether or not there has been a unanimous decision.

(6) Any Member of the League which has violated any Covenant of the League may be declared to be no longer a Member of the League by a vote of the Council, concurred in by the representatives of all the other Members of the League represented thereon.

Clauses (1), (3), (4) and (6) correspond to those of the existing article, save that in clause (1) for the word "nationals" has been substituted "persons residing in the territory of a Covenant-breaking State" or other States.

Clause (2) is new, and provides for delay in carrying out the measures requisite on the part of States which are specially circumstanced, e.g., small States which abut on a large Covenant-breaking Power and might be subject to hostile action on its part.

Clause (5) indicates that when the Council has to take a decision, the votes of States which are charged with having committed a breach of the Covenant and of their accusers shall not be reckoned.

There were also various subsidiary and explanatory resolutions.

The second of these, apart from the amendment to Article 16, which was separately tabled, dealt with questions of procedure, and emphasised the point taken last year that each State must in the last resort decide for itself whether there has been a breach of the Covenant sufficient to justify its taking part in effective measures. If, however, it decides that there has been such a breach, it is bound to take adequate action.

The third, apart again from amendment of Article 16, related, inter alia, to the date at which effective measures should be undertaken, and provided that that date shall be fixed by the Council. It interpreted the word "immediately" in the first clause of Article 16 as meaning really "action as soon as possible."

The fourth explained the measures to be adopted prior to and during the actual economic blockade.

68. The report of the Committee occupied the greater part of two sittings of the Assembly on the 26th September.

Action by the Assembly.

It was decided that, as regards the substantive amendments to Article 16 of the Covenant proposed by the Committee (to which M. Reynald, of France, took exception in respect of the substitution in the first paragraph of "persons residing in their territory" for "nationals,") specific amendments to the Article should be held over pending their consideration, from a drafting point of view, by Committee No. 1.

69. At a subsequent meeting the Assembly had before it the conclusions of Committee No. I, regarding the substantive resolutions amending Article 16 of the Covenant.

A supplementary resolution had been put in to the effect that the main resolutions on the subject of the economic blockade should only be regarded as provisional rules for guidance until the amendment of Article 16 has been definitely carried out as provided by Article 26 of the Covenant.

The Assembly finally passed, with drafting modifications suggested by Committee I, the resolutions involving amendments to the Covenant, with no dissentient votes, though there were some abstentions and absentees. The resolutions of the Assembly on the whole subject of economic blockade, including the subsidiary resolutions, will be found in Appendix II, Resolution No. 22.

Work of Committee No. IV (Finance and Organisation).

ORGANISATION OF THE SECRETARIAT AND OF THE INTERNATIONAL LABOUR OFFICE.

70. At the meeting of the 8th September the early paragraphs of the Report of the Special Committee on Organization, appointed on the recommendation of last year's Assembly, were taken up. Copies of this report were sent by Sir W. Meyer to the India Office and to India, and it need not be reproduced here. M. Noblemaire (France), who was Chairman of that Committee, was the French representative on Committee IV, and Colonel Johnson, of the British Treasury, who had been M. Noblemaire's principal coadjutor and had drafted the Special Committee's report, also attended.

Committee IV started by dealing with a suggestion by the Noblemaire Committee that considerable economy might be affected if the seat of the League were moved to some less expensive place than Geneva. The Swiss representative (M. Usteri) naturally took exception to this, and maintained that Geneva was not more expensive than sundry other places. Some delegates observed that the seat of the League must be determined by political as well as financial considerations; that if there was any question of moving it, it was for the Council to take action, and the Council were now in possession of the remarks of M. Noblemaire's Committee. Finally it was decided, on a proposal by Sir Rennell Rodd (Great Britain), that as the question of the seat of the League was not governed exclusively by financial considerations, the Committee, while taking note of the opinion expressed by the Committee of Experts regarding the cost of living in Geneva, left the question to be decided elsewhere.

71. The Noblemaire Committee had drawn attention to the large amount of postal and telegraph charges, and pointed out that these were swollen by the high rates prevailing in Switzerland. They suggested that the Swiss Government should be approached in order, if possible, to obtain a reduction in postal and telegraph rates, but Colonel Johnson had to admit that the suggestion they made of a specially reduced rate for League correspondence would throw a heavy burden on to Switzerland, as she would have to pay the same amount she does now to the countries over which such correspondence is carried.

As regards telegrams, it had been suggested that these might be charged for at the reduced rates given to diplomatic messages. The Swiss representative on the Committee (M. Usteri) said that Switzerland would be ready to examine this suggestion sympathetically, and it was decided that the Secretary-General should make the necessary overtures.

72. In respect of paragraph 18 of the Report, which deals with salaries, Sir William Meyer pointed out that, if the Committee were to accept a resolution regarding the composition of the Secretariat, which he proposed to bring forward on a later occasion, it would no longer be necessary to base the rates of salaries of the Secretariat upon those of the British Civil Service, as the number of British civil officials employed in the Secretariat would eventually be so considerably diminished that it would be possible, in their cases, to give a special personal allowance, while the pay of the staff as a whole could be based on the more economical scale which applies on the Continent. This suggestion did not find favour. It was, however, admitted that the rates of salary laid down in Appendix II to the report must be reduced with reference to the recent reduction in the emoluments of the British Civil Service, and a revised scale embodying 75 per cent. of the reduction effected in England was agreed to. It was explained that the variable proportion of salaries was intended to meet the cost of living, plus expatriation allowance, and that this would not be affected.

Sir William Meyer asked Colonel Johnson whether his Committee had considered not merely the competence of the higher officers to perform their work, but whether, in some cases, this work could not be as satisfactorily done by lower paid employés. Colonel Johnson replied that he was satisfied that there was no waste of power and money in that respect; this assurance had to be accepted for the present.

73. Some discussion took place on the proposal, in paragraph 24 of the Report, that a Salaries Adjustment Committee to be set up should contain three representatives of the staff of the Secretariat and three of the International Labour Office. A Canadian proposal that business would be expedited by cutting these representatives to two in each case was eventually withdrawn. The down Report proposed that the States of the League should be represented on the Salaries Adjustment Committee by arbitrators not members of the staff, whose decision would be final in any question of disagreement, so that the staff representatives are rather assessors than complete members. Moreover, any recommendation made by the Committee would be submitted to the Council, or, in the case of the International Labour Office, to the Governing Body, for their approval. M. van Eysinga (Netherlands) asked who would decide in the case of disagreement between the arbitrators, to which M. Noblemaire (France) replied that the decision would rest with the Council or the Governing Body of the Labour Office, as the case might be. Sir W. Meyer suggested that three arbitrators should be appointed instead of two, to facilitate settlement of differences, but this was not accepted. He also criticised the proposal to make a reference to the Governing Body of the Labour Office final, and pointed out that it had been definitely settled last year that that body was subordinate to the Council and to the Assembly. Sir James Allen supported him on this point, and suggested that, in regard to the Labour Office, the report of the arbitrators should be submitted through the Governing Body to the Council, otherwise, apart from the general question of prerogative, there might be divergent decisions qua the Secretariat and the Labour Office. After some discussion, M. Adatci (Japan) proposed the following resolution :—

" The Committee, being desirous of confining itself to practical questions, has decided not to enter on a discussion of the relations between the International Labour Office and the Council of the League of Nations."

After a harangue by M. Albert Thomas (Director of the Labour Office) on the functions and prerogatives of the Labour Organisation, M. Adatci's proposal was carried, with the following rider, by the delegate of Brazil :—

" This conclusion must conform to the general provisions of the Budget adopted by the Assembly."

74. Paragraph 30 of the Report dealing with expatriation allowance was then considered, and approved. Sir William Meyer pointed out that this allowance appeared to be 50 per cent. on salary, in many cases, after allowing for the increased cost of living in Geneva, and compared this with the far smaller Indian overseas allowance. He also asked how the total calculation was made up : whether, for instance, a British salary of 200*l.* a year became 200*l.* plus 20 per cent. (40*l.*) for the cost of living, plus 50 per cent. of 240*l.*=360*l.* The reply was that 200*l.* becomes 300*l.* plus 20 per cent. of 200*l.*=340*l.* With reference to the proposal in paragraph 31 of the Report that Governments should be asked to exempt their nationals employed in the Secretariat from income tax, Sir William Meyer pointed out that if this were done the salaries annually paid would be in fact considerably more than the salaries paid in the British Civil Service, as a British civil servant was heavily mulcted in income tax. The question of agreeing to the proposals in the Report was then put to the vote, and carried.

75. On the subject of paragraph 35, regarding the desirability of fixed scales of subsistence allowances for experts and others who compose the advisory and technical bodies, Sir Herbert Ames (the Financial Director of the Secretariat) stated that, in fact, the subsistence allowances paid to those visiting Geneva to assist in the work of the League varied from 70 to 125 gold francs. He said that the Secretariat was of opinion that a fixed rate of 70 gold francs (corresponding roughly to 80 Swiss francs) was desirable, but it was a matter which could only be settled by the Assembly, as these varying rates had been approved by the Council when they had set up the different Commissions. It was eventually decided to adopt a resolution to the effect that a fixed rate of 70 gold francs should be definitely laid down, except in cases where any especially eminent persons were invited to preside over Conferences, in which case the Council would be empowered to make special arrangements.

76. On the 19th September the Committee proceeded with the consideration of paragraphs 36—39 of the Expert Committee's Report, in which it was recommended that the sumptuary allowances of certain high officials of the Secretariat, viz., the Secretary-General, the Deputy Secretary-General, and the Under Secretaries, should be reduced, and that the Secretary-General should, for the present, receive a special allowance of 1,000*l.* a year in lieu of the free house to which he is entitled under the terms of his engagement.

As regards the sumptuary allowances, the high officials in question can retain the whole of their existing allowances for the present under their contracts, and it is much to their credit to have consented to give up a portion.

As against such surrender, it was proposed that there should be a general Entertainment Fund or "pool," to be administered by an officer of the Secretariat specially appointed for this purpose, and to provide funds for entertainments outside the scope of the reduced sumptuary allowances. Having ascertained that the officer to administer the "pool" would be drawn from the existing staff and not represent a fresh appointment, Sir William Meyer carried an amendment laying down that the total amount to be credited to the "pool," should not exceed the total of the sums surrendered by individual officers, otherwise the "pool" might lead to increased expenditure.

Sir Rennell Rodd (Great Britain) proposed that the officer administering the "pool" should also be entrusted by Members of the League with the task of making arrangements regarding accommodation of their representatives and officials visiting Geneva, and pointed out that this ought to lead to material economy, since at present individual representatives or delegations were at the mercy of Swiss hotel-keepers. This, also, was carried.

77. Discussion then took place on a resolution tabled by Sir William Meyer, in regard to the enormous preponderance in the Secretariat and the Labour Office of representatives of Great Britain, France, and Switzerland, and the inadequate, or absolute lack of, representation of the various other countries, India, for example, having only one clerk in the Secretariat and no representation at all in the Labour Office. The text of this resolution, which was based on tables compiled from information furnished by the Secretariat itself, is printed in Appendix IV (Annex 2).

It was not expected that the resolution would be carried as put forward, since it prescribed maximum percentages for each country, but it was very desirable to ventilate the question as a means of putting pressure on the Secretariat and the Labour Office. The resolution called forth speeches from Sir Eric Drummond and M. Albert Thomas, the head of the Labour Office, who had attended, in which they held that it was impossible to have a rigid application of the principle of national representation, that it was inevitable that, as English and French were the official languages, those two countries should have a specially large representation, and that the Swiss representation was in the interests of economy, being largely applied to minor posts, which it would cost more to fill up from abroad.

After some discussion Sir George Perley proposed the following as a substitute for Sir William Meyer's resolution :—

"That it is extremely desirable, especially in the higher administrative positions, that the Secretariat of the League and of the International Labour Office should, as far as possible, be recruited in fair proportions from the various States Members of the League, and that this principle should be carefully borne in mind in filling future vacancies, always having regard to the requirements of efficiency."

This resolution was accepted by Sir William Meyer, and carried unanimously.

It may be mentioned that M. Thomas has already acted on it by asking Sir Louis Kershaw to advise in the selection of an Indian for a fairly important post in the Labour Office.

78. With reference to the proposal in paragraph 46 (a) of the Report, that the higher officials—those of the rank of Directors and upwards—should not hold office for more than seven years, some discussion arose as to whether extension of service might not be granted to such officers, if they were specially valuable.

It was decided that when an officer's time had elapsed his engagement should be taken as definitely terminated, but that, for special reasons, he might obtain a fresh engagement.

79. With reference to paragraphs 48—52 of the Report, it was agreed that the normal period of service should be 28 years for the subordinate staff and 21 years for the intermediate staff, i.e., those below the high officials already mentioned. It was decided, however, that an officer of this intermediate class, or upper division as it may be called, might normally continue up to 55 years of age, if that would be necessary to complete his 21 years' service.

80. Discussion then took place on the deferred pay scheme set forth in Appendix IV to the Report, the gist of which is that employés should contribute a proportion of their salaries, say 10 per cent., to what may be called a Provident Fund; that this fund should be swelled by equal contributions from the purse of the League; and that on retirement an officer would normally get the amount of his contributions plus the League's addenda with compound interest on the same.

It was generally accepted that such a scheme was desirable, but various points were raised as to its specific application, e.g., as to whether a uniform 10 per cent. contribution was a fair one, and whether it would not be preferable to have higher contributions from the higher officials and lower from others. Finally, it was decided to accept the principle of the scheme, but to refer the working out of specific proposals to the Salaries Adjustment Committee referred to in paragraph 73, with instructions to report in time for the matter to be finally decided next year.

M. Reveillaud (France) and Mr. Bruce (Australia) pointed out the desirability of having the funds for this deferred pay scheme separately banked, and the Australian delegate made the further suggestion that it would probably be more economical to make terms for eventual payments to the staff with some big insurance office, especially in the case contemplated by the Noblemaire Committee of the amount standing to an officer's credit, if large, being converted into an annuity. These points will also be considered by the Salaries Adjustment Committee.

81. With reference to paragraph 42 of the report, exception was taken to the underlying idea that recruitment for the League staff should ordinarily be by competitive examination, special selection by the Secretary-General to obtain adequate representation of Member States in the League offices being put in quite a subsidiary place.

Sir William Meyer and other delegates pointed out that this was not in accord with the resolution recently adopted (vide paragraph 77 supra), since a competitive examination, in regard to which centres would necessarily be in Europe, would handicap distant countries very much.

Sir Eric Drummond explained that all he contemplated was the maintenance of the existing system of competition in regard to posts which it would be advantageous to fill up locally, e.g., translators and stenographers. He would be constantly guided hereafter by the resolution above referred to. Finally, it was agreed to accept a proposal by M. Noblemaire that, instead of "competitive recruitment or selection" at the close of the first sub-paragraph of paragraph 42, the Committee should adopt "a system of recruitment based on the principles contained in paragraphs 42—54."

82. As regards paragraphs 57—60, the Committee accepted the idea (put forward in its essence by the Indian Delegation last year, but then rejected) of a Special Committee of Financial Control, which would afford outside criticism analogous to that which in nearly all countries vests in the Ministry of Finance, and sometimes also in a Parliamentary body. It was decided that the members of this Special Committee should be five in number (a subsequent decision reduced this to three), and adequately representative of States of the League other than those permanently represented on the Council.

The Committee, however, rejected the proposal in paragraph 60 of the Noblemaire Report that to this Committee should be attached a special financial expert, to act as its rapporteur, who would also be responsible for the audit control. It was held that there was no occasion to add a highly paid officer, who would hold office for five years, to the establishment of the League, since the members of the Committee of Control would certainly include men of adequate financial experience, and that the audit arrangements could be carried out otherwise. The existing "appropriation officer" was to be continued and to obey any instructions which might be issued to him by the Committee of Control.

83. Considerable discussion arose as to the character of the audit, and whether it would not suffice to have, as at present, an appropriation officer. It was argued with force that, although the proposal to have a special financial expert had been rejected, it was still necessary to have an outside auditor. This proposal was rejected by 12 votes to 11, the British Empire Delegations voting in the min ority.

As regards paragraph 65, the proposal for altering the financial year to a period commencing with 1st October was rejected, there being only two votes in its favour.

84. There was considerable discussion over the "working capital fund." This title is really a misnomer. The fund is not meant to provide for capital expenditure; it is just a provision to meet the contingency that, owing to subscriptions coming in slowly and certain States not paying their dues, the League should have a reserve fund from which to provide for outlay pending the getting in of revenue. It would be better described as a working balance. The old title was, however, retained, and discussion centred round the point whether the International Labour Office should have a separate working capital account. M. Thomas emphasised the necessity for meeting authorised expenditure of the Labour Office and its independence of the Secretariat, but stated that, on behalf of the Governing Body of the Office, he would be quite satisfied with a general working capital fund, provided it was understood that the Labour Office should be entitled to its due share, and this was carried.

85. As regards the question of the number of Directors of Sections in the Secretariat, the position is that the present sanctioned number is nine, and the Committee proposed to reduce this to six, but with a special officer for the Legal branch, who would practically be a Director, so that the real number is seven. The Financial Director, it may be observed, would, under this scheme, eventually be replaced by a Chef de Service, working directly under the Under Secretary. The number of Under Secretaries was to be reduced from two to one, and a vacancy having occurred by the selection of one of these—M. Anzilotti (Italy)—as a Judge of the Hague International Tribunal, it was possible to carry this into immediate effect.

In the course of the discussion, Sir Eric Drummond, supported by Colonel Johnson, said that while he was willing to consider eventually the proposal that there should be one general Director for work in connection with (a) Administrative Commissions, etc., and (b) Mandates, he did not think that this suggestion could be confidently accepted at present It was decided that it would be open to the Secretary-General, if he considered that he had full justification for two separate Directors, to place the matter before the Council and the Assembly. In any case, a reduction in the number of Directors will only take place as vacancies occur in the existing staff, and Sir Eric laid stress on the impossibility, at present, of shedding the Financial Director.

The proposals of the Noblemaire Committee in respect of the Directors were, therefore, to some extent illusory, and Sir William Meyer pointed out, with reference to paragraph 82 of their report, that a reduction in the number of Directors might be more than compensated for by a considerable increase in the number of Chefs de Service. Sir Eric Drummond replied, however, that he had no present intention of increasing the staff of Chefs.

At a later stage, too, it was decided, in view of the representation of the Secretary-General, that the Under Secretaryship hitherto held by M. Anzilotti should not be immediately reduced, but should be continued for three years on a different footing. The Director of the Armaments Section, whose work, it was represented, had much increased, was to become an Under Secretary but without any sumptuary allowance, and his Directorship was to be left vacant.

86. In respect of paragraph 93, which proposed to set up a bureau in Latin America, there was considerable opposition, it being pointed out that it was not a proposal for economy but for additional expenditure, and would be bound to form a precedent. Sir George Perley (Canada) suggested postponement of the question for another year, and was supported by the British Empire Delegates with the exception of Sir Rennell Rodd. The suggestion was, however, rejected by a small majority, and paragraph 93 was thereupon passed.

In the course of the discussion it transpired that the Council had already sent out two members of the Secretariat to investigate, and that their report would be awaited, but in the meanwhile provision was made in the budget.

International Labour Office.

87. With reference to paragraph 128 of the Report, there was considerable discussion on the proposal that the four members of the Governing Body of the International Labour Office who were to confer with the Committee of Control regarding the budgets and accounts of that office, should also be able to appear in the Assembly. It was finally decided that only one representative of the Office, who might, at discretion, be one of the Governing Body or the Director, should be entitled to speak in the Assembly when the budget was discussed there, and then only, as in the case of the Secretary-General, if specially invited to do so by the President.

88. Paragraph 131 commented on the proposal of the Labour Office to purchase their present building in Geneva. The Labour Office had submitted a memorandum justifying this proposal on the ground that it would be really economical and that, although the building presents certain defects as regards distance from the centre of the city, etc., it was better to endure these than to embark on large expenditure.

M. Thomas was very emphatic on this point, while some of the members of the Committee considered it premature to start permanent acquisition, having regard to the possibility (a) of moving the seat of the League, and (b) of acquiring some more suitable building. Finally, having regard to the fact that the matter was urgent, seeing that the present lease terminated in 1923, it was decided to appoint a special Sub-Committee of three members to consider this question further.

This Sub-Committee subsequently reported that the Labour Office ought not to acquire any permanent building until it had been decided definitely whether the seat of the League should remain at Geneva or be moved elsewhere, and it was hoped that a definite decision on this subject might be taken next year When such a decision was arrived at, the Labour Office should have permanent quarters at the seat of the League wherever it might be, but in the meantime they should continue occupation of their present building as tenants, incurring some small necessary expenditure on improving the accommodation. The Sub-Committee's view was endorsed by the full Committee.

89. With reference to Appendix II of the Noblemaire Report dealing with rates of salaries, the question was again raised of having an intermediate scale of pay between the members of sections and senior clerical assistants, etc. This had been ruled out in the discussion in connection with the Secretariat on the ground that to give higher pay than had been proposed to senior clerical assistants would encourage the advancement of mediocre persons. The line now taken, however, was that it was desirable to provide for the case in which a member of section might be doing work which could be as well done by a senior clerical assistant, so that the proposal was one for economy. With regard to this point of view, the proposal for an intermediate grade in the Labour Office was referred to the Salaries Adjustment Committee; as also the possibility of having for the Office a lower pay for copying-typists.

Action by the Assembly.

90. On the 1st October the Assembly dealt with the report submitted by M. Noblemaire (France) on behalf of the Committee.

M. Noblemaire supplemented the report itself by a very lucid speech.

M. Noblemaire had not proposed any resolution, so Sir W. Meyer moved that occasion should be taken to pay a tribute to the labours of M. Noblemaire and his expert Committee, indicating that, though he had in Committee IV criticised some of their conclusions as not going far enough, he recognised that on the whole they marked a very considerable advance. This resolution was carried unanimously.

The report submitted by M. Noblemaire is printed in Appendix III (Annex 4) and Sir William Meyer's resolution in Appendix II (Resolution No. 18). Sir W. Meyer's speech in the Assembly will be found in Appendix IV (Annex 2).

ALLOCATION OF THE EXPENSES OF THE LEAGUE.

91. It was decided that, after the general question arising out of revision of allocation of the League's expenses among the constituent States proposed by the Special Technical Committee had been discussed, Sir Rennell Rodd should act as rapporteur. He was also to be associated with three other members, M. Adatci (Japan), M. Fernandes (Brazil) and M. Trygger (Sweden), who were to meet the special Sub-Committee suggested in Committee I (paragraph 19 supra) for discussion of the amendments to the Covenant which might be necessitated by future procedure in regard to allocations and budget. It may be noted that MM. Noblemaire and Bruce, who represented No. I Committee, were also members of Committee IV.

92. The question of allocation was dealt with in paragraphs 106-7 and 112 of last year's Report of the Indian Delegation. Briefly, the position then arrived at was that there was general dissatisfaction with Article 6 of the Covenant, which bases the allocation on the entirely different circumstances of the Postal Union Scheme, and it was sought to obtain a scheme of allocation, which would suit both the Union and the League, and would therefore not necessitate a modification of Article 6, by the appointment of a small special Committee.

That Committee consisted of the following members:—M. Reveillaud (France), Chairman; Sir Henry Strakosch (South Africa); M. Barboza Carneiro (Brazil); M. Alfred George (Switzerland); M. Gluckstadt (Denmark). M. Sthyr, and subsequently M. de Kaufmann, acted as substitute for M. Gluckstadt.

They came to the conclusion that it was impossible to make out a scheme, which would be equitable both as regards the Postal Union and the League, and that the latter, therefore, must proceed independently. They had to work rapidly, and almost split on two divergent schemes, but finally agreed on the adoption of one, which will be referred to in this Report as the definite scheme, while at the same time putting forward the other as a possible temporary solution.

93. As regards India, while the temporary scheme puts us very much as we were under the present one, the definite scheme raises our percentage of subscription from 4·9 to 6·6.

India is placed in Class II under this last scheme, whereas in the existing scheme she is in Class I, but the prejudicial result to her is attained by the fact that the number of units chargeable for Class II is no less than 65 (in Class I, 90), the total number of units being 982, whereas under the existing scheme Class I States pay 25 units out of a total of 510. Under the temporary scheme the same division into classes was adopted as in the definite scheme, but the units taken were those of the various classes under the existing scheme.

At a conference at the India Office before the delegation left for Geneva, it was decided that India should oppose the definite scheme as being an unfair one, unless it underwent material amendment, and that the temporary scheme would be preferable.

Sir William Meyer brought the matter before two meetings of the British Delegations, expounding India's objections to the definite scheme, but got little sympathy from the Dominions Delegates, since they pay less—some of them materially less—under that scheme than under the temporary one.

94. In anticipation of the subject coming before the Committee, Sir William Meyer tabled two resolutions, accompanied by a memorandum setting forth the principal points in which the definite scheme was regarded as defective, which are printed in Appendix IV (Annex 3), and supported them at an early stage of the general discussion by a speech strongly attacking that scheme.

It may be noted here that the Allocation Committee used the term "net revenue" in a very peculiar sense—it does not mean that the expenses in connection with the collection of various heads of revenue are deducted from the gross receipts, but that the gross figure is taken except in the case of commercial or quasi-commercial enterprises, such as posts and railways, in which case the net profit only is assessed.

The matter on which Sir William Meyer laid most stress was that the Committee's scheme, through no fault of its own as it had to work very hurriedly and on inadequate data, was an absolutely unscientific one. It professed to base itself on "capacity to pay," but as interpreted by revenue figures of a single year, 1913, which were now of very ancient date. It had not taken into account various essential factors; and in particular, though rendering lip-service to the all-important consideration that the assessment of a State must be based not merely on its relative revenue resources, but with regard to the general benefits it derived from the League, these considerations had been very little attended to in practice, with the result that a number of small States were let off with most inadequate subscriptions, amounting in some cases to only about ½*d*. in the pound. What India wanted was a really scientific scheme, and that could not be attained at present. The Reveillaud Committee had admitted that their so-called definite scheme ought only to have effect till 1924, but India preferred the temporary scheme, not merely because it taxed her less, but because, like the Postal Union assessment, it professed quite frankly to be an arbitrary allocation, whereas the definite scheme, which was arbitrary also, masqueraded under a pseudo-scientific character.

M. Reveillaud in his reply had to admit the justice of some, at any rate, of the criticisms. He urged, however, that the definite scheme was only provisional, and might be adopted as such, but if the Committee pleased they could work on the temporary scheme, though his Committee did not think it so good. This was very loyal of M. Reveillaud, since it is an open secret that he was strongly in favour of the temporary scheme, and only gave way at the end to obtain unanimity.

95. There was a long and dreary discussion, and practically every delegate who spoke supported or opposed the definite scheme according as his country would or would not be more lightly assessed under it than under the temporary scheme, or, it might be, the present method.

Sir Rennell Rodd supported the temporary scheme as a better means of obtaining general agreement, but he tried to justify the exclusion of colonies in making up the quotas of Great Britain and other colonial Powers on the ground that they were generally a source of expense. Sir William Meyer pointed out that this was not so, at any rate in regard to colonies such as the Straits Settlements and Ceylon, and that the criteria the Committee had adopted were revenue and population and not expenditure. On Sir Rennell Rodd's principle India might claim material reduction of her assessment on the ground that many tracts were not self-supporting in the matter of taxation.

96 It was agreed, on a proposal by the Spanish Delegate, that, when an ultimate result had been arrived at, the publication of the quotas should not be in group arrangements or with reference to percentages, but in alphabetical order with the amount of subscription of each State against it.

97. The Italian Delegate emphasised that the real deciding factor in the case would be the assent or dissent of the Parliaments of the various countries in respect of the sums they would have to be asked to vote, and that the existing scheme had at any rate the merit of having received general recognition. A departure from this scheme would provoke considerable opposition in various Parliaments, especially in the Parliaments of countries whose contributions would be increased. Speaking later, Sir William Meyer fully agreed with this line of argument.

98. In a further speech Sir William Meyer pointed out the difference between the idealism preached in the Assembly by the South African Delegates and the hard materialism of the present discussion, in which South Africa, like other States, had supported the scheme which would let it off the most lightly. Mr. Bruce (Australia) had endeavoured to support the opinions expressed in favour of the definite scheme by the proposition of the greatest happiness of the greatest number; that the definite scheme would increase the assessments only of six countries, India included, whereas it would reduce the assessments of a great many more. If there was some injustice to India, surely it was better (he had observed) that this should be suffered than that so many other States of less wealth should have to complain.

Australia, now posing as a poor country, had, Sir William Meyer rejoined, spent nearly 1,000,000*l*. on a palatial office in London for her High Commissioner, an expenditure which India, with her much larger revenue and also larger necessary expenditure, could not possibly afford. Australia had also indulged in the luxury of an expensive line of Commonwealth steamers, which some of the best experts predicted would be run at a heavy loss. It was idle, therefore, to say that Australia was a poor country and India a rich one.

99. The only resolution discussed at this sitting was jointly submitted by the delegates of Poland, Rumania, the Serbo-Croat-Slovene State and Czecho-Slovakia, proposing that the allocations should be modified with reference to conditions of exchange. On a division the proposal was rejected by 13 votes to 9.

100. A further resolution tabled by Sir William Meyer (Appendix IV, Annex 3) proposed that the Reveillaud Committee should resume its labours as soon as possible and endeavour to frame a more complete and convincing scheme, after consideration of essential factors, such as the financial position of Federal Governments as compared with unitary States, the colonies of certain Powers, the special benefits that particular States may derive from the League, and so on; and that they should also endeavour to work on more recent statistics. It went on to propose that, as the Reveillaud Committee would, it was hoped, be able to work out a more satisfactory scheme before long, the Postal Union allocation should meanwhile continue to hold the field, as it is sanctified by the Covenant as it stands, and has in that capacity received the adhesion of all the Member States.

Many other delegates also tabled resolutions bearing on future allocation.

101. Meanwhile a report (embodied in a letter from M. Adatci, who had presided over it) had been received from the expert mixed Committee drawn from Committees I and IV, on the subject of the constitutional aspects of the matter. This letter is embodied in the final report of Committee IV on allocations, which figures in Appendix III (Annex 5). Briefly, it proposed that the Reveillaud Committee should continue its labours so as to evolve a more satisfactory eventual scheme; that Article 6 of the Covenant should be amended so as to enable the adjustment of the expenses of the League among the Member States to be made by decision of the Assembly; and that there should be a provisional Article embodying a scheme which might be applied at once with effect from 1922.

102. The suggestion that the Reveillaud Committee should resume its labours was unanimously adopted, and discussion then centred on the advisability of adopting a provisional scheme at once to supersede that of the Postal Union. It may be observed here that M. Adatci, as an individual member of Committee IV, now proposed that the decision of the Assembly in respect of any new scale should be taken on the proposal of the Council, but this was opposed by M. Trygger (Sweden) and Sir W. Meyer, on the ground that it would weaken the now recognised position that within the League the Assembly was supreme in matters of finance, and M. Adatci finally withdrew his amendment.

It was, however, agreed—on a suggestion by the Venezuelan Delegate—that the Assembly Rules of Procedure might fittingly be altered so as to ensure that no revision of allocation shall be considered unless its inclusion in the Assembly's agenda has been communicated to the constituent States of the League at least four months before the session.

103. As regards the adoption of a provisional scheme, Sir W. Meyer moved, in accordance with the suggestion contained in his draft resolution above-mentioned (paragraph 100), that the provisional scheme be dropped, and that the Assembly should hold to the existing allocation until it could be replaced by a really satisfactory one, one which could be acknowledged as just even by States which might have to pay more therein. He pointed out that to get the ratification of the Governments necessary for altering the Covenant so as to dispense with the Postal Union scale must necessarily take a long time, so that matters would probably not be ready in practice for the introduction of a fresh scheme until the Assembly met next year, by which time it might be hoped to have an amended scale. Moreover, as the allocations for 1922 have to be notified at the beginning of the year, there was all the more reason not to put to States a scheme which could not be at once carried out as regards payments of subscriptions. The Parliaments of States which disliked the provisional scheme would be on very strong ground if they declined to vote provision until the Covenant had been so amended finally as to make it a fait accompli and not a possibility only. A long debate followed, in which representatives of the various States generally took, as in the previous week, the best line suited to the pecuniary interests of their countries, those who would be favoured by the Reveillaud Committee's existing proposals being for a provisional scheme which would embody this. Finally, on a division, the idea of a provisional scheme was carried by 21 votes to 11. Sir W. Meyer had not expected to get so many votes, and among these were those of the representatives of Great Britain, Italy, Spain, China, and Japan, and also (to take minor States as well) of Serbia, Cuba, Uruguay and Colombia. Sir W. Meyer thereupon asked that it should be recorded that he reserved full liberty to challenge this decision in the Assembly, a course followed by several of the other States comprising the minority.

104. The Committee then went on to consider what the provisional scheme should be, and after some discussion it was agreed by a majority that the basis of it should be what is called the Reveillaud Committee's definite scheme.

105. Having reached this result, and having regard to the fact that there was now very little time to put matters before the Assembly, it was agreed that it was no use at present discussing specific amendments to the scheme which had found favour. These could be considered in connection with the subsequent reconsideration of the scheme to be taken up by the renewed Reveillaud Committee, and consequently all the various resolutions bearing on this matter should be sent to that Committee. The only exception was as regards a proposal made by the Polish Delegate that his State should at once go down one class—from the third to the fourth. He supported this by the plea that the Reveillaud Committee had to take the revenue figures of 1913 (when Poland was still distributed among the empires of Russia, Germany and Austria), and could only arrive at the revenue of the new State by the arbitrary method of taking the revenue of the old empires and giving to Poland a sum under each proportion of the population transferred from Russia, etc., to the Poland of to-day. Also, that since its re-existence Poland had never had the benefit of settled conditions. This proposal was adopted by Committee No. IV.

106. As regards the date from which the provisional scheme should have application, the delegates of Australia, South Africa and Canada (which countries will benefit materially by the provisional scale as against the Postal Union allocation) pleaded emphatically for retrospective application to 1921, taking as the basis of their plea a proposal to this effect contained in recommendations made by Committee IV to the Assembly and accepted by it in connection with last year's budget (see on this point recommendation II, Article 13 (e) as printed on pages 86-7 of the Appendices of last year's Report of the Indian Delegation). They urged that, whatever this might be legally, it was in honour a binding agreement, on the strength of which their Parliaments had voted the contributions for 1922, Sir Edgar Walton (South Africa) declaring that General Smuts could not have carried the existing subscription for 1921 through his Parliament had he not been able to assure them that it was going to be revised for the benefit of South Africa. The opponents of this—including M. Reveillaud, Sir Rennell Rodd and Sir W. Meyer—replied that the recommendation invoked had not the binding force of a resolution and could be modified if circumstances required it. The fact was that last year it was thought that it would be possible to get matters settled quickly by obtaining an amendment of the Postal Union classification in which case it would have been quite reasonable to make such amendment apply to 1921. It had now been found necessary to cut loose from the Postal Union altogether; the consequent amendment of the Covenant would take a long time, and to have the application of the scheme thrown back to 1921 would raise a legitimate grievance on the part of States which would suffer thereby, and render them very unwilling to agree to any proposed change in the League constitution quâ assessment. In this connection, Sir Herbert Ames (the Financial Director), made a good speech, pointing out that if the proposal was accepted it would be very prejudicial to the League's finances. He would have early next year to circulate to each State a statement of what it would pay under the Postal Union allocation still in force, and what it was proposed that it should pay under the provisional scheme, subject to retrospective application for 1921. The result would be that some States would have their 1922 contributions very largely increased, while others like Australia, Switzerland and the Netherlands would have to pay nothing, or might even be in a position to claim refunds. Obviously, a State which was heavily burdened by this method would not pay till it had definitely determined whether to accept the necessary amendment to the Covenant or not, and one which profited greatly would have little or nothing to send in. The League might, therefore, go bankrupt. M. Reveillaud strongly advised the Dominions delegates and others not to risk losing the new scheme altogether by insisting on this retrospective application. M. van Eysinga took the same view, and on a division it was decided by 16 votes to 10 that the retrospective application of the scheme till 1921 should be rejected, the Dominions delegates thus defeated reserving their liberty to raise the question again in the Assembly.

It was agreed that, in regard to the provisional scheme, it should be indicated that it would remain in force " till altered by the Assembly," to provide for the contingency that we might not be ready with a really definite scheme next year.

107. The matter came before the Assembly on the 6th October, on the report of Sir Rennell Rodd, printed in Appendix III (Annex 5). Action by the Assembly.

At a discussion which had taken place between the British Empire Delegations under the chairmanship of Mr. Balfour, a compromise course had found favour.

Sir Rennell Rodd was to propose in the Assembly that the new provisional scheme should only last during 1922 and 1923, and should lapse earlier if a satisfactory fresh scheme has meanwhile been adopted.

Further when the new scheme was adopted, countries which may have paid more than their share (a) in 1921 with reference to the Postal Union scale; or (b) in 1922, and possibly 1923, under the provisional scheme should be entitled to eventual refund, if and when the League's finances permitted.

Accordingly, when Sir Rennell Rodd, acting as rapporteur, placed before the Assembly the resolutions entrusted to him by Committee IV, he personally made the suggestions for modification above referred to. But when the matter was discussed in the Assembly, it was found that there was no chance of obtaining the requisite three-fourths majority for the resolutions as Sir Rennell Rodd had wished them finally to stand, and after discussion the Assembly passed the resolutions and recommendations printed in Appendix II (Resolution No. 30). The first resolution, involving amendment to Article 6 of the Covenant, was passed by 40 votes to 1, 10 delegations being absent or abstaining; and the second, adopting the provisional scheme of allocation, by 31 votes to 2, 18 delegations not voting. The rest of the resolutions and recommendations were adopted unanimously, with the exception of the recommendation in favour of the eventual reimbursement of States who may pay more under the provisional scheme which had been adopted than under such definite scheme as may finally come into force. This recommendation was carried by 21 votes to 10.

108. The position of India had been considerably weakened by the previous action of the Assembly (vide paragraphs 30—36, supra), by which resolutions in respect of Covenant amendments were no longer to come under Article 5 as regards unanimity, but that a three-fourths majority would suffice if it included the representatives of all States on the Council, and it became very difficult to look to a minority of more than one-fourth as against the provisional scheme, from the fact that the delegates of those Council States, who had been India's allies in Committee, shrank from taking the position of voting against the provisional scheme, and its proposed application, in the Assembly and thus destroying it. They preferred to leave any hostile action that their Governments might consider necessary to those Governments when it came to ratification. Consequently, Sir W. Meyer thought it better not to put India in the position of voting against the resolution in regard to the provisional scheme, although the final solution adopted by the Assembly was considerably less satisfactory than that which the British Delegations would have accepted, if the matter had lain between themselves, in that—

(1) The provisional scheme is not to be subject to a definite time limit, but to remain in force till the Assembly adopts another one, which will obviously give opportunity for obstruction in regard to a new scheme on the part of those whom this will favour less than the provisional scheme.

(2) The proposals as regards the setting on foot of a new scheme and the arrears solution, which would benefit India if a fresh scheme were more in her favour than the provisional scheme is, are recommendations and not positive resolutions.

After consulting with Mr. Sastri (H. H. the Maharao of Kutch had had to leave Geneva when the matter came on), Sir W. Meyer abstained on the provisional scheme resolution, and voted in favour of the other proposals. Still the position remains better than when Committee IV concluded its labours, and considerably better than had been anticipated when the discussions in that Committee began. It may be mentioned here that on the budget for 1922 India would, under the provisional scheme, pay about 1,380,000 gold francs against 1,022,000 which she would contribute under the Postal Union scheme.

109. It has to be remembered, however, that until the Covenant is amended the Postal Union scale holds the field, and that the Government of India have full liberty to ratify, or decline to ratify, the proposals carried in the Assembly. (They would, of course, be allowed to reconsider with reference to the last clause of Article 26 of the Covenant, if a majority for ratification had been secured without them, and they need not act without very full consideration.) And until the Covenant has been definitely amended by the necessary votes of all the Council States and a majority of the rest, a procedure which must take a long time, India will certainly be within her right in declining to pay anything more than what her obligations under the Postal Union scale impose on her.

AUDITED ACCOUNTS AND BUDGET OF THE LEAGUE.

110. In regard to the audited accounts of the Secretariat for the period July-December 1920 (the audit of the first half of 1920 came before the Assembly last year), attention was drawn by some of the Dominions Delegates and Sir W. Meyer to the extraordinary method adopted by the Swiss auditors in setting forth the income and expenditure of the League for the period in question. They had included in the income a large amount of subscriptions due for this period from a number of States which had not been paid within it, with the result that they showed a large surplus, while there was really a deficit involving temporary borrowing from Lloyds' Bank. It was agreed that, while this statement should be maintained as possibly suiting the ideas of continental countries, there should be a supplementary statement setting forth the actual cash receipts and expenditure for the period, with a supplementary note indicating assets subsequently realisable.

The following States have paid nothing as yet on account of 1920:—Argentine, Columbia, Guatemala, Liberia, Nicaragua, Paraguay, Rumania, and Salvador, while there are balances, running from 50 to 80 per cent., still due from South Africa, Panama, Peru, Persia, and the Serb-Croat-Slovene State. On the whole, according to a statement made by Sir Herbert Ames, 10 per cent. of the contributions to the 1920 budget of 10,000,000 gold francs still remain to be paid.

The auditors' report was then passed, as also a similar report for the Labour Office—this latter for the whole year 1920.

111. The Committee then took up the estimates presented by the Secretariat and the Labour Office for the year 1922, put together finally in a general consolidated budget statement (Appendix III, Annexes 6 and 7).

The budget for 1921 was prepared in a most unsatisfactory way, the chief faults being referred to in paragraphs 96-105 of the Indian Delegation's Report on last year's Assembly; in particular, the Labour Office contenting itself with giving globular figures. A great improvement was noticed in regard to the budget of the coming year, attributable mainly to the recommendations (largely due to the initiative of India) made in the Foster-Eysinga report on last year's budget and approved by the Assembly. In particular, the Labour Office figures were put quite clearly, more so indeed than those of the Secretariat; and M. Thomas' explanations compared favourably with those of Sir Herbert Ames. And it may be observed here that the absolute control of the Assembly over the budget is now fully admitted.

The total budget for 1922 as originally presented was, in round figures, for 23,768,000 gold francs (of which 8,245,000 were for the Labour Office), against 21,250,000 in 1921 (of which 7,000,000 were for the Labour Office).

It may be noted in this connection that the increase in the Labour Office estimates does not mean an increase of actual outlay, the Director having been strictly enjoined by his Governing Body not to exceed the total actual expenditure voted for 1921, but a less favourable exchange for Swiss francs, in which the accounts of the Labour Organisation are now kept.

The original figures were added to or modified by various supplementary estimates put in, in a confused fashion, at the last moment, and also by net reductions by Committee IV. The net total result is that the budget for 1922 will now stand at about 20,750,000 gold francs (of which nearly 6,136,000 are for the Labour Office), i.e., a decrease of about 3,000,000 gold francs on the estimates as originally put before us.

This economy is, however, not nearly as drastic as it looks, for no less than 1,364,000 gold francs represents surplus balances accumulated, or likely to accrue, in connection with the Labour Office. It was decided, and very rightly, to allocate these to reduction of the resultant expenditure which would have to be met by the constituent States of the League instead of, as proposed by the Canadian Delegate (Sir George Perley) and Sir Herbert Ames, putting it into the general working capital fund, which is to be available for the Labour Office as well as for the Secretariat (paragraph 84 supra).

Sir Herbert Ames had likewise suggested that the Secretariat budget of 1922 should include the replenishment of the working capital fund to the extent of 500,000 gold francs, but this proposal was withdrawn in view of a decision that the fund should be limited to 5,000,000 gold francs.

112. The chief abiding economy was one obtained on a motion by the Brazilian Delegate for a general reduction of 25 per cent. in printing charges, wherever these occurred. He impressed the Committee by the fact that he had made personal investigations as to the price of paper, and found that it had fallen considerably, while the Secretariat apologist had to admit that concomitantly the British Stationery Office (from which the League had hitherto got most of its supplies) had for some reason doubled its prices. This also impressed the Committee, which was relieved to learn that we were not bound in any way to obtain paper from London if we could get it cheaper elsewhere.

113. The estimates for the Publication Department, originally 415,000 gold francs, are finally reduced to 356,000 chiefly by reason of the printing economy referred to above. But they now include a supplementary estimate of 45,000 gold francs for the publication of the League's monthly Bulletin in several languages instead of in English and French only. The official who explained the estimates on behalf of the Secretariat wanted not merely a publication in all the principal European languages, but also in those of Japan and China. Sir W. Meyer argued that however desirable that might be, this was not a time to increase expenditure, but on a division the supplementary estimate was carried. Sir W. Meyer then obtained agreement to the suggestion that if translations were made into Chinese and Japanese they should be made into one at least of the Indian languages, e.g., Urdu.

114. Under Transit, the original estimate was 500,000 gold francs against 670,000 in 1921, the decrease being due to the fact that there will be no general conference such as there was at Barcelona this year. But a net increase was made to the extent of about 43,000 gold francs with reference to the fact that the Assembly, on the proposal of Committee II, had sanctioned the holding of regional conferences, and that these might involve an outlay of about 100,000 gold francs. There was a feeling at first againt this latter supplementary estimate, but M. van Eysinga (Netherlands), supported by Sir Rennell Rodd and M. Reveillaud, urged that the Committee could not put itself in a position of opposition to the Assembly. This, however, elicited a general desire to have matters put on a more satisfactory basis, so that no projects involving additional expenditure should be put before the Assembly by other Committees until they had been considered also in Committee IV, a matter which will be further dealt with later. Sir W. Meyer pointed out that, even as matters at present stood, while necessarily bound to accept the policy laid down by the Assembly, it was the Committee's duty to consider, and if necessary to criticise, the departmental estimates submitted to carry out that policy: in the present case such regional conferences as were required (and it had been indicated by an official apologist that there might not be any at all) could be met out of the original vote of 500,000 gold francs. Finally, it was decided, on the motion of M. Reveillaud, to pass a supplementary vote for 50,000 gold francs, thus allowing for extension of the estimates with reference to regional conferences, and at the same time vindicating the Committee' s prerogative of dealing with expenditure. This increase was to a slight extent set off by some minor savings.

115. For the purpose of books and library equipment, Sir W. Myer obtained a reduction of 65,000 gold francs, in order to reduce the figure to that of the 1921 budget, pointing out that the Expert Committee on Organisation had criticised the scale of the Library as too ambitious.

116. The question of exchange and exchange compensation allowances came under discussion with reference to the Labour Office estimates, and M. Thomas had to admit that it was quite incorrect on present indications to assume that 20 gold francs would be equal to 24 Swiss, the rate of conversion taken for 1922. He stated that the accounts had been first of all kept in pounds sterling, then in Swiss francs, then—at the instigation of Sir Herbert Ames—in gold francs, and now in Swiss francs again ; and asked pathetically how he was to avoid getting into confusion. It has now been settled that the domestic accounts of the Labour Organisation shall be kept entirely in Swiss francs, and that the globular result will be converted into gold francs for the purpose of the final budget at the current rate of exchange. M. Thomas also explained, with reference to the special allowance of at least 24 Swiss francs for 20 gold francs given to members of the staff, that prior to the move of the office from London to Geneva, everybody's salary was fixed in pounds sterling, but that those subsequently recruited had their salaries fixed in Swiss francs. It was the former class who were considered entitled to compensation for unfavourable developments of exchange. It was finally decided that the whole matter of exchange compensation should be submitted for consideration to the Salaries Adjustment Committee.

117. An important economy was effected in regard to a sum of 500,000 gold francs, which M. Thomas explained was to be a carry-on from 1921 of a reserve for buying or building permanent premises for the International Labour Office. It was pointed out that it had already been decided (paragraph 88 supra) that pending decision as to the future seat of the League, which it was hoped would be taken up next year, the Labour Office should remain in rented premises, and that this credit was therefore as yet unnecessary.

Finally, as M. Thomas pressed for something to be voted to him, so that he might in next year's Committee show that there was a definite policy, it was resolved that a sum of 20,000 gold francs should be substitued for the original 500,000, the said 20,000 to be employed in preliminary investigations, such as the drawing up of plans, or possibly on the purchase of an option.

118. The budget discussions were on the whole quite satisfactory. Owing largely to pressure exerted by India last year, the estimates are now much fuller, and in particular the Labour Office has given detailed figures instead of globular sums. As regards the examination of these, although Sir W. Meyer and Sir James Allen (New Zealand), who gave him generally uniform support, were not able to obtain all the reductions they would have liked, they did effect several material cuts, which have been already mentioned, and in regard to these received useful support from the Brazilian Delegate (M. Barboza Carneiro), who commanded some following from the Latin-American States.

Action by the Assembly.

119. M. van Eysinga's Report, setting forth the Committee's actions in regard to the budget and financial administration generally (Appendix III, Annex 8), came before the Assembly on the 3rd October. The figure of 20,758,945 gold francs given on the first page of M. van Eysinga's Report in respect of the budget for 1922 has now to be raised by 100,000 gold francs, with reference to the decision in regard to Albania referred to in paragraph 155 (Appendix II, Resolution No. 20).

M. van Eysinga made an effective speech in support of the Report, and Sir W. Meyer followed him with a speech, which is printed in Appendix IV (Annex 4). The recommendations and resolutions were then unanimously accepted (Appendix II, Resolution No. 21).

An important decision, as to proposals involving expenditure being submitted by other Committees to Committee IV prior to being placed before the Assembly, which had been passed on by the Committee to Committee No. I for consideration from a drafting point of view, was, as stated in paragraph 42, formally passed at a subsequent sitting on the 6th October as an amendment of the Assembly's Rules of Procedure (Appendix II, Resolution No. 31).

Work of Committee No. V. (Humanitarian Questions).

THE TRAFFIC IN OPIUM.

120. At the meeting of the 13th September the Committee began the discussion of the Report of the Advisory Committee on Opium and the Report of the Council on that Report. All that emerged from a very vague and general preliminary discussion was a resolution in the following terms:—

"This Committee recommends to the Assembly that the various Governments be invited, where they see no objection, to furnish to the Secretariat, in addition to the official annual Report, any information concerning the illicit production, manufacture, or trade in opium or other noxious drugs, which they think likely to be useful to the Committee in the execution of its duties."

121. In view of the dangerous character of the last recommendation contained in the Council Resolution (printed in Appendix III, Annex 9) to be subsequently discussed, the attendance was procured at Geneva of the Indian member of the Advisory Committee (Mr J. Campbell). Briefly, while the Advisory Committee had drawn attention to the very unsatisfactory position in China in respect of opium production there, and proposed that the matter should be brought to the notice of the Chinese authorities, Mr. Wellington Koo, who had been nominated reporter by the Council in respect of this matter, suggested the elimination of that recommendation. On the other hand, he proposed to ask the Advisory Committee, in view of "the general desire" to limit opium production to strictly medicinal and scientific purposes, to consider the institution of an enquiry as to the average requirements for these purposes in the different countries. This was going far beyond the provisions of the Hague Convention, which recognised the legitimate use of raw opium under due restriction.

122. When the discussion was resumed on the 14th September, with reference to the resolution of the Council on Mr. Koo's report upon the recommendations of the Advisory Committee, Mr. Sastri delivered a speech which made a profound impression upon the Committee. He pointed out that the report of a special expert body had been set aside without adequate reasons being given, and, commenting on Mr. Koo's proposal, endorsed by the Council, that the question of making representations to China regarding her poppy cultivation should be deferred, emphasised the infructuous sacrifices of India on behalf of China and the present position of the latter country as the leading opium producer of the world. As regards recommendation 7 of the Council's resolution, inviting the Advisory Committee to report on "the possibility of instituting an enquiry to determine approximately the average requirements of raw and prepared opium specified in Chapters I and II of the Convention for medicinal and scientific purposes in different countries," Mr. Sastri pointed out that the terms of this recommendation must be read with Mr. Koo's preliminary report, in which the object of the resolution was clearly stated to be the eventual limitation of poppy cultivation to strictly medicinal and scientific purposes. He emphasised the fact that this object was not among those which the Hague Convention was drawn up to attain, and urged that action in the sense suggested was ultra vires of the League. He then attacked the proposal on its merits, pointed out the hardship such limitation would entail upon the people of India, many of whom were far from dispensaries and medical advice, and had for generations taken opium in moderate amounts as a febrifuge, and explained that action in the direction contemplated by Mr. Koo would be practically effective in regard to India only among the opium producing nations. Turkey had not acceded to the Hague Convention, Persia had signed with a reservation that robbed her signature of practical value, and no attempt at restriction of cultivation in China had the slightest chance of success in the existing circumstances of that country.

India was quite ready, when the time came, to consider a further advance on the position as it was left by the Hague Convention. But, owing to the war, that Convention had only lately come into general application, and it was essential to secure due observance of its provisions, in China as elsewhere, before trying to occupy fresh ground.

123. At the meeting of 17th September, Mr. Wellington Koo made his reply to Mr. Sastri. He opened his exposition by an account, on the usual lines followed by anti-opium societies, of the history of the wars with China; and the burden of his introduction was the heroic struggle of China against the Western Powers, which (he said) finally forced opium upon that reluctant country at the point of the bayonet. He then narrated the history of what happened between 1908 and 1917, and acknowledged the great assistance India had rendered to China. Recrudescence of cultivation since the latter year he admitted; but while refusing to accept Mr. Sastri's statement that China's production of opium amounted to four-fifths of the total output of the world, he made no effort to challenge the accuracy of that estimate. He asserted that it was not his personal intervention which had led to the resolution Mr. Sastri challenged, and explained that recommendation 5 of the Advisory Committee was dropped by the Council, as it involved direct interference by the Council in the internal affairs of China, and was also unnecessary in view of the action which the Chinese Government had taken to ascertain the facts as they now existed regarding opium cultivation in China. Sir John Jordan, who acted as one of the assessors on the Advisory Committee, had expressed himself satisfied with this action—the appointment of seven Chinese High Commissioners to ascertain the real position and to enforce the existing laws.

He thought that Mr. Sastri had misunderstood the purport and scope of the draft recommendation (7) of the Council. There was no desire to embark on an immediate campaign against the production of opium otherwise than for medical and scientific purposes. All that was contemplated was an enquiry, if the Advisory Committee agreed that such an enquiry could profitably be made, which would give the Assembly and the Council information necessary for the formulation of a reasoned policy. Such information the Council was fully competent to collect. If restriction of production was finally approved by the League as their definite policy, India would be asked to co-operate; she would not be compelled to adopt that policy. Mr. Koo laid great stress on the point that this policy, if definitely decided on, could be postponed to any date, however remote.

124. The Committee then proceeded to vote on the various individual recommendations contained in the Council's draft resolution. Recommendations 1, 2, 4 and 5 were unanimously adopted and recommendations 3, 6 and 7 were referred, at Mr. Balfour's suggestion, to a Sub-Committee constituted as follows:—Mr. Sastri (India), Mr. Wellington Koo (China), Mlle. Bonnevie (Norway), M. Avramovitch (Serbia), M. van Swinderen (Netherlands), Professor Gilbert Murray (South Africa), M. Hennessy (France).

125. This Sub-Committee held several meetings on the 19th and 20th September, and commenced with a discussion in respect of the terms of recommendation 3 of the resolution, which is as follows:—

"That the provisional Health Committee of the League, or any other similar organisation, be asked to undertake an enquiry to determine approximately the average requirements of the drugs specified in Chapter III of the International Opium Convention, for medical and other legitimate purposes in different countries."

M. Hennessy (France), supported by M. Avramovitch (Serb-Croat-Slovene State), took strong exception to the terms of this proposal, especially to the intervention it involved of the Health Organisation of the League. They pointed out the danger, and, indeed, the illegality, of inquisitorial inquiries in respect of the internal arrangements of the various States. Sir Malcolm Delevinge, who attended the Sub-Committee as having been British "expert" on the Opium Advisory Committee, said it was too late to take this point, as the Council had referred the matter to the Health Organisation, which was considering it.

This evoked immediate and strong protests from the delegates of France and the Netherlands as being a usurpation by the Council of the functions of the Assembly. Professor Gilbert Murray contended that the Council's recommendation was not a usurpation but merely a well-intentioned method to facilitate the progress of investigation, provided the Assembly approved this. This view did not find favour with the protesting delegates, but they agreed to accept the assurance that the Council had not intended to usurp the Assembly's functions.

A representative of the Provisional Health Organisation, who attended, explained that his Committee were only at present engaged on quite tentative inquiries in regard to the possibility of obtaining the statistics desired by the Council, and that no definite decision had as yet been arrived at on this point, and gave the assurance that in any case no inquisitorial inquiries would be made in the countries concerned. He in fact accepted the view expressed by the delegates of France and Serbia that any information needed must be supplied by the Governments concerned.

One of the Persian delegates (Prince Arfa-ed-Dowleh), who, although not an original member of this Sub-Committee, was subsequently added to it, delivered a speech which was much to the point. He indicated the dangers of interfering with secular habits in Oriental countries, and asked how, if and when the League had decided the amount of opium production which should be allowed to the world in general, this would be distributed among the producing States. He inquired further how they would deal with a country like Afghanistan, which produced some opium, but is outside the League's sphere.

It was finally decided to accept this portion of the Council's resolution, but to amplify it by an explanation, to form part of the resolution, designed to meet the various criticisms advanced.

126. Paragraph 6 of the Council Resolution, which shelved consideration of the recommendation of the Advisory Committee that representations should be made to the Chinese authorities as to the opium situation in that country, was then discussed. Mr. Sastri recapitulated the arguments against Mr. Koo's shelving proposal, which had been adopted by the Council, and in favour of adopting the proposal of the Opium Advisory Committee. He suggested that the wording of the recommendation might be modified in order to avoid any injury to Chinese susceptibilities; but he urged strongly that its substance must be maintained unless the League of Nations were prepared to neglect the duties which the Covenant, read with the Hague Convention, imposed on them. He showed that China was at present the crux of the opium position: and he stressed the argument that if the League of Nations refused to take notice of the admitted failure of China to make her declared policy effective, then all attempts at suppression by the League must be abandoned. Professor Murray agreed generally with Mr. Sastri, but asked that the wording of the Opium Advisory Committee's recommendation be somewhat toned down; China's temporary representative (Mr. Koo being engaged elsewhere) preferred not to speak; M. Hennessy (France) agreed with Mr. Sastri and Professor Murray; and M. van Swinderen (Netherlands) expressed his concurrence also. It was decided that an effort should be made to secure an agreed text with Mr. Wellington Koo on these lines. This text could then be considered at the next meeting.

127. As regards paragraph 7 of the Council Resolution: —

> "That in view of the world-wide interest in the attitude of the League towards the opium question and of the general desire to reduce and restrict the cultivation and production of opium to strictly medicinal and scientific purposes, the Advisory Committee on Traffic in Opium be requested to consider and report at its next meeting on the possibility of instituting an enquiry to determine approximately the average requirements of raw and prepared opium specified in Chapters I and II of the Convention for medicinal and scientific purposes in different countries,"

Mr. Sastri proposed an amendment, which Sir William Meyer had originally suggested to Mr. Koo in personal conference, viz., the substitution of "legitimate" for "medicinal and scientific" where these words occurred in the resolution. After some discussion this was unanimously accepted, the word "strictly" being also omitted in the first portion of the resolution. Mr. Koo, who again failed to attend the meeting, sent a message by his representative to the effect that, in his opinion, any modification of a resolution approved by the Council would form a most dangerous precedent. The Sub-Committee did not, however, accept this.

128. When the Sub-Committee next met Mr. Koo endeavoured to reopen the questions previously discussed. Mr. Sastri raised a point of order on this, but the Chairman held that, as Mr. Koo had been prevented by force majeure from attending on previous occasions (he had to attend Council meetings) he should be allowed to state his case fully. Mr. Koo then advanced every possible plea in favour of the Council Resolution as regards all points which had come under discussion; and he finally entrenched himself behind an alleged constitutional point, that the Assembly had no power to alter a Resolution of the Council. The Chairman disagreed as to this and was supported by the delegates of France, Serbia and Norway. It was finally decided that an addition should be made to paragragh 5 of the Council Resolution, adding "and of China" after the words "Contracting Powers having treaties with China," thereby calling attention to China's obligations under Article 15 of the Hague Convention; and that formal note should be made of the action said to have been taken by China to ascertain the facts as regards the recrudescence of poppy cultivation there. Mr. Sastri accepted this. Mr. Koo intimated that he reserved the right to raise his "constitutional" point in full Committee and in the Assembly.

As regards paragraph 7 of the Council Resolution, Mr. Koo repeated all his old arguments, but obtained no support. He then suggested that the Council Resolution should be merely expanded so as to cover the consumption of opium "for other legitimate purposes." Mr. Sastri objected to this; the Norwegian Delegate concurred, and on a vote being taken Mr. Koo alone supported the Council Resolution as it stood, all the other delegates voting for the amendment proposed by Mr. Sastri and agreed to at the meeting that morning.

129. At a final meeting of the Sub-Committee on the 21st to consider the draft report to be submitted to the Plenary Committee, M. van Swinderen, as Chairman, explained that he had had a lengthy conversation with Mr. Wellington Koo, and was impressed with the desirability of avoiding any reference in the report to the possibility of a conflict between the Council and the Assembly. He had drafted the report most carefully with that end in view, and he understood that, if the Sub-Committee generally accepted the draft, it would be accepted by Mr. Koo also. The draft was then unanimously adopted. From India's point of view the report was suitable; it reproduced correctly the decisions arrived at by the Sub-Committee, and there was nothing in the introductory matter to which objection could reasonably be taken. The report represents the complete triumph of India's very legitimate objections to the original Council proposals, and this result was very largely due to the convincing presentation of her case by Mr. Sastri and the working up of details by Mr. Campbell.

130. In discussing the report, M. Hennessy made an attempt to get the word "legitimate" defined, so as to prevent a possible large expansion of its meaning and consequent abuse; Mr. Sastri objected to this, and pointed out that it would be much safer not to attempt any definition. He called attention to the declared object of the Hague Convention, which was to suppress the "abuse" of opium; "abuse" was not defined in the Convention, and we should not attempt to define "legitimate" here. The Serbian Delegate agreed. Professor Murray, however, suggested that a direct reference, by way of example, might later be made to legitimate uses of opium in India; and to this Mr. Sastri had no objection.

131. The Sub-Committee unanimously agreed to exclude "prepared opium" from their resolution, in view of the provisions of Chapter II of the Hague Convention, which form a self-contained code. The Convention requires "the gradual and effective suppression . . . of the use of prepared opium"; in these circumstances an enquiry into the legitimate consumption of prepared opium would obviously be inappropriate.

132. At the full Committee meeting of the 21st, M. van Swinderen, the rapporteur, explained the conclusion arrived at by the Sub-Committee, and after some discussion the report was unanimously adopted.

It was proposed, on the suggestion of Mlle. Bonnevie (Norway), supported by Professor Gilbert Murray, that the report should contain a passage asking the Council to consider whether all nations specially concerned with the growth or manufacture of opium or its derivatives should not be represented on the Technical Advisory Committee, and special reference was made to Germany as being a large producer of cocaine and other drugs.

This was carried, and it is obviously desirable that Germany should be represented.

133. The following proposals were then passed on the motion of Sir Malcolm Delevingne:—

(1) That the Committee recommend to the Assembly to urge upon all States Members of the League which have not yet signed and ratified the Opium Convention to do so as soon as possible.

(2) That the second recommendation of the Advisory Committee as to the making by each State of an annual report on the execution of the Convention (which was adopted by the Council but does not appear in the resolutions of the Council on page 72 of the Report to the Assembly) be approved.

(3) That, in order to facilitate the execution of the Convention, the Committee recommend to the Assembly to urge all States Members of the League to intimate to the Secretariat as soon as possible their acceptance of the fourth recommendation of the Advisory Committee as to the requirement of import certificates.

134. At the last moment M. Hennessy (France) proposed that a fresh international conference should be held in order to deal effectively with deleterious drugs not precisely covered by the terms of The Hague Convention; he asserted that manufacture of such drugs was now being carried out, but did not produce convincing evidence of this. M. Sastri took the line that a fresh conference was inadvisable until the ground covered by The Hague Convention had been more fully secured; but he did not desire to object, especially as the proposed recommendation did not settle the matter definitely, but merely called for the opinion of the Advisory Committee.

135. The conclusions of the Committee were embodied in a report presented to the Assembly by M. Ferreira (Portugal) on the 30th September (Appendix III, Annex 9). In the course of his observations on the recommendations of the Committee, the rapporteur made the statement that in India the population "has cultivated the opium poppy from time immemorial." It was pointed out privately that this was incorrect in present conditions, poppy cultivation being restricted to certain definite tracts, and in his verbal report to the Assembly M. Ferreira omitted the passage. Steps were then taken to ensure that the passage would also be omitted from the final official text of the report.

136. It had been finally arranged by Sir William Meyer with Mr. Wellington Koo that neither China nor India should address the Assembly on the subject of opium, and the debate was brief, being confined to representatives of Persia, France and the Netherlands, the last mentioned (M. van Swinderen) merely intervening as representing the Power under whose auspices The Hague Convention had been summoned and which had hitherto been its guardian. The speech delivered by M. Hennessy (France) was an explanation of his recommendation above referred to.

The Assembly unanimously passed the resolution which had been put before it and which will be found in Appendix II (Resolution No. 15). Paragraphs 4 and 8 of this resolution are those dealing with the questions which had been in issue between the Indian and Chinese Delegates.

136A. It may be added that subsequently the Council once more appointed Mr. Wellington Koo as their rapporteur on the subject of the Assembly's resolution, and that he proposed, and obtained, its acceptance, suggesting that, with reference to paragraph 10 of the resolution, Germany and the Serb-Croat-Slovene State should be asked to send representatives to the Technical Advisory Committee.

Deportation of Women and Children in Turkey and Adjoining Countries.

137. On the 23rd September the Assembly passed unanimously a resolution (Appendix II, Resolution 8), which was presented by Mlle. Vacaresco (Rumania), in an eloquent speech, and had been approved in Committee V, on the subject of the deportation of women and children in Turkey and the adjoining countries. The resolution recommended the establishment in Constantinople of a Commissioner of the League of Nations, who should be assisted by a Committee consisting of the High Commissioners of France, Great Britain and Italy, and should be placed in control of a mixed Board dealing with the reclamation of women and children. It also proposed that the Neutral House for the temporary reception of women and children should be reorganised and placed under the Commission of Enquiry, and that additional Neutral Houses should be opened as circumstances admit.

TRAFFIC IN WOMEN AND CHILDREN.

138. The Committee discussed an exposé by Mlle. Forchhammer (Denmark) on the present position in regard to what used to be the "white slave traffic," but is now, to avoid racial distinction, to be styled the "traffic in women and children."

The position, as it stood at the close of last year's Assembly, is indicated in Resolution 27 of Appendix II to the Indian Delegation's Report. There was an international agreement dealing with this subject in 1904, to which India was a party, and a convention in 1910, which India abstained from agreeing to, on the ground that the age limits were inappropriate.

139. In accordance with the Assembly's wish of last year, a special Conference was held last June, at which India was very ably represented by Mr. S. M. Edwardes, C.I.E., whose report indicated that the recommendations of this Conference for a new convention might be accepted by India, subject to certain stipulations in regard to age and other matters. A draft convention embodying the "Final Act" of the Conference, which sums up its proposals had been drawn up by the British representative on the Council, and this now came before Committee V.

The resolution proposed by Mlle. Forchhammer and redrafted by Professor Gilbert Murray was to the following effect:—

(a) That the Assembly confirm the Final Act of the Conference on the Traffic in Women and Children.

(b) That the amended draft convention based on the Final Act of the Conference be adopted, and that a protocol of signature be opened at the Assembly.

(c) That all Delegates be requested to communicate immediately with their respective Governments asking for full powers to sign the protocol.

140. For some rather obscure reason the French Delegate opposed this procedure very vehemently, and raised the point that it was ultra vires for the League to draw up a convention, overlooking apparently that this method had been adopted last year in connection with the International Tribunal at The Hague. The French contention that at any rate there should be a preliminary reference to Committee I, which deals with constitutional questions relating to the Covenant, was rejected by 17 votes to 8, and by 17 votes to 5 the Committee accepted the resolution as drafted by Professor Gilbert Murray.

141. In the course of the discussion Mr. Sastri made it clear that India could not accept the age limit (21) now proposed for the protection of girls. India's internal legislation fixed this age at 16, and having regard to early maturity in tropical countries, that age could not be expediently exceeded while it would obviously be undesirable to have a special higher limit for the benefit of a very limited number of non-Indians. (This in effect was the argument which India had put forward against joining the convention of 1910.)

India's objection to the age limit was supported by the representatives of Japan and Siam, and it was decided that their reservations should be indicated.

The Committee instructed the rapporteur (Professor Murray) to provide for this in the draft convention, and to make sure that the latter did not go beyond the recommendations of the Final Act adopted by the Conference.

As regards signature of the convention before the Assembly dissolved, Sir William Meyer was unable to take this course, as the Government of India had not yet had the opportunity of expressing their views as regards either the report of Mr. Edwardes or the draft convention itself.

142. At a later meeting Professor Murray's report, in which he had been assisted by a small drafting Committee, was brought up. They proposed some slight verbal alterations in the convention, to make it follow more closely the wording of certain recommendations of the Conference, and expressed the opinion that the reservations as to age by India, Japan and Siam, which were approved by the Committee, might be made on behalf of these Governments at the time of signing by their representatives, and need not involve an alteration of the text itself.

143. Professor Murray then proposed a resolution in verbal amendment of that referred to in paragraph 139 supra, to the following effect:—

"That the Assembly, having taken into consideration the Final Act of the Conference at Geneva on traffic in women and children approved by the Council, expresses the wish that those of its provisions which require conventional form be adopted in that form by the Members of the League with the least possible delay.

"That for the purpose the Assembly recommends that the Delegates, who have the necessary full powers to sign the draft convention annexed, should sign it without delay, and that those who do not yet possess them be invited to communicate immediately with their respective Governments in order to obtain the necessary powers to sign."

The French Delegate (M. Hennessy) said that France must also make reservations as to age in connection with her tropical colonies, and as there was not sufficient time left to consider the draft convention thoroughly, he suggested that a new special Conference should be held to examine it. This proposal was supported by M. Avramovitch (Serb-Croat-Slovene State), but the revised resolution was carried by 14 votes to 2. Mr. Balfour, in the course of the discussion, observed that an age reservation would also have to be made in regard to certain of the British Crown Colonies, and that for the present he could only sign on behalf of the United Kingdom.

Action by the Assembly.

144. On the 29th September Professor Gilbert Murray (South Africa) presented the Committee's report to the Assembly. Having explained the matters at issue, and noted the reservation by the representatives of India, Siam, and Japan in respect of the age question, he put forward the resolution referred to above.

145. The French Delegate put forward the alternative proposal that the Assembly should invite the Governments of the constituent States of the League to examine the "Final Act" of the Conference of 30th June last and the draft convention drawn up by the British representative on the Council of the League; that States should be asked to indicate within four months whether they would agree to have a protocol of signature in respect of this convention opened at Geneva, and that such protocol should be opened if and when two-thirds of the States consulted had sent in favourable replies in respect thereof; also that if not less than one-half of the States of the League asked for an entirely fresh Conference to consider the convention, this Conference should be at once convened.

M. Hanotaux (France) said that he took exception to the resolution before the Assembly because the convention was the work, not of a Committee composed of delegates of the Powers, but of what might be called a private drafting Committee. (There seemed to be a good deal of jealousy on the part of France that Great Britain had prepared this draft without preliminary reference to her.) He contended that the convention differed in various respects from the "Final Act" of the special Conference of June last, and that it would appear to exclude colonies and dependencies. Professor Murray replied that the original British draft had been revised by a Committee of Jurists in co-operation with French experts, and that it had been again gone into, and revised, by two members of the Assembly who had been elected Judges of the Permanent Court of International Justice.

146. Mr. Balfour pleaded eloquently for the adoption of the original resolution, pointing out the delay that the French proposal would involve, and asking the Assembly not to admit any avoidable delays in respect of a traffic which was a discredit to the world. The same line was taken by other speakers, e.g., M. La Fontaine (Belgium) and M. Ador (Switzerland), while M. van Swinderen (Netherlands) asked whether M. Hanotaux would agree to shorten the four months' period in his resolution to two months, and suggested that the protocol might be opened for signature as soon as one-third of the States of the League had expressed their approval of the convention. M. Hanotaux expressed his willingness to adopt this suggestion, but it was not satisfactory to the great majority of the Delegations, and on a division the French proposal was thrown out by 25 votes to 8, the French supporters being the Netherlands, Poland, Czecho-Slovakia, Serb-Croat-Slovene State, Costa Rica, Cuba and Venezuela.

The original resolution was passed without a dissentient vote, France abstaining. (Appendix II, Resolution No. 14.)

The draft convention as it now stands is printed in Appendix III (Annex 10).

TYPHUS.

147. At the meeting of the 14th September, M. Ador (Switzerland) read a statement summarising the action that had been taken by the Special Epidemics Committee appointed to administer the funds raised from Governments and individuals for combating typhus and other epidemic diseases in Poland, and considered that the work had been very successful, having regard to the paucity of funds available. He pointed out that the difficulties were increased by the present economic situation in Russia, and begged the Committee to pass a resolution asking the Governments of the League to grant adequate subsidies. On the motion of Mr Wellington Koo, a resolution was adopted to the effect that the Assembly be asked to recommend that the organisation of the Epidemic Committees be continued, and, if necessary, extended to other countries, and that the Presidents of the Assembly and the Council should be asked to issue a special appeal to Members of the League for further contributions.

148. In presenting the Committee's report to the Assembly, M. Ador (Switzerland) said that out of the money promised by various States only 120,000*l.* had actually been paid, France being among the countries which had not yet contributed, and that meanwhile the Epidemics Committee set up to administer these funds had been able materially to improve the working of the health organisation in Poland. The resolution referred to above was then passed unanimously. (Appendix II, Resolution No. 5.) Action by the Assembly.

THE INTERNATIONAL CO-ORDINATION OF INTELLECTUAL WORK.

149. This was a matter which the Assembly had decided to take up last year (vide paragraph 71 of the Indian Delegates' Report). The Committee expressed approval of a draft resolution prepared by M. Bourgeois (France), which had been put forward by the Council, and which was to the effect that a Committee should be set up "to examine international questions regarding intellectual co-operation and education," which should submit to the next Assembly a report on measures that might with advantage be taken by the League to promote international co-operation with regard to intellectual work.

The Committee resolved that this special Committee should consist, as proposed by M. Bourgeois, of not more than 12 members, to be selected by the Council, and on the proposal of the Norwegian Delegate it was decided to indicate that these members might include women. In the resolution as approved by the Committee, a reference to methods of education, which had been proposed in the Bourgeois draft, was omitted, as it was thought undesirable to create the impression that the League was anxious to interfere with national educational systems.

150. Professor Gilbert Murray (South Africa) who was appointed to put the matter before the Assembly, presented the Committee's report at the plenary meeting on the 22nd September, and indicated in the course of his speech that action for the co-ordination of intellectual work would be specially valuable in three main respects:—(1) for the protection of intellectual workers who in many countries had been reduced to a condition of great distress; (2) for the practical advancement of knowledge, which had been seriously impeded by the war; (3) for the spread of the international spirit. Action by the Assembly.

This resolution was carried unanimously. (Appendix II, Resolution No. 4.)

EASTERN GALICIA.

151. On the 27th September the Assembly adopted without discussion a resolution asking for expedition on the part of the Allied and Associated Powers on the subject of determining the status of Eastern Galicia originally proposed by Mr. Doherty (Canada) and approved with slight alterations by Committee No. V. (Appendix II, Resolution No. 11.)

Work of Committee No. VI (Political Questions .

ADMISSION OF NEW STATES TO THE LEAGUE.

152. The candidates were Esthonia, Latvia and Lithuania—who were not admitted last year on the ground that their internal conditions were at the time very uncertain and that the League could not well protect them in the event of Russian re-vindication—and Hungary.

The Committee now thought that the time had come for the full admission of the three States first-named, which had been permitted last year to join the League's technical organisations, and this recommendation was endorsed by the Assembly.

153. As regards Hungary, the Hungarian emissaries present in Geneva decided to ask that their application for admission should be postponed till next year, and this was a wise course to take as at the recent Assembly Hungary's application would certainly have been rejected in view of her attitude in regard to the territories she was to cede to Austria and other treaty obligations. (Appendix II, Resolution No. 17.)

ALBANIA.

154. The Committee sitting of the 26th September was devoted to a rather stormy discussion, in which the protagonists were the Albanian and Serbian delegates, as to the situation in Albania.

The Albanian delegate (Bishop Fan Nòli) had proposed that the League of Nations should request the principal Governments concerned to compel the Serbs to withdraw from Albanian territory they occupied in defiance of the boundaries fixed in 1913 ; that a commission should be sent to report on the situation on the spot : and that the League should use its influence to obtain de jure recognition of the Tirana Government.

Mr. Fisher (Great Britain) indicated that the actual delimitation of the frontiers of Albania had been referred to the Conference of Ambassadors, that the British view was that their decision when announced would be binding, and that the Greek and Serb-Croat-Slovene Governments had bound themselves to accept this decision, but the Albanian Government had not done so. He urged Bishop Fan Noli to follow the example of his neighbours. The Marquis Imperiali (Italy) agreed with Mr. Fisher that the Conference of Ambassadors alone was competent to deal with this frontier delimitation. Lord Robert Cecil proposed two resolutions, viz., that the Assembly should (1) recommend to Albania acceptance of the decision that would be come to by the Supreme Council on the report of the Ambassadors Conference, and (2) should request the Council of the League, after the decision of the Supreme Council had been given, to appoint forthwith a commission of three impartial persons to proceed to Albania and report as to the execution of this decision. M. Reynald (France) and M. Frangulis (Greece) opposed this latter resolution, but after some discussion it was carried, as also the first.

Lord Robert Cecil also obtained approval to a suggestion that representations should be made in respect of speedy decision by the Ambassadors Conference in regard to the territorial disputes between Albania, Greece, and the Serb-Croat-Slovene State.

Action by the Assembly.

155. These resolutions were presented by Lord Robert Cecil to the Assembly on the 3rd October, with a supplementary resolution that, in order to provide for the expenses of the Committee of Enquiry proposed, the sum of 100,000 gold francs should be provided in the budget of 1922. There was considerable discussion, in which the representatives of Albania, Italy, Serb-Croat-Slovene State, Greece, France, and Mr. Balfour took part, and the Greek delegate (M. Casangis) proposed that to the Committee of Enquiry should be added representatives of Greece, Albania, and Serbia. This amendment was, however, withdrawn on the appeal of Lord Robert Cecil, who pointed out that the addition of interested parties was not likely to help the Commission to speedy and impartial decisions. The resolutions were then adopted, with the proviso that that relating to the vote of credit must be further considered in connection with the discussion of the Budget. (Appendix II, Resolution No. 20.)

FAMINE IN RUSSIA.

156. On the 9th September Dr. Nansen moved the following resolution in the Assembly :—

" That the Assembly refer to a Committee the question of the present famine in Russia.

"That the Committee consider whether it is advisable for the Assembly (1) to make a pressing appeal to the Governments to provide the necessary credits, and (2) to invite the Council to offer the services of the Organisation for International Credits (established by the Council of the League in connection with the Ter Meulen scheme) to act as trustee for the financial control of any credits made available and for the supervision of any security provided by the Russian Government against such credits."

In a speech which he made in introducing the resolution, Dr. Nansen said that the action of the International Conference held at Geneva on the 15th August in appointing him High Commissioner for Relief Work in Russia had enabled him to study the situation on the spot. He had satisfied himself that the condition of famine in the affected districts had not been exaggerated, and that an expenditure of 30*l.* million was needed in order to obtain the necessary grain supplies from outside Russia. He considered that adequate control could be exercised, both over relief supplies and credits advanced to Russia, by the Western Governments.

157. The resolution was referred to Committee No. VI, which reported on the subject to the Assembly on the 30th September.

The report was introduced by M. Motta, who stated that although the Committee could not adopt the suggestions contained in Dr. Nansen's resolution, it had decided that it could not remain indifferent or abstain from all action. As regards the question of official credits, the Committee considered that as the Supreme Council had appointed an International Relief Committee, to meet at Brussels on 6th October, which would contain representatives of 27 Governments, including the United States of America and Germany, the League should not take up a question which was to be decided by another body. In the matter of the agreements which had been concluded between Dr. Nansen and the Soviets, the Assembly was not competent to do more than affirm its confidence in Dr. Nansen. On the other hand, the Committee had decided that it was necessary to address an appeal to public opinion and to the charitable organisations of the world; that it was desirable to call attention to the claims for relief of Armenia, Azerbaidjan, and Georgia; and that Governments might help by surrendering military stores of clothing and provisions accumulated during the war. M. Motta also associated himself with two supplementary resolutions proposed by Lord Robert Cecil, the first a motion of confidence in Dr. Nansen, and the second expressly disengaging the responsibility of the League for Russian relief in view of the statement made by several delegates to the effect that their Governments would not grant official credits.

Dr. Nansen mourned eloquently over the defeat of his resolution, which he said had not been proposed in order to strengthen appeals to private charities, which needed no such spur. It was a disastrous mistake to throw the burden upon these organisations, which could not cope with the situation. The American organisation was feeding 3,000,000 children; the Pope had given a million lire; the "Save the Children Fund" could feed a quarter of a million; and the Second International at Amsterdam had contributed 10,000,000 marks. But this was not enough. The Governments of Norway, Sweden, Esthonia, Latvia and Lithuania had already acted, and he was convinced that the people of Europe would compel their Governments to revise their present decision. Unless this were done the Brussels Conference could effect nothing. His agreement with the Soviets had been criticised, but if no help were forthcoming until a Committee of Enquiry had been sent into Russia and a new agreement drawn up, then that help would come too late.

M. Spalaikovitch (Serb-Croat-Slovene State) then proposed the following amendment to the Committee's resolution:—

"The Assembly most severely condemns the economic and political system of the Soviet Government and holds it chiefly responsible for the present catastrophe in Russia and for the attempt to conduct a criminal propaganda with the object of causing similar catastrophes in other countries."

Mr. Fisher begged that this might be withdrawn, and by way of propitiation proposed to substitute the following for Lord Robert Cecil's motion of confidence in Dr. Nansen:—

"The Assembly has no sufficient information as to the influences by which the Soviet Government is moved, or as to the conditions under which it is working, but it considers that Dr. Nansen's successful repatriation of prisoners of war augurs well for any enterprise he may be prepared to undertake for the relief of famine-stricken regions in Armenia, Azerbaidjan, Georgia and Russia.

Both Lord Robert Cecil and M. Spalaikovitch agreed to this, and the resolution was passed by the Assembly, together with the resolutions put forwarded by the Committee and the further resolution proposed by Lord Robert Cecil, and referred to above, which emphasised that the main reason why the Assembly could take no official action was because delegates had stated that their Governments could not give credits. (Appendix II, Resolution No. 16).

NATIONAL HOME FOR TURKISH-ARMENIANS.

158. A resolution moved in the Assembly by Professor Gilbert Murray, urging the Council of the League of Nations to press upon the Supreme Council the necessity, when peace was finally made between the Turks and the Allies, for safeguarding the future of Armenia and providing the Armenians with a national home independent of Turkish rule was adopted by Committee No. VI, and unanimously passed in the Assembly on the 21st September, though M. Bourgeois (France) held that this matter was outside the competence of the Assembly, and even of the Council of the League, and asked to make a reservation on this point. The resolution as passed by the Assembly is printed in Appendix II (Resolution 3).

MANDATES.

159. The Committee also considered a resolution moved by Lord Robert Cecil in respect of Mandates which ran as follows:—

"The Assembly regrets the delay which has taken place in the definition of the Mandates, recognises that the Council is not responsible for that delay, and is of opinion that it would be desirable that the Mandates of the A and B classes should be forthwith defined." (For definition of A, B and C Mandates, see the Indian Delegation's Report of last year, paragraph 146.)

The consideration of this motion was referred to a Sub-Committee on which the representatives of the British Empire were Lord Robert Cecil himself, Mr. Fisher and Mr. Doherty (Canada).

Action by the Assembly.

160. The report of the Sub-Committee, which was presided over by Dr. Nansen (Norway) was approved by the full Committee and considered by the Assembly at the sitting of the 23rd September.

The Sub-Committee's report fully endorsed the view taken in Lord Robert Cecil's resolution and proceeded to add various remarks. The principal of these were that—

(1) The Committee felt it would be premature to press for immediate action in respect of A Mandates, but that B Mandates, which are founded on the Treaty of Versailles, might be more expeditiously dealt with.

(2) It was consequently desirable that the Council should at the earliest possible opportunity formally approve the application of the mandate system to Togoland and the Cameroons, and adopt in principle the declaration signed by the representatives of the French and British Governments on 10th July 1919, as to the respective spheres which are to be placed under the authority of each Government.

(3) It was desirable that the Assembly should invite the Council to state that it is satisfied by its perusal of the draft Mandates that, generally speaking, the principles there laid down carry out the objects which the Covenant has in view, and lay down adequate safeguards for the rights of all Members of the League; and that the Council should express its confidence that Mandatory Powers will continue the administration of the territories committed to their charge in the spirit of the draft Mandates, till it becomes possible to have their Mandates definitely regularised.

Some discussion took place on this, and Lord Robert Cecil, who had been a member of the Sub-Committee, said that personally he would like to see stronger provisions under the B Mandates in regard to the abolition of slavery, the liquor traffic and land. He also had some misgivings as to the provisions of the draft Mandates for Togoland and the Cameroons, which appeared to allow the Mandatories in effect to treat these territories as an integral part of their dominions, but he admitted that there appeared to be no breach of Article 22 of the Covenant. He had associated himself with the report of the Sub-Committee, instead of submitting a minority report, on receiving assurances from the representatives of Great Britain, France and Belgium that their Governments would raise no objection to an examination of reports on the mandated territories by the Mandates Commission set up by the Assembly last year, pending definite regularisation of the situation.

It was then proposed that the Assembly should endorse the Committee's report, and after discussion this was carried unanimously. M. Bourgeois (France) indicated, however, that, while it was the desire of the Council to carry out the work in connection with Mandates as far as possible, he must enter a caveat against any action which might prejudice the negotiations going on between the United States and the principal Allied Powers. The Assembly's resolution is printed in Appendix II (Resolution No. 9), and the Committee's report in Appendix III (Annex 11).

Miscellaneous Questions dealt with in Full Assembly.

Poland and Lithuania.

161. On the 24th September the Assembly took up a whole day, morning and afternoon, in a discussion on the Polish-Lithuanian question in respect of Vilna, etc. This had been debated by the Council on the 19th and 20th, and on the latter day there had been the innovation of the Council's debate being in public. That meeting had been signalised by a very striking and eloquent speech by Mr. Balfour, in which he strongly criticised the action of the two litigants in evading real decision on the proposals of M. Hymans, who, with their consent, had been appointed by the Council to try to obtain agreement between them. Reading between the lines, his criticism was mainly directed against Poland, as the chief sinner by reason of the fact that General Zeligowski is still in possession of Vilna with the evident connivance of the Polish Government.

The Council had passed a resolution to the effect that they unanimously accepted M. Hymans' second draft scheme, which did not differ in principle from the first, the underlying idea of both being that Vilna should be assigned to Lithuania but on a separate cantonal basis; and that as the Assembly was in session, M. Hymans would be asked to explain to them the present position of the dispute "in order that the Assembly may by its authority contribute to a settlement of the question."

M. Hymans made a very fine speech, explaining at length the phases of the negotiations and the difficulties he had encountered from both parties, and he appealed to both to make sacrifices in the cause of peace.

He was followed by M. Miloscz for Lithuania, who said that his Government were ready to accept, with some modifications, M. Hymans' latest final scheme but that the dispute could not be ended till General Zeligowski had evacuated Vilna.

M. Askonasy (Poland) made a very lengthy oration on behalf of his country, but the general impression of the Assembly was well summed up by Lord Robert Cecil, who indicated that the old sympathy of the world with Poland had been materially reduced by the evident connivance of her Government in the Zeligowski coup d'état. He proposed a resolution with a rider suggested by M. Zahle (Denmark), urging the two peoples to come to an agreement, and extending the support of the Assembly to the Council in their handling of the matter. (Appendix II, Resolution No. 10.)

Repatriation of Prisoners of War.

162. Dr. Nansen (Norway) read a report on his operations in regard to the repatriation of prisoners of war, in which he stated, inter alia, that he had received financial support from various Governments to the extent of 425,000*l*., Great Britain having been the most liberal contributor, and that as against these funds some 380,000 people had been returned to their families, many of them from remote parts of the old Russian Empire where communications were exceedingly difficult. He paid tribute to the effective co-operation of the Soviet and German Governments.

A Universal Language.

163. A recommendation, signed by 13 Delegates, including His Highness the Maharao of Kutch, presented to the Assembly a resolution for the encouragement of Esperanto as an universal language. (A similar resolution was put forward last year and rejected—vide paragraph 70 of the Indian Delegation Report on the work of last year's Assembly.) It was decided to postpone the consideration of the question. (Appendix II, Resolution No. 42.)

The Election of the non-permanent Members of the Council.

164. This matter was dealt with at the Assembly meeting on the 5th October, after the Report of Committee No. I on Article 4 of the Covenant had been considered and approved (vide paragraph 38).

It followed that the Assembly was morally bound by its own action to re-elect the existing non-permanent States. But as a formal election was necessary, it was decided that this might be by collective voting for all four States instead of by a ballot for one State at a time as last year. The result was the re-election of Brazil, Spain, Belgium and China.

Concluding remarks.

165. The Assembly broke up on the evening of the 5th October. The work done this year was of a quite solid and useful nature, and the League obtained a considerable amount of prestige by the reference to its Council of the solution of the Upper Silesian question. Whether that prestige will be maintained depends, of course, on the working out in practice of the Council's partition scheme. The coping stone was laid, by the election of judges, to the Tribunal of International Justice, and useful decisions were taken in regard to technical organisations, and with reference to the traffic in women and children, while the question of the reduction of armaments was discussed in a more practical manner than in 1920, though it was felt that no great progress could be made pending the results of the conference at Washington. The Assembly felt itself unable to follow up Dr. Nansen's request for Government credits for the alleviation of the famine in Russia, but expressed full sympathy with his philanthropic crusade.

As regards matters in which India was specially concerned, we obtained complete satisfaction in the matter of the Assembly's redraft of the Council's resolution on the subject of opium; we made ourselves materially felt in Committee IV, and obtained some reductions in expenditure, and the adoption of a resolution as to paying greater attention to representation of nationalities, our own included, in the League Secretariats. We had also the satisfaction of seeing the adoption of the proposal that the Indian Delegation made last year, which was then rejected, for an outside Committee of Control over the estimates and accounts of the Secretariat and the International Labour Bureau. As regards allocation of contributions, we have had for the time being (subject to the ratification of our Government) to accept a provisional scheme in substitution of the Postal Union Scale, which burdens India more than the latter did, but we have obtained, though not in such a definite form as we should have wished, the principle that this scheme is only provisional and that it ought to be replaced by a better.

Our relations with the Dominions representatives, though very friendly, were not so close as last year, as we were at variance over the allocation scheme.

As last year, we received valuable assistance on occasion from the British Delegation and were specially indebted to Mr. Balfour for kindly advice and endeavour to reconcile differences when these arose, as in regard to the allocation scheme, between ourselves and some of the Dominions. As last year again, the delegates of India all worked together in the most cordial and harmonious way.

APPENDIX II.

Resolutions and Recommendations adopted by the Assembly in the course of its Second Session.

(NOTE.—The numeration and wording which follow are not necessarily those which may be ultimately adopted.)

1. APPOINTMENT OF A COMMITTEE TO CONSIDER MOTIONS SUBMITTED TO THE ASSEMBLY (13th September 1921).

The Assembly resolves that a Committee be appointed to advise the Assembly, should occasion arise, as to the inclusion in the agenda of motions submitted during the session.

2. PERMANENT COURT OF INTERNATIONAL JUSTICE (14th September 1921).

The Assembly, in accordance with Article 7 of the Statute of the Permanent Court of International Justice, and notwithstanding Article 21 of its Rules of Procedure, decides that the candidates whose names are included in the list drawn up by the Secretariat, in accordance with Article 7 of the Statute, shall be eligible for election at any ballot held by the Assembly in the course of the same sitting.

3. ARMENIA (21st September 1921).

Seeing that the First Assembly on 18th November 1920 entrusted the Council with the duty of safeguarding the future of Armenia;

And that the Council on 25th February 1921, while holding that the situation in Asia Minor made action for the time being impossible, entrusted the Secretary-General with the duty of watching developments in Armenian affairs with a view to procuring subsequent decisions by the Council;

And that in the meantime the Supreme Council in the revision of the Treaty of Sèvres, proposed to make provision for a national home for the Armenians;

Seeing, further, the probable imminence of a Peace Treaty between Turkey and the Allied Powers at no distant date;

The Assembly urges the Council to press upon the Supreme Council of the Allies the necessity of making provisions in this Treaty for safeguarding the future of Armenia, and in particular of providing the Armenians with a national home entirely independent of Turkish rule.

4. ORGANISATION OF INTELLECTUAL WORK (21st September 1921).

The Assembly approves the draft resolution put forward by M. Léon Bourgeois in the name of the Council: namely, the nomination by the Council of a Committee to examine international questions regarding intellectual co-operation, this Committee to consist of not more than 12 members, and to contain both men and women.

5. THE CAMPAIGN AGAINST TYPHUS IN EASTERN EUROPE (21st September 1921).

The Assembly resolves that, in view of the economical and successful results achieved by the League of Nations Epidemics Commission in reinforcing the preventive sanitary measures undertaken by the Polish Health Administration in the campaign against typhus, the work of the Commission be continued and extended to other countries as necessity arises, provided the Council considers it expedient.

To this end the President of the Assembly and the President of the Council are requested to issue a special appeal to the Members of the League for liberal financial support, and to ask those States which have not found it possible to make available the contributions which they so generously promised to do so as soon as possible.

6. REPORT OF THE ADVISORY AND TECHNICAL COMMITTEE ON COMMUNICATIONS AND TRANSIT (22nd September 1921).

(1) Without prejudice to the terms of paragraph 4 of section 1 of the Resolution of 9th December 1920, relating to the Organisation for Communications and Transit, the general Conferences on Communications and Transit shall meet as of right at the seat of the League on the request of one-half of the Members of the League. Such request shall be addressed to the Secretary-General of the League, and the object and the agenda of the Conference shall be attached to the request. It shall be the duty of the Secretary-General of the League to convene the Conference.

(2) The Assembly, having been informed of the Report of the Advisory and Technical Committee for Communications and Transit on the action taken by the Governments with regard to the resolutions adopted by the Conference on Passports, Customs' Formalities and "Through Tickets" which was held in Paris, October 1920, observed with the keenest satisfaction that a certain number of States have already put into force part of the measures—so important for international relations, and unanimously recommended by this Conference—tending towards the simplification of formalities connected with the obtaining of passports and visas, the reduction of passport prices, and the unification of passport regulations.

The Assembly draws the attention of all States, which have not yet been able to adopt the recommendations of the Conference, to the necessity of reconsidering the question and of informing the Secretary-General of the League of Nations of the solution ultimately reached.

(3) The Assembly proposes that the Members of the League of Nations should grant to the members of the various Committees of the League, during their period of office, every possible facility in the matter of passports, particularly with regard to the regulations affecting visas and the period of their validity.

(4) The Assembly takes note of the designation by the Advisory and Technical Committee for Communications and Transit of a railway expert (national of a riparian State of the Danube), and invites the Committee to proceed also, in its next session, to the designation of one or more than one other expert, specially qualified in the different matters dealt with by this Committee and nationals of other riparian States of the Danube.

7. Rules of Procedure of the Assembly (23rd September 1921).

The Assembly resolves that Rule 20 of the Rules of Procedure of the Assembly, as adopted on 14th November 1920, shall be amended to read as follows:—

"The Assembly shall vote by 'Appel Nominal,' except when the Members of the League of Nations represented at the meeting agree that the method of voting shall be by heads of Delegations rising in their seats, and except in the cases provided for in Rule 21. The 'Appel Nominal' shall be taken in one of the following manners as the Assembly may decide:—

(a) The name of each Delegation shall be called, and one of its members shall reply, 'Yes,' 'No,' or 'Not voting.' The result of the vote shall be recorded and announced to the Assembly; or

(b) The Delegation, etc." (as in the second paragraph of Rule 20).

8. Deportation of Women and Children in Turkey and the Neighbouring Countries (23rd September 1921).

The Assembly resolves:—

(1) That there shall be appointed in Constantinople a Commissioner of the League of Nations whose appointment shall be officially notified to the Allied and Associated High Commissioners, to the representatives of the other interested countries and Members of the League, to the Turkish Government and to the ecclesiastical authorities of the deported populations, namely the Greek and Armenian Patriarchs;

(2) That the League request France, Great Britain and Italy to instruct their High Commissioners to constitute themselves as a Committee, whose duty it will be to concert action with a view to giving all possible assistance and powers to the League of Nations' Commissioner, for the carrying out of his duties;

(3) That there shall be established, under the Commissioner of the League, a mixed Board to deal with the reclamation of women and children. This Board shall be composed of the present Members of the League of Nations Commission of Enquiry, with power to co-opt, in particular cases, a member of each interested nationality. This Board would look to the Allied Commissioners and to the co-operation of the Greek and Armenian Patriarchs for the necessary support in the carrying out of its decisions. The Assembly emphasises the desirability of encouraging the work of charity already being carried on in the different centres by various establishments;

(4) That the neutral house for the temporary reception and examination of women and children reclaimed from Turkish houses shall be reorganised and placed under the direct management and supervision of the Commission of Enquiry;

(5) That further neutral houses may be opened in other centres as circumstances permit.

9. MANDATES (23rd September 1921).

The Assembly, having considered the Report (A. 105, 1921) of 19th September 1921, addressed by the Sub-Committee on Mandates to Committee No. VI and endorsed by that Committee, resolves to approve the terms of that report (see Appendix III, Annex 11).

10. DISPUTE BETWEEN LITHUANIA AND POLAND (24th September 1921).

The Assembly, having heard the explanation of M. Hymans on the dispute between Poland and Lithuania, and having taken note of the resolution of the Council of the 20th September, expresses its warm appreciation of the skill and patience displayed by M. Hymans in the cause of peace, and thanks the Council for its action and assures it of the full support of the Assembly.

Appealing to their wisdom and to their common memories of the past, the Assembly calls upon the two peoples to reach an agreement, which is as necessary for them as for the peace of the world.

11. STATUS OF EASTERN GALICIA (27th September 1921).

The Assembly of the League of Nations expresses the wish that the Council of the League draw the attention of the Principal Allied and Associated Powers to the desirability of determining, at an early date, the status of Eastern Galicia.

12. ORGANISATION OF INTERNATIONAL STATISTICS (27th September 1921).

The Assembly :—

(1) Commends to the Technical Organisations of the League the conclusions of the Provisional Economic and Financial Committee for the purpose of avoiding overlapping in the enquiries undertaken by the various Sections. At the same time it invites the co-operation of the International Labour Office in the matter.

Nothing in this resolution shall prejudice any decision on the organisation of statistical work.

(2) Decides that statistics in the scientific sense will not be undertaken by the League as long as the question of the organisation of international statistics has not been decided, and that this question is entirely deferred until the next session.

(3) It is understood that the League of Nations will make use, wherever expedient, of the data obtainable from existing international statistical offices and organisations without affecting in any way their autonomy.

The title of the "Bulletin" published by the League should indicate that it does not contain original statistics, but consists of figures collected from other statistical sources.

13. REPORTS OF THE PROVISIONAL ECONOMIC AND FINANCIAL COMMITTEE (28th September 1921).

Whereas the Assembly has considered :—

(a) The section of the "Report to the Second Assembly on the work of the Council and on the measures taken to execute the decisions of the First Assembly," which deals with the work of the Provisional Economic and Financial Committee since its entry upon its functions until the session of August-September 1921;

(b) The Report presented to the Council by the Provisional Economic and Financial Committee upon its work during the session held at Geneva in August-September 1921, which has been communicated to the Assembly by the Council;

(c) The Report dealing with "Certain Aspects of the Raw Materials Problem,"[1] presented by the Economic Section of the Provisional Economic and Financial Committee in accordance with the Council's Resolution of 27th October 1920, which has also been communicated to the Assemby by the Council :

And has noted with satisfaction the decisions taken by the Council on 19th and 21st September 1921 :—

(1) The Assembly notes that the constitution of a definite Economic and Financial Advisory Committee, as contemplated by the Resolution of the first Assembly dated 9th December 1920, on the economic organisation of the League, is not imperative during the forthcoming year, in view of the fact that the Provisional Economic and Financial Committee will continue its work till the next Assembly, as provided in the Council's Resolution of 19th September 1921.

[1] See Appendix III (Annex 1).

(2) The Assembly notes that it is of the greatest importance that the Provisional Economic and Financial Committee should carry out the programme of work indicated in the Reports mentioned above, including the study of the following questions: double taxation, the monetary situation, unfair competition, monopolies, distribution of raw materials, unification of legislation relating to bills of exchange, commercial methods designed to obviate the risks arising from fluctuations of the exchanges.

(3) The Assembly notes that the Council has requested the Provisional Economic and Financial Committee to consider the report upon the meaning and scope of the provision relating to the equitable treatment of commerce contained in Article 23 (e) of the Covenant. Taking account of the wishes formulated by the Conference of Barcelona, the Assembly expresses the confident hope that the Committee will direct and pursue its work, in co-operation with the Advisory and Technical Committee on Communciations and Transit, in the manner best calculated to facilitate the earliest and most general application possible of the principle in question.

(4) The Assembly notes that the Council, with the advice of the Provisional Economic and Financial Committee, will entertain any application that may be received from States which feel the need of technical advisers on financial or economic administration.

(5) The Assembly agrees that it will probably not be necessary to convoke at an early date a general Conference for the study of the principal financial and economic questions; it approves the proposal whereby the Council, if it considers it desirable, may, with the advice of the Provisional Economic and Financial Committee, convoke restricted consultative conferences for the examination of special problems.

(6) The Assembly regrets that the work of the reconstruction of the finances of Austria in which the Provisional Economic and Financial Committee has been called upon to co-operate has been delayed for reasons which it hopes will shortly be removed.

(7) The Assembly, having had brought to its notice the continuing gravity of the exchange crisis and its dangerous effects upon the economic position and the conditions of labour of the working classes, invites the Provisional Economic and Financial Committee to carry on urgently its enquiries from various Governments as to the measures taken to ensure the application of the Resolutions of the Brussels Conference; the Assembly further invites the Committee to investigate, in accordance with the Governments' suggestions and as speedily as may be, all practical proposals which may be made for the completest possible application of these Resolutions.

In particular, the Assembly agrees to the proposal that the work of organising the International Credits Scheme should be pursued in the manner set out in the Report submitted by the Provisional Economic and Financial Committee to the Council.

The Committee is further invited to consider, as a matter of urgency, the measures necessary for the adaptation of the system of international credits to the various situations of different countries.

(8) The Assembly commends to the consideration of the Members of the League the general conclusions of the Report on Certain Aspects of the Raw Materials Problem, including those calling attention to the effects that may be produced on the economic life of other countries by artificial restrictions and duties on the export of essential raw materials.

(9) The Assembly, recognising the intimate connection between the restoration of transport facilities and the supply and distribution of raw materials, expresses the earnest hope that every effort will be made to expedite the work of the various Commissions charged with such matters as re-allocation and interchange of rolling-stock in certain parts of Europe.

(10) The Assembly invites the Advisory and Technical Committee on Communications and Transit to consider the desirability of action being taken, under the provision which empowers the Council to call partial or regional Conferences to consider special matters, with a view to promoting the improvement of facilities for intercommunication and transport between those States whose transport systems have specially suffered from disorganisation.

14. TRAFFIC IN WOMEN AND CHILDREN (29th September 1921).

The Assembly, having taken into consideration the Final Act of the Conference of Geneva on Traffic in Women and Children, approved by the Council, expresses the wish that those of its provisions which require conventional form, be adopted in that form by the Members of the League with the least possible delay. For this purpose the Assembly recommends that the Delegates who have the necessary full powers to sign the Draft Convention annexed,[1] should sign it without delay, and that those who do not yet possess them be invited to communicate immediately with their respective Governments in order to obtain the necessary powers to sign.

15. TRAFFIC IN OPIUM (30th September 1921).

I. The Assembly concurs in paragraphs 1, 2, 4 and 5 of the Resolution adopted by the Council on 28th June 1921[2] as follows:—

(1) That States which are Members of the League and have not signed or ratified the International Opium Convention be invited to do so as soon as possible.

[1] See Appendex III (Annex 10).

[2] See Appendix III (Annex 9).

(2) That the Netherlands Government be requested to continue its efforts to secure ratification of the International Opium Convention by those States which are not Members of the League.

(3) (Paragraph 4 of the Resolution of the Council.) That, in order to carry out the obligations under Articles 3 and 5 and under Article 13 of the International Opium Convention, the Governments which are parties to the Convention be invited to adopt the following procedure:—

"Every application for the export to an importer of a supply of any of the substances to which the Convention applies shall be accompanied by a certificate from the Government of the importing country that the import of the consignment in question is approved by that Government and is required for legitimate purposes.

In the case of drugs to which Chapter III of the Convention applies, the certificate shall state specifically that they are required solely for medicinal or scientific purposes."

(4) (Paragraph 5 of the Resolution of the Council.) That the special attention of the Contracting Powers having Treaties with China be invited to the provisions of Article 15 of the International Opium Convention, so that the most effective steps possible should be taken to prevent the contraband trade in opium and other dangerous drugs.

II. The Assembly confirms the second recommendation passed by the Advisory Committee on Traffic in Opium during its session of 2nd-5th May 1921, as follows:—

(5) That a report should be made annually to the League by each country which is a party to the Convention, on the execution in its territory of the provisions of the Convention, with statistics of production, manufacture and trade.

III. The Assembly adopts the following additional recommendations presented by its Fifth Committee:—

(6) The Assembly concurs in paragraph 3 of the Council's Resolution of 28th June 1921, on the understanding that the enquiries undertaken will be of a scientific character and that, when they apply specifically to any particular country, they will be made through, or with the consent of, the Government of that country.

(7) The Assembly recommends to the Council that, in paragraph 5 of the latter's resolution dated 28th June 1921, it should also draw the attention of the Government of China to Article 15 of the International Opium Convention.

(8) The Assembly recommends to the Council that the enquiry referred to in paragraph 7 of the latter's resolution dated 28th June 1921 should be extended to include all opium the consumption of which may be considered legitimate, and that to this end the word "strictly" be omitted, and the word "legitimate" be substituted for "medicinal and scientific." It further recommends to the Council the omission of the reference to prepared opium, that is to say, to opium prepared for purposes of smoking, the complete suppression of which is provided for in Chapter II of the Convention.

(9) The Assembly recommends to the Council that the different Governments be invited, where they see no objection, to furnish to the Secretariat, in addition to the official annual report, any information concerning the illicit production, manufacture or trade in opium, or other dangerous drugs which they think likely to be useful to the League in the execution of its task.

(10) The Assembly recommends the Council to consider whether all nations specially concerned in either the growth or manufacture of opium or other dangerous drugs should not be represented on its Advisory Committee.

(11) The Assembly urges those States Members of the League[1] which have not yet signed and ratified the Opium Convention to do so as soon as possible.

(12) In order to facilitate the execution of the Convention, the Assembly urges all States Members of the League which are parties to the Convention to signify to the Secretariat as soon as possible their acceptance of the fourth recommendation of the Advisory Committee relating to the requirement of importation certificates.

Albania.	Esthonia.	Paraguay.
Argentine.	Finland.	Persia.
Chile.	Latvia.	Salvador.
Colombia	Lithuania.	Switzerland.
Costa Rica.

The following have ratified the Convention, but not signed the Protocol of 1914:—

Denmark. Venezuela.

(13) The Assembly recommends the Council to request the Advisory Committee to extend their investigations to include not only the drugs mentioned in the Convention of 1912, but also all dangerous drugs of whatever origin which produce similar effects, and to advise as to the desirability of convoking a further international conference of States which are parties to the Convention, as well as States Members of the League of Nations, with a view to drawing up a Convention for the suppression of the abuse of such drugs.

16. RELIEF WORK IN RUSSIA (30th September 1921).

After having heard the Report of its Committee and the statement by Dr. Nansen—to whose activity and devotion it is happy to pay tribute—and after having taken note of the generous appeal of His Holiness Pope Benedict XV, on behalf of the famine-stricken regions of Russia, the Assembly of the League of Nations adopts the following Resolutions:—

1. The Assembly considers it an urgent necessity to combat the famine in Russia; it further considers that all efforts should be encouraged which, like the Geneva Conference, aim at alleviating this scourge.

The Assembly addresses a pressing appeal to private organisations in order that the efficacy of the common endeavour may be assured by a close co-ordination of all the efforts devoted to this cause.

The Assembly further expresses a desire that the Governments of all countries may interest themselves in the efforts of their national associations and should grant them, to the greatest possible extent, such material and moral support as they may need.

2. The Assembly considers that relief work should be extended to include all the regions of former Russia which are visited by famine, without forgetting the populations of the territories of the Republics of Armenia, Georgia and Azerbaidjan.

3. The Assembly has not sufficient information as to the influences by which the Soviet Government are moved or the conditions under which they are working, but it considers that Dr. Nansen's successful repatriation of prisoners of war augurs well for any enterprise he may be prepared to undertake for the relief of famine-stricken regions in Armenia, Azerbaidjan, Georgia and Russia.

4. In view of the statements made by members of the Committee on behalf of their Governments to the effect that these Governments do not think that under present circumstances they can grant official credits, the Assembly is of opinion that this fact settles for the time being this side of the matter, and disengages the possible responsibility of the League of Nations.

Nevertheless, the League does not disinterest itself in so grave a problem and in the efforts which are being made to solve it. It will rest with the Council of the League to take up the question, should circumstances so demand, and should it consider that its intervention could prove both useful and effective.

5. The Assembly notes that an International Conference has been summoned to meet at Brussels on 6th October in order to consider the problem of the famine raging in Russia, and the means of remedying it by the concerted action of Governments and private associations.

The Assembly expresses the hope that the authorised representatives of the Governments may consider the most expedient means of coping with the financial difficulties of this problem. Amongst the forms of relief which the Governments might afford, the Assembly would urge the importance of gifts in kind from the liquidation of war stocks.

6. The Assembly considers that the Committee of the League of Nations formed to combat epidemics should be invited to co-operate with the associations which have undertaken the campaign against infectious diseases in Russia and the Caucasus.

7. The President of the Assembly is requested to transmit to His Holiness Pope Benedict XV a copy of resolutions mentioned above in the hope that he may find therein a proof of the profound appreciation with which the League of Nations received the message in which His Holiness begged to draw the attention of the representatives of the Governments assembled in Geneva to the unhappy plight of the famine-stricken areas in Russia and the urgency of alleviating and rendering them assistance.

The Assembly takes this opportunity of expressing to His Holiness its warmest gratitude for so generous an action, which manifests once again the anxiety with which His Holiness ever proceeds in the alleviation of all suffering.

17. ADMISSION OF HUNGARY TO THE LEAGUE (30th September 1921).

The Assembly of the League of Nations, having noted a letter dated 26th September 1921, sent by the Head of the Hungarian Delegation in the name of his Government, and requesting the Assembly to be good enough to postpone its decision on the request for the admission of Hungary and all procedure relative thereto, to its next session, resolves to accede to this request and to place the question of the admission of Hungary into the League on the agenda of its next session.

18. ORGANISATION OF THE PERMANENT SECRETARIAT AND OF THE INTERNATIONAL LABOUR OFFICE (1st October 1921).

The Assembly, having taken note of the Report of the Fourth Committee, approves the views there set forth and expresses its gratitude to M. Noblemaire and his colleagues of the Committee of Experts for their arduous and most useful work (see Appendix III, Annex 4).

19. REDUCTION OF ARMAMENTS (1st October 1921).

The Assembly thanks Mr. Branting, Chairman of the Third Committee, and the Rapporteur, Lord Robert Cecil, for their valuable work. It is convinced of the urgent necessity of passing beyond the stage of the enunciation of principles and of proceeding to carry them into practical effect. The Assembly, therefore, approves the report and the following resolutions submitted by the Third Committee with reference to the reduction of armaments :—

1. That it is desirable that the Temporary Mixed Commission should be asked to continue the work which it has begun.

2. That the Temporary Mixed Commission be asked to make proposals on general lines for the reduction of national armaments which, in order to secure precision, should be in the form of a draft treaty or other equally definite plan, to be presented to the Council, if possible, before the Assembly next year.

In order to enable the Temporary Mixed Commission to accomplish this task, the Council should be asked to strengthen the Temporary Mixed Commission.

3. That a statistical investigation be made with regard to the armaments of the various countries upon the lines indicated in the body of the Report of the Third Committee.

4. That the Temporary Mixed Commission be requested to continue the examination of the question of the private manufacture of armaments and the trade in arms.

5. That the Council be requested to invite all the Members of the League and interested States which are not Members of the League to take part in an International Conference on the private manufacture of arms and the trade in arms, which should meet as soon as possible at a date to be fixed under the responsibility of the Council. It is considered highly desirable that this date should be prior to the next session of the Assembly.

The Temporary Mixed Commission should be entrusted with the task of preparing the programme of the Conference, and of submitting to it a draft Convention.

6. That the urgent importance of ratifying the Convention at the earliest possible moment be strongly impressed on all the States signatories to the Arms Traffic Convention of St. Germain, whether Members of the League of Nations or not, and that at the same time all non-signatory States be invited to adhere to the Convention.

The Assembly expresses its earnest desire that the importance of this subject may be strongly urged at the forthcoming Conference on Disarmament at Washington.

7. The Assembly, taking note of the view expressed in the Report of the Temporary Mixed Commission on the Reduction of Armaments with regard to the desirability of making provision for excluding the import of arms and ammunition in time of peace from countries in which the traffic is uncontrolled, invites the Council to prepare a draft protocol for this purpose for the consideration of the various Governments. At the same time it expresses the earnest hope that this procedure will not in any way be permitted to delay the general ratification of the Convention of St. Germain.

The steps that may eventually have to be taken for the destruction of the surplus stocks of munitions may be considered by the Temporary Mixed Commission.

8. That, subject to the conditions set out in the recommendation of the First Assembly, the recommendation that Members of the League should undertake not to exceed for the next two financial years following the present year the sum total of expenditure on military, naval and air forces provided for in the budget of that year, be again forwarded to all Members of the League, together with a statement showing the replies already received to this recommendation.

9. That the Temporary Mixed Commission be asked to examine—in consultation with the Permanent Advisory Commission—whether it is advisable to address an appeal to the scientific men of the world to publish their discoveries in poison gas and similar subjects, so as to minimise the likelihood of their being used in any future war.

10. That it is desirable that propaganda in favour of the reduction of armaments, as contemplated in the Covenant, should be carried out with earnestness and conviction among all nations.

11. In pursuance of the Third Resolution of the First Assembly, the Assembly is of opinion that the Secretariat should be asked to complete the organisation of the Section of the Secretariat dealing with the question of the reduction of armaments, and that this Section should have a directorship of its own, or other equivalent official organisation, quite separate from and, if necessary, in addition to, those already proposed by the Fourth Committee of the Assembly.

20. ALBANIA (3rd October 1921).

1. The Assembly, having considered the appeal of Albania to the Assembly, dated 29th June 1921, and the reference by the Council to the Assembly of the allegation by Albania against the Serb-Croat-Slovene State, dated 2nd September 1921:

Recognising the sovereignty and independence of Albania as established by her admission to the League:

Taking note of the fact that the Serb-Croat-Slovene State and Greece have recognised the Principal Allied and Associated Powers as the appropriate body to settle the frontiers of Albania:

Understanding that the Principal Allied and Associated Powers are very near agreement on the question submitted to them:

Recommends Albania now to accept the forthcoming decision of the Principal Allied and Associated Powers.

2. The Assembly, further, taking note of the allegations of Albania against nationals of the Serb-Croat-Slovene State and of the allegations of the Serb-Croat-Slovene State against certain tribes and individuals in Albania:

Taking note also of statements made that there is serious unrest in Southern Albania and Northern Epirus:

Requests the Council forthwith to appoint a Commission of three impartial persons, to proceed immediately to Albania and to report fully on the execution of the decision of the Principal Allied and Associated Powers, as soon as it is given, and on any disturbances which may occur on or near the frontier of Albania. The Commission should have power to appoint observers or other officials being impartial persons to enable it to discharge its functions.

3. In order to provide for the carrying out of the above decision, the Secretary-General is instructed to include the sum of 100,000 gold francs in the budget of the League for the fourth fiscal period (1922), it being understood, however, that, before any of the said appropriation be expended, a detailed estimate shall be submitted to the Council of the League and shall be approved by it.

21. FINANCIAL ADMINISTRATION OF THE LEAGUE (4th October 1921).

Recommendation I.

The Assembly of the League of Nations requests the Council to continue to regulate the finances of the League of Nations in the spirit of the principles contained in the Assembly Recommendation of 17th December 1920, as modified by the following Articles, and by the recommendations laid down in the Report of the Fourth Committee on the administration of the finances of the League of Nations.[1] Further, the Assembly requests the Council to prepare for the annual session of the Assembly of 1922, a final resolution regarding the administration of the finances of the League of Nations.

Article 1.—The Assembly recommends the Council to appoint a Committee of Control of three or five members, one of whom at least shall be a financial expert. The Council shall select the Committee from amongst the Members of the League of Nations, in such a way as to include Members of the League which are not represented on the Council.

Draft budgets and other documents contemplated in Articles 1 and 2 of the Recommendation adopted on 17th December 1920 shall be submitted to the Committee of Control before being submitted to the Council. The Draft Budget of the International Labour Organisation shall be laid before the Committee of Control by four members of the Governing Body, two of whom might be selected from the delegates of Governments, one from employers' delegates and one from the workers' delegates. The Governing Body shall decide whether the Director or Deputy Director of the International Labour Office shall be added to the Delegation.

A representative of the Governing Body shall be authorised to attend, in an advisory capacity, any meetings of the Assembly that deal with the Budget. It is, of course, understood that the representative in question cannot rise to speak except on the invitation of the President.

The Appropriation Officers, whether members of the Secretariat or of the International Labour Office, shall be responsible to the Committee of Control.

Article 2.—Article 6 of Recommendation II, adopted by the First Assembly on 17th December 1920, shall read as follows:—

"Expenditure can only be incurred by virtue of a warrant signed by the Secretary-General or one of his deputies duly authorised thereto. This warrant shall mention the fiscal period and the appropriation to which the expenditure is charged, and cannot be given until the official appointed for the purpose (Appropriation Officer) has certified that the proposed expenditure is represented in the Budget by a corresponding credit. Unforeseen expenditure, however, can only be incurred under Article 25 of the general budget for 1922 if it is authorised by a special Resolution of the Council, which must be immediately communicated to all the Members of the League of Nations. During the year 1922 transfers from one item to another of the same chapter can be effected by virtue of a special Resolution of the Council, which must be immediately communicated to all the Members of the League of Nations."

Article 3.—The following sentence shall be added to Article 7 of Recommendation II, adopted by the First Assembly :—

" Additions to this fund, which may not exceed 5,000,000 gold francs, cannot be made except with the approval of the Assembly. If the fund exceeds 5,000,000 gold francs, the excess shall be carried forward to the credit of the next financial period. The International Labour Organisation may continue to obtain, if necessary, assistance from the Working Capital Fund proportionately to its budget."

Article 4.—Insert in Article 9, of Recommendation II, adopted by the First Assembly, after the word "auditors," "and to the Committee of Control."

Article 5.—Article 10 of Recommendation II, adopted by the First Assembly, shall read as follows :—

"Three months before the annual session of the Assembly, the Committee of Control and the auditors shall present to the Council, or in the case of the International Labour Organisation, to the Governing Body, a joint report on the correctness, etc."

Recommendation II.

The Resolution of the Council of 2nd September 1921, authorising the Secretary-General to request the States which are not Members of the League of Nations, but which form part of the technical organisations of the League, to pay their share of the expenses of the technical organisations in which they participate, from the beginning of the fourth financial year of the League (1922), should be incorporated in the final regulations of the financial administration of the League.

Resolution I.

In virtue of Article 12 of the Recommendation II of the First Assembly on the administration of the finances of the League of Nations, the Assembly of the League of Nations finally passes the expenditure and income accounts for the second fiscal period, terminating on 31st December 1920.

Resolution II.

The Assembly of the League of Nations, in accordance with Article 4 of Recommendation II, adopted by the First Assembly, on the administration of the finances of the League of Nations accepts for the fiscal period 1922 the General Budget of the League and the Budget of the International Labour Office, which will be published in the Official Journal.

22. THE ECONOMIC WEAPON (4th October 1921).

The Assembly adopts the following resolutions :—

1. Subject to the special provisions of Article 17, the economic measures referred to in Article 16 shall be applicable only in the specific case referred to in this Article.

2. The unilateral action of the defaulting State cannot create a state of war; it merely entitles the other Members of the League to resort to acts of war or to declare themselves in a state of war with the Covenant-breaking State; but it is in accordance with the spirit of the Covenant that the League of Nations should attempt, at least at the outset, to avoid war, and to restore peace by economic pressure.

3. It is the duty of each Member of the League to decide for itself whether a breach of the Covenant has been committed. The fulfilment of their duties under Article 16 is required from Members of the League by the express terms of the Covenant, and they cannot neglect them without breach of their Treaty obligations.

4. All cases of breach of Covenant under Article 16 shall be referred to the Council as a matter of urgency at the request of any Member of the League. Further, if a breach of Covenant be committed, or if there arise a danger of such breach being committed, the Secretary-General shall at once give notice thereof to all the Members of the Council. Upon receipt of such a request by a Member of the League, or of such a notice by the Secretary-General, the Council will meet as soon as possible. The Council shall summon representatives of the parties to the conflict and of all States which are neighbours of the defaulting State, or which normally maintain close economic relations with it, or whose co-operation would be especially valuable for the application of Article 16.

5. If the Council is of opinion that a State has been guilty of a breach of Covenant, the Minutes of the meeting at which that opinion is arrived at shall be immediately sent to all Members of the League, accompanied by a statement of reasons and by an invitation to take action according. The fullest publicity shall be given to this decision.

6. For the purpose of assisting it to enforce Article 16, the Council may, if it thinks fit, be assisted by a technical Committee. This Committee will remain in permanent session as soon as the action decided on is taken, and may include, if desirable, representatives of the States specially affected.

7. The Council should fix the date on which the enforcement of economic pressure under Article 16 is to be begun, and should give notice of that date to all the Members of the League.

8. All States must be treated alike as regards the application of the measures of economic pressure, with the following reservations :—

(a) It may be necessary to recommend the execution of special measures by certain States;

(b) If it is thought desirable to postpone, wholly or partially, in the case of certain States, the effective application of the economic sanctions laid down in Article 16, such postponement shall not be permitted except in so far as it is desirable for the success of the common plan of action, or reduces to a minimum the losses and embarrassments which may be entailed in the case of certain Members of the League by the application of the sanctions.

9. It is not possible to decide beforehand, and in detail, the various measures of an economic, commercial and financial nature to be taken in each case where economic pressure is to be applied.

When the case arises, the Council shall recommend to the Members of the League a plan for joint action.

10. The interruption of diplomatic relations shall, in the first place, be limited to the withdrawal of the heads of Missions.

11. Consular relations may possibly be maintained.

12. For the purposes of the severance of relations between persons belonging to the Covenant-breaking State and persons belonging to other States Members of the League, the test should be residence and not nationality.

13. In cases of prolonged application of economic pressure, measures of increasing stringency may be taken. The cutting off of the food supplies of the civil population of the defaulting State shall be regarded as an extremely drastic measure which shall only be applied if the other measures available are clearly inadequate.

14. Correspondence and all other methods of communication shall be subjected to special regulations.

15. Humanitarian relations shall be continued.

16. Efforts shall be made to arrive at arrangements which will ensure the co-operation of States non-members of the League in the measures to be taken.

17. In special circumstances and in support of economic measures to be taken it may become advisable : (a) to establish an effective blockade of the seaboard of the Covenant-breaking State ; (b) to entrust to some Members of the League the execution of the blockade operations.

18. The Council shall urge upon all the States Members of the League that their Governments should take the necessary preparatory measures, above all of a legislative character, to enable them to enforce at short notice the necessary measures of economic pressure.

II.

The Assembly resolves that :

1. The latter part of the first paragraph of Article 16 of the Covenant shall read as follows :—

" . . . which hereby undertake immediately to subject it to the severance of all trade or financial relations, the prohibition of all intercourse between persons residing in their territory and persons residing in the territory of the Covenant-breaking State, and the prevention of all financial, commercial or personal intercourse between persons residing in the territory of the Covenant-breaking State and persons residing in the territory of any other State, whether a Member of the League or not."

2. The second paragraph of Article 16 shall read as follows :—

" It is for the Council to give an opinion whether or not a breach of the Covenant has taken place. In deliberations on this question in the Council, the votes of Members of the League alleged to have resorted to war and of Members against whom such action was directed shall not be counted."

3. The third paragraph of Article 16 shall read as follows :—

" The Council will notify to all Members of the League the date which it recommends for the application of the economic pressure under this Article."

4. The fourth paragraph of Article 16 shall read as follows :—

"Nevertheless, the Council may, in the case of particular Members, postpone the coming into force of any of these measures for a specified period where it is satisfied that such a postponement will facilitate the attainment of the object of the measures referred to in the preceding paragraph, or that it is necessary in order to minimise the loss and inconvenience which will be caused to such Members."

III.

The resolutions and the proposals for amendments to Article 16 which have been adopted by the Assembly shall, so long as the amendments have not been put in force in the form required by the Covenant, constitute rules for guidance which the Assembly recommends, as a provisional measure, to the Council and to the Members of the League in connection with the application of Article 16.

23. CONDITIONS OF VOTING ON, AND RATIFICATION OF AMENDMENTS TO THE COVENANT (3rd October 1921).

1. Recommendation.—In order immediately to meet the objections expressed by certain Delegates with regard to the procedure permitting the Assembly to vote amendments by a majority, the Assembly recommends to the Delegations that no resolution of amendment shall be passed during this session unless it receives a three-fourths majority, in which there shall be included the votes of all the Members of the Council represented at the meeting.

2. Procedure.—The Assembly considers that it is most desirable that the vote on the proposed amendment to Article 26 shall be unanimous, in order that this vote may have all the authority that can be wished.

3. Resolution of Amendment to Article 26.—Article 26 of the Covenant shall read as follows :—

"Amendments to the present Covenant, the text of which shall have been voted by the Assembly by a three-fourths majority, in which there shall be included the votes of all the Members of the Council represented at the meeting, will take effect when ratified by the Members of the League whose representatives composed the Council when the vote was taken, and by the majority of those whose representatives form the Assembly.

If the required number of ratifications shall not have been obtained within 22 months after the vote of the Assembly, the proposed amendment shall remain without effect

The Secretary-General shall inform the Members of the taking effect of an amendment.

Any Member of the League which has not at that time ratified the amendment is free to notify the Secretary-General within a year of its refusal to accept it, but in that case it shall cease to be a Member of the League."

Form to be given to the Resolutions on Amendments.

The following conclusions of the Committee were adopted unanimously without discussion :—

The First Committee has considered the form which should be given to resolutions of amendments adopted by the Assembly.

A large number of Members expressed the opinion that such resolutions in no way formed a draft convention, the product of a diplomatic conference, to which the representatives of the States would have to attach their signatures.

It seemed to them rather the outcome of deliberation on the part of the Assembly acting as an autonomous body in virtue of the competence conferred upon it by the Covenant.

According to this view, it is the Assembly's resolution which is subject to ratification by the States and not the signatures of their representatives. Moreover, the latter may not have voted in favour of the amendment ratified by the State which they represent. It would therefore seem sufficient that every resolution of amendment be drawn up in the form of an act by the Assembly, signed by the President and the Secretary-General.

But certain members of the Committee pointed out that such a procedure would violate the constitutional law of their States and would also conflict with diplomatic usage.

The Committee considered that, to avoid any difficulty on this point, it was desirable that the amendments should take the form of protocols, embodying the resolutions of amendment voted by the Assembly, signed by the President and the Secretary-General and also open to signature by plenipotentiaries. The Committee therefore proposes the form of protocol which is appended.

Draft Protocol to an Amendment.

Protocol to an Amendment to Article of the Covenant.

The Second Assembly of the League of Nations, under the Presidency of M. H. A. van Karnebeek, assisted by Sir Eric Drummond, Secretary-General, adopted at its meeting of the following resolution, being an amendment to Article of the Covenant.

[Here follows the Resolution.]

The undersigned, being duly authorised, declare that they accept, on behalf of the Members of the League, which they represent, the above amendment.

The present protocol will remain open for signature by the Members of the League : it will be ratified and the ratifications will be deposited as soon as possible with the Secretariat of the League.

It will come into force in accordance with the provisions of Article 26 of the Covenant:

A certified copy of the present protocol will be transmitted by the Secretary-General to all Members of the League.

Done at Geneva, on in a single copy, of which the French and English texts are both authentic and which will be kept in the archives of the Secretariat of the League.

(Signed) President of the Second Assembly,
Secretary-General.

24. PROPOSED AMENDMENT OF ARTICLE 18 (5th October 1921).

The Assembly, taking note of the proposal for the amendment of Article 18 contained in the Report of the First Committee, decides to adjourn further consideration of this amendment until the Third Assembly.

25. PROPOSED AMENDMENT TO ARTICLE 1 OF THE COVENANT (5th October 1921).

The Assembly of the League of Nations, having noted the Amendment to Article 1 of the Covenant proposed by the Argentine Delegation on 4th December 1920 : While appreciating the high motives which inspired the Argentine Republic in proposing this amendment:

Resolves that, in view of the regrettable absence of the Delegation of the Argentine Republic, and until the principle contained in its proposal can be accepted, any decision on the amendment moved by the Argentine Republic be postponed.

26. SITUATION OF SMALL STATES (5th October 1921).

The Assembly of the League of Nations, having considered the report of its First Committee which had been requested to consider whether, and in what manner, it would be possible to attach to the League of Nations sovereign States which, by reason of their small size, could not be admitted as ordinary members :

Decides that in view of the difficulty of laying down in advance the conditions for the admission of these States, the different situations of which might necessitate different conditions ; and in view of the possibility of associating immediately, to a great extent, the interested States in the work of the Assembly, without giving them membership, it is preferable to await the results of experience in this collaboration, before expressing an opinion upon the methods by which they might be admitted to the League.

27. AMENDMENTS TO ARTICLES 12 AND 15 OF THE COVENANT PROPOSED BY THE NORWEGIAN AND SWEDISH GOVERNMENTS (5th October 1921).

The Assembly of the League of Nations, having noted the amendments to Articles 12 and 15 of the Covenant proposed by the Norwegian and Swedish Governments introducing an obligation for all the Members of the League to establish permanent commissions of arbitration and conciliation, in such a manner that there would be one for each State, for the investigation of disputes between that Member and each of the other Members :

Decides :

(1) Not to adopt the amendments to Articles 12 and 15 proposed by the Norwegian and Swedish Governments.

(2) To express its approval of the procedure of conciliation in conformity with the spirit of the Covenant.

(3) To invite the Council to appoint a Committee for the purpose of investigating the procedure of conciliation as outlined in the amendments put forward by the Norwegian and Swedish Governments, with a view to the formulation of a body of rules on the subject. That Committee would submit its report to the Council at a date which would enable the latter to present its conclusions at the next session of the Assembly.

28. PROPOSALS REGARDING ARTICLE 21 OF THE COVENANT (4th October 1921).

The Assembly of the League of Nations, having taken into consideration the report of its First Committee on the amendments to Article 21 of the Coven ant proposed by the Governments of China and Czecho-Slovakia :

Decides that Article 21 shall be retained in its present form. And takes note of the view expressed by the Committee that agreements between Members of the League tending to define or complete the engagements contained in the Covenant for the maintenance of peace or the promotion of international co-operation, may be regarded as of a nature likely to contribute to the progress of the League in the path of practical realisations.

Such agreements may also be negotiated under the auspices of the League of Nations, for example, in special conferences, with its assistance.

29. PROPOSAL REGARDING ARTICLE 10 OF THE COVENANT (4th October 1921).

Whereas a motion has been submitted by the Canadian Delegation for the striking out of Article 10 of the Covenant :

Whereas widely different opinions have been expressed with regard to the legal bearing of this Article and its relationship to the other Articles of the Covenant, specially to Articles 12 to 17 :

And whereas the legal and political arguments made, both in favour of, and against the striking out of Article 10 are of great weight :

The Assembly postpones the continuation of the examination of the proposal and the decision until its next session, and recommends that this proposal be decided before any other amendment.

30. ALLOCATION OF EXPENSES OF THE LEAGUE (5th October 1921).

I.—Resolutions of amendments to Article 6 of the Covenant.

The Assembly resolves :—

" (1) That the last paragraph of Article 6 of the Covenant shall be replaced by the following paragraph :—

" The expenses of the League shall be borne by the Members of the League in the proportion decided by the Assembly."

" (2) That the following paragraph shall be added to Article 6 of the Covenant as amended :—

" The allocation of the expenses of the League set out on Annex 3 shall be applied as from 1st January 1922, until a revised allocation has come into force after adoption by the Assembly."

" (3) That the following shall be inserted in the Annex to the Covenant :—

II.—Recommendation 1.

"The Assembly recommends that, when a revised scheme of allocation of the expenses of the League has been adopted after consideration of the fresh recommendations of the Expert Committee, Members of the League which may, with effect from 1st January 1921, and up to the year for which the revised scheme is adopted, have paid more than they are called upon to pay under the operation of such scheme, should be entitled to a refund of the excess amount paid.

"Such refunds shall be made as surplus funds accrue and without prejudice to the maintenance of the working capital account of the League at its full normal figure."

Recommendation 2.

The Assembly, recognising that the proposals of the Expert Committee (A. 40, 1921) are still susceptible of improvements and adjustments after a more exhaustive investigation of the data, recommends that this Committee, so ably presided over by M. Reveillaud, be re-appointed by the Council to continue its work and, after taking account of the various factors not yet fully examined, to submit a further report indicating such modifications of the allocation provisionally accepted as it may deem equitable.

III.—Resolution.

In order to provide for the carrying out of the above decision, the Secretary-General is instructed to include the sum of 15,000 gold francs in the Budget of the League for the fourth fiscal period (1922), it being understood, however, that, before any of the said appropriation be expended, a detailed estimate shall be submitted to the Council of the League and shall be approved by it.

IV.—Recommendation.

The Assembly recommends the Council to see that the Committee charged with preparing a final scheme for the allocation of expenses shall present this table to the Assembly of 1923.

V.—Resolution.

The Assembly resolves that the following paragraph shall be added to Article IV of the Rules of Procedure of the Assembly:—

"No proposal for a modification of the allocation of expenses for the time being in force shall be inserted in the Agenda, unless it has been communicated to members at least four months before the date fixed for the opening of the session."

31. AMENDMENT TO THE RULES OF PROCEDURE (5th October 1921).

The Assembly resolves—

That the following provision shall be added to the second paragraph of Rule 14 of the Rules of Procedure of the Assembly:—

> "Resolutions involving expenditure shall not, however, be voted by the Assembly before the Financial Committee has expressed its opinion on the advisability of the proposed expenditure with regard to general budgetary resources."

32. ELECTION OF THE NON-PERMANENT MEMBERS OF THE COUNCIL (6th October 1921).

1. The Assembly takes note of the conclusions of its First Committee:—

(a) That the non-permanent Members of the Council should in future be elected according to a system of rotation for a fixed period, and that the Assembly should this year renew for the year 1922 the appointment of the present Members.

(b) That, in the absence of any decision with regard to the number of the non-permanent members of the Council, it is inexpedient to lay down precise rulings, in consideration of the fact that at the election held next year account will be taken, both as regards the determination of the entire period of office for each member, and as regards the conditions of re-eligibility, of the period already spent in office as the result of previous elections.

II.—Resolution of Amendment to Article 4.

The Assembly resolves that the following paragraph shall be inserted between the second and third paragraphs of Article 4:—

"The Assembly shall fix by a two-thirds majority the rules dealing with the election of the non-permanent Members of the Council, and particularly such regulations as relate to their term of office and the conditions of re-eligibility."

33. COMMITTEE ON AMENDMENTS TO THE COVENANT (5th October 1921).

The Assembly, highly appreciating the work of the Committee on Amendments, which, under the able chairmanship of Mr. Balfour, has done the preparatory work for the proceedings of the First Committee, agrees that the Council can further refer to the consideration of this Committee the draft amendments which have been adjourned, also the proposed amendments which may be submitted to the next Assembly.

34. PROPOSED AMENDMENTS TO ARTICLE 3 OF THE COVENANT (4th October 1921).

The Assembly takes note that, in view of the considerations brought forward in the report of the Committee on Amendments and in the report of the First Committee of the Assembly, the Danish, Norwegian and Swedish Governments withdraw their proposed amendments to Article 3 of the Covenant.

35. PROPOSED AMENDMENTS TO ARTICLE 13 OF THE COVENANT (4th October 1921).

The Assembly, having considered the report of its First Committee on the amendments to Article 13 of the Covenant proposed by the Danish, Norwegian and Swedish Governments, decides that these amendments be not adopted.

36. ARTICLE 5 OF THE COVENANT. DEROGATIONS FROM THE PRINCIPLE OF UNANIMITY (5th October 1921).

The Assembly adopts the report of its First Committee on the amendments to Article 5 of the Covenant proposed by the Colombian and Netherlands Governments, and takes note that the Colombian and Netherlands Governments withdraw these proposed amendments.

37. HEALTH ORGANISATION (23rd September 1921).

The Assembly notes the measures taken by the Council to carry out so far as possible the Resolution of the first Assembly dated 10th December 1920, concerning the Health Organisation of the League of Nations.

In pursuance of the Covenant of the League of Nations and in order to facilitate the discharge by the League of the humanitarian duties and responsibilities which are placed upon it by the various treaties of peace and its own Resolutions, and pending the possibility of creating the Health Organisation contemplated by the Resolution of 10th December 1920, the Assembly of the League of Nations adopts in the following form the resolutions submitted to it by the Council:—

1. The Health Organisation of the League shall provisionally comprise a Health Committee which shall be entrusted with the functions detailed in the report of the Provisional Health Committee as adopted by the Council. The Secretariat of this Organisation shall be appointed by the Secretary-General of the League and be responsible to him, and shall be placed under a Medical Director.

The Assembly, in view of the urgency of the present international health situation, and, subject to consideration of a report to be submitted at the next session of the Assembly, accepts the constitution of the Provisional Health Committee proposed by the Council. But this decision is without prejudice to the power of the Assembly, admitted last year, to regulate the constitution of important Standing Committees of the League.

In view of the increasing importance of questions of health which more especially concern women, the Assembly invites the Council to take into consideration at an opportune moment the question of strengthening the Committee by including a medical woman, experienced in public health matters, qualified to advise on such questions.

2. The Epidemic Commission of the League of Nations shall form one section of the Health Organisation.

38. AMENDMENT TO ARTICLE 12 OF THE COVENANT (4th October 1921).

The Assembly resolves that Article 12 of the Covenant shall be amended to read as follows:—

"Article 12.—The members of the League agree that, if there should arise between them any dispute likely to lead to a rupture, they will submit the matter either to arbitration or judicial settlement or to enquiry by the Council, and they agree in no case to resort to war until three months after the award by the arbitrators or the judicial decision, or the report by the Council.

"In any case under this Article the award of the arbitrators or the judicial decision shall be made within a reasonable time, and the report of the Council shall be made within six months after the submission of the dispute."

39. AMENDMENT TO ARTICLE 13 OF THE COVENANT (4th October 1921).

The Assembly resolves that Article 13 of the Covenant shall be amended to read as follows:—

"The Members of the League agree that, whenever any dispute shall arise between them which they recognise to be suitable for submission to arbitration or judicial settlement, and which cannot be satisfactorily settled by diplomacy, they will submit the whole subject-matter to arbitration or judicial settlement.

"Disputes as to the interpretation of a treaty, as to any question of international law, as to the existence of any fact which, if established, would constitute a breach of any international obligation, or as to the extent and nature of the reparation to be made for any such breach, are declared to be among those which are generally suitable for submission to arbitration or judicial settlement.

"For the consideration of any such dispute, the court to which the case is referred shall be the Permanent Court of International Justice, established in accordance with Article 14, or any tribunal agreed on by the parties to the dispute or stipulated in any convention existing between them.

"The Members of the League agree that they will carry out in full good faith any award or decision that may be rendered, and that they will not resort to war against a Member of the League which complies therewith. In the event of any failure to carry out such an award or decision, the Council shall propose what steps should be taken to give effect thereto."

40. AMENDMENT TO ARTICLE 15 OF THE COVENANT (4th October 1921).

The Assembly resolves that the first paragraph of Article 15 of the Covenant shall be amended to read as follows:—

"If there should arise between Members of the League any dispute likely to lead to a rupture, which is not submitted to arbitration or judicial settlement in accordance with Article 13, the Members of the League agree that they will submit the matter to the Council. Any party to the dispute may effect such submission by giving notice of the existence of the dispute to the Secretary-General, who will make all necessary arrangements for a full investigation and consideration thereof."

41. GREATER PUBLICITY FOR THE PROCEEDINGS OF THE COUNCIL (16th September 1921).

The Assembly welcomes the efforts which the Council has made to secure greater publicity for its proceedings, and hopes that still further progress in that direction may be possible in the near future.

42. ESPERANTO AS AN INTERNATIONAL LANGUAGE (15th September 1921).

The Assembly, having noted a motion submitted by Lord Robert Cecil and signed by certain other delegates recommending the universal teaching of Esperanto in schools as an auxiliary international language;

Adopts the report of the Committee appointed to examine the propositions submitted to the Assembly, the conclusions of which are as follows:—

"The Committee are of opinion that this question, in which an ever increasing number of great States are interested, should be attentively studied before it can be dealt with by the Assembly. The question was referred to a Committee last year and a short report was submitted recommending that the Secretariat of the League should investigate the experiments already made, and ascertain the actual results attained.

"The Committee proposes that the question should be placed on the Agenda of the next Assembly and that the Secretariat of the League should in the meantime prepare a complete report, accompanied by the necessary documentation on the lines indicated in the draft resolution.

"In accordance with the wishes of the signatories, the report of Committee No. 2, dated 17th December 1920, and the report of the Under Secretary-General upon his mission to the Congress at Prague, will be transmitted to the Members of the League in due course."

APPENDIX III.

Reports of Committees of the Assembly and other connected Documents.

ANNEX 1.—Report to the Council on certain aspects of the Raw Materials Problem by the Economic Section of the Provisional Economic and Financial Committee. (Communicated to the Assembly in accordance with the Council's Resolution dated the 21st September 1921.)

By Resolution of the Council, dated 27th October 1920, the Economic Section of the Economic and Financial Committee were directed to make an enquiry and report, the nature and scope of which were defined by the Resolution in the following terms:—

"The Council has fully considered the difficulties experienced by numerous countries in assuring the import of raw materials essential to their welfare and even to their existence, and has requested the Economic Section of the Economic and Financial Committee to study:—

"(a) The extent and nature of these requirements;

"(b) The causes of these difficulties (other than those arising from lack of credit or fluctuation in the rate of exchange, which have already been considered by the Brussels Financial Conference); the effects of the existence of monopolies will be very specially considered.

"The Council invites the Committee to submit to it at the earliest possible moment a report on the results of its enquiry, a report which is indispensable for the further deliberations of the International Economic and Financial Conference."

The Economic Section at once endeavoured to obtain from the Governments of the various States, Members of the League, and also from certain important non-Members, the necessary data to enable them to furnish a report of the nature desired by the Council. In particular we sought information as to the existing and pre-war statistical position as regards certain specified raw materials and the estimated requirements of each country with regard to each of these materials during the ensuing year. We also made specific enquiries as to the effect of monopolies in causing difficulties of supply, and also as to the legislative régime prevailing in each of the countries with respect to restrictions on export and import, and the powers, if any, possessed by the various Governments or Courts of Justice to restrain abuses arising from monopolistic action. Such replies as have been received to these enquiries have been carefully examined, and the results so obtained have been supplemented by a mass of valuable material furnished to us by the Secretariat based partly on an examination of documents the collection of which it had entrusted to experts, and partly on personal investigation carried out in certain countries. These supplementary enquiries were carried out by Professor Gini, and the Economic Section desire to express their great indebtedness to Professor Gini and his collaborators for the very valuable assistance which they have given to them in the prosecution of their enquiry.*

The Economic Section interpret the intention of the Council to be that their enquiry should refer primarily to the abnormal conditions prevalent at or about the time when the Council's Resolution was passed. It is obvious that a detailed economic investigation of the requirements of all countries in respect of raw materials and of the factors which might cause difficulties in the supply or demand of such materials under every conceivable condition would be a task of enormous magnitude, which would occupy much time and which could lead to no immediate practical result.

We have, therefore, in the first place endeavoured to ascertain the position at the beginning of 1921. It is, however, matter of common knowledge that since that date the whole economic situation of the world has been revolutionised. Putting aside difficulties of credit and exchange, which are expressly excluded from our reference, the outstanding factor as regards raw materials is no longer the difficulty experienced by consuming countries in securing supplies, but the difficulty experienced by producing countries in finding outlets for their products.

The deficiency of supplies, which was the dominant feature of the period when the régime of control and restrictions prevailed, was followed by a deficiency of demand at the time when that régime came to an end. The return of freedom has, in fact, contributed to the fall of prices, which, in the case of several important raw materials, have returned to the level of the prices of 1914, expressed in dollars. Moreover, congestion of markets with products manufactured at too high a cost, and the collapse of consumption owing to these excessive prices and the general financial crisis, has caused producers to reduce their output at the very time when the supply and prices of raw materials have themselves tended to return to the normal. Thus a picture based on the situation at the beginning of the present year has no longer any resemblance to the situation with which the world is at present confronted, and, indeed, the interval between the sending out of our questionnaires and the receipt of the replies has been sufficient in many cases to make the results obsolete before they have been received.

* The portions of Professor Gini's general report which relate to the matters discussed in the present Report, together with the statistical statements on cotton, wool, coal, fertilisers, etc., prepared under Professor Gini's direction, will be published at an early date.

In fact, though our investigation has been conducted as expeditiously as practicable, events have moved even faster than our enquiries, with the result that much of the material collected has lost its significance except for the purpose of an historical survey.

The rapid changes in the economic situation to which we have called attention have been partly responsible for the fact that we have been unable to obtain any authoritative estimates of the immediate requirements of the various States as regards essential raw materials. At a time when production has generally slackened, and is carried on with continual variations caused by the fluctuations in the market prices of raw materials, and the irregular demand due to the continual diminution and hesitating character of consumption, most official statisticians would be unwilling to hazard a conjecture on this subject, and, in fact, no reply has been forthcoming to the questions we have asked with a view to enabling us to fulfil paragraph (a) of our reference. Neither the enquiries conducted by the Economic Section, nor those which were entrusted to Professor Gini, have succeeded, owing to the prevailing conditions, in obtaining the data necessary to fill the blanks. On the other hand, no indication has been obtained of the existence, in any country about which we have obtained precise information, of an urgent need of raw materials which is in danger of remaining unsatisfied, at least through any deficiency of products. If, on the one hand, no State has been able to define by a figure its immediate wants, no State, on the other hand, has informed us that it has experienced any difficulties in supplying itself with any product owing to its scarcity. The statistical measurement of requirements being therefore impracticable under existing conditions, and no demand having been formulated for meeting those requirements, our task has consisted in collecting a mass of interesting statistical data, with regard to the pre-war, war, and post-war situation as regards the production, consumption, import and export of certain typical raw materials, including cotton, wool, coal, iron, mineral oil, fertilisers and cereals. But it is our duty to state clearly that no study of these data will in existing circumstances enable a reply to be furnished to paragraph (a) of our Reference.

Turning to paragraph (b) of our Reference, the first point to which we would direct attention is its limitation. We do not in any way complain of the reservation of questions of credit and exchange, which, as stated in the Council's resolution, had already been dealt with by the Brussels Financial Conference, and with which, if any second investigation were thought necessary, the Financial rather than the Economic Section of the Committee would be fitted to deal. But it is necessary to point out that, according to all the information which has reached us, any difficulties still experienced at the present time in obtaining supplies of essential materials are to a preponderant extent difficulties of credit and exchange.

In these circumstances we have considered carefully how we could best give practical assistance to the Council in attaining the objects at which it aimed when it entrusted us with the present enquiry. We conceive that these objects were practical rather than theoretic or historical, that they looked to the future rather than to the past, and that the aim was to promote the rehabilitation of countries suffering from the effects of the war rather than to institute a kind of litigation between States or to pass judgments on the motives and results of the respective policies adopted by them under stress of war and post-war conditions.

Some general acquaintance with what has taken place in the past is of course necessary for the purpose of throwing light on what may possibly recur in the future, but it has seemed to us unnecessary and inexpedient to adopt a course of enquiry which would have necessitated calling and sifting the evidence of numerous witnesses representing Governments and official and private organisations and persons, which, while unduly prolonging our enquiry and increasing its expense, could, we think, yield no fruitful result.

As a necessary consequence of this decision, we refrain in this report and in any supplementary memoranda which we may publish from expressing any but the most general opinions on the character of the war and post-war measures adopted by various countries.

Broadly speaking, the difficulties which were noted last year and which led to the Council's resolution were the result on the one hand of a real scarcity, general or local, in the supplies of raw materials as well as of a breakdown, no less real, in the transport system, and on the other hand, of a number of war or post-war measures tending to reserve certain raw materials wholly or in part to the countries of production, and also to limit and regulate their exportation so that their distribution was often artificial and their prices were usually abnormal. Whether owing to a deficiency of certain raw materials or to a legitimate apprehension that such a deficiency would arise, most producing and even consuming States created an artificial system as regards the quantities reserved or available for export, and even in certain cases as regards the internal and external prices. This was the régime which characterised the situation which the Council had to meet.

The sudden interruption of this artificial system, or the continued maintenance of certain hindrances, in spite of the market having been freed as regards the bulk of products, must be included among the important factors which still prejudice the supply of raw materials.

K

It must, however, be observed that the branches of the problem which the Council has excluded from our consideration, viz., difficulties of credit and exchange, still remain unsolved. Difficulties of credit are at bottom symptoms and results of the devastating effects of the war in reducing the purchasing capacity and impairing the economic position of certain States. Difficulties of exchange may, however, be regarded as an independent cause of difficulty, since they spring primarily not from under-production of goods but from over-production of currency. The above brief statement of the nature of the disease appears to point to the general nature of the remedies to be considered.

(1) In the first place, it is true now as at the date when the present enquiry was launched that although the symptoms of the disease are different, the fundamental remedy is the systematic readjustment of production to meet post-war conditions. The exaggerated demand for certain raw materials and half-manufactured products during the war created a certain disproportion between production and actual requirements. Constant and scientific observation is therefore necessary in order to adjust the production of raw materials to the future requirements of the world, when the industries artificially created during the war have been subjected to the operation of natural selection and when consumption has returned to the normal. So much has been said and written on this subject that we do not feel that we can usefully add anything new, especially as important aspects of the problem (e.g., limitation of hours or output) belong rather to the sphere of the International Labour Office than of our Committee.

(2) Only second in importance to the above is the restoration and improvement of transport facilities. In order to ensure the adequate supply of each country it is clearly necessary that the materials should not only be produced in adequate quantities at a reasonable cost, but that there should be sufficient means of transporting them without unreasonable delay or cost to the markets where they are required. In this respect the situation has greatly changed since the enquiry was undertaken. Maritime transport is no longer hindered by scarcity or congestion of shipping; indeed, the position has so changed that large quantities of shipping are laid up for want of goods to carry. Simultaneously (as we understand from the Transit and Communications Section, to which the subject appertains) there has been a considerable though much slower improvement as regards transport over those parts of the European railway system which were disorganised by the war. We do not propose in this report to give a detailed description of the European transport situation, parts of which were so grievously affected not only by the material destruction of the war, but also by the difficulties of allocation and repair of rolling-stock, and by the dismemberment of railway systems formerly worked as single units owing to the territorial changes under the Peace Treaties.

We wish, however, to express an earnest hope that every effort will be made to overcome the difficulties experienced by the various Commissions charged with such matters as the re-allocation and interchange of rolling-stock. We note that special provision is made in the constitution of the Technical Organisation of the League of Nations dealing with Communications and Transit for the calling of partial or regional Conferences to consider special matters. We venture to suggest to the Council that the Advisory and Technical Committee on Communications and Transit might be authorised to consider the desirability of the League taking the initiative at an appropriate moment, under the above provision, to promote the improvement of the facilities for intercommunication and transport between States whose transport systems have specially suffered from disorganisation.

(3) We next turn to the question of commercial restrictions as a factor in creating difficulties of supply of raw materials. We refer in particular to the restrictions or duties on the export of essential raw materials which formed an important feature of war policy, and which in many cases were continued during the period immediately following the armistice. These restrictions were of a kind which varied according to the countries and circumstances. We may summarise their development as follows. In the course of the war, in order to secure for themselves priority as regards their own resources or in some cases even to ensure their just distribution in accordance with the general interest at the time, certain countries took possession of all or part of their output of one or more raw materials. The forms which this reservation took were sometimes requisition, sometimes prohibition of export. The methods of allocation were either a system of licensing or of rationing. Whatever was the method adopted, the reservation thus effected exercised an influence on the price of the product. The exportable surplus, whether it was free for export or subject to a general or individual licence, represented a supply limited in relation to the actual demand. Sometimes, also, an export duty or differential export price increased the difference between the price prevailing in the producing country and the price to the foreign consumer. Sometimes, indeed, it was the foreign purchaser on whom fell the cost of the constitution of the reserve for the producing country, and the payment of an export premium. It is conceivable that measures of reservation justified in general by the needs or by the anxiety to secure supplies adequate to the needs of the producing country may have sometimes been transformed into fiscal measures or into measures of economic discrimination.

The artificial régime thus established could not in some cases be suddenly abandoned without intermediate stages intended for the progressive re-establishment of normal conditions. Until production resumed its normal condition the disposal of stocks was assured by forward sales at decreasing prices. But this artificial system has sometimes been as inconvenient as the sudden return to freedom.

Recent developments of raw materials policy have some lessons for the future.

There is no question of challenging the incontestable right which States have to dispose freely of their natural resources or of the output of their countries in respect of raw materials. It is legitimate that in exceptional circumstances they should be anxious to reserve them to themselves, and that they should have the power to subject them at any time to a régime in conformity with their natural economy.

But it is not less incontestable that raw materials produced by one country, being in many cases essential to the economic life of other States, should not, unless in exceptional cases, be the object of restrictions or of differential regulations of such a nature as to injure the production of such States, or to impose on them a systematic inferiority.

It is undesirable, particularly, that measures of restriction taken by producing countries to meet exceptional situations should be so prolonged or altered as to change their character, and from being acts of precaution or defence to degenerate into measures of economic aggression.

Doubtless as a general principle the tariff policy of States is one of their sovereign rights, and there are no doubt circumstances in which export duties or other restrictions may be necessary, e.g., in cases where other sources of revenue are lacking, or where they are an indispensable element in the economic system. Nevertheless, it is undesirable as a matter of principle to employ measures of this kind under normal conditions as weapons of economic warfare.

This consideration is of importance since, in accordance with the law of economic interdependence, measures of differentiation produce reactions throughout the raw-materials market; measures of reservation taken by a producing country influence the demand on other producing countries where the normal conditions of supply and of prices are equally affected.

What we wish to do, without attempting to lay down any hard and fast rule, is to recommend caution in this matter, and in particular to invite the attention of the Members of the League to the broader aspects of the question as affecting international economic relations. It is not only measures of restriction or prohibition, including duties on export, which may entail grave consequences in this matter, but every artificial system which involves the risk of disorganising production, whether by its establishment or by its abolition.

(4) The effect of monopolies was particularly specified in our reference as a subject for enquiry, and accordingly in our questionnaire we specially invited the observations of each Government " with regard to the prejudice, if any, caused at the present time to the supply of the reasonable requirements of the population in respect of any essential commodity by the operation of any monopoly or combination relating to manufacture, sale, import, or export, either within or outside the country."

None of the replies received, however, included any observations in reply to this question, and the supplementary enquiries that have been made have not so far produced sufficient evidence to enable us to establish any direct connection between the operations of monopolies, and any of the difficulties of supply of raw materials which we were directed to investigate. In view, however, of the great importance of this branch of the subject, we propose to make further enquiries, particularly with the object of completing our information with regard to the legal and administrative means already available in each country for combating and controlling the action of monopolies when exercised in a manner contrary to the public interest. We hope to make a further report to the Council on this part of the subject.

(5) We have not hitherto made any mention of a scheme for the organisation of the supply of raw materials by means of an International Office, which has attracted considerable public attention, though it was not mentioned in our terms of reference, nor has any definite proposal for the purpose been submitted to us for examination. We have, however, had our attention called to the matter by a communication from the International Labour Office, enclosing a resolution adopted by the Miners' International Congress in March 1920, in favour of the establishment of an International Office " for the distribution of fuel, ores, and other raw materials essential to the renewal of the normal economic life of all nations."

While realising strongly the difficulties which the scheme is intended to solve, we are convinced that it is impracticable on the following grounds :—

(a) It would, in our opinion, be impracticable to obtain the general consent of the producing and consuming States to delegate the important functions contemplated by the scheme to an International body, and the League of Nations has no power of compelling its Members to enter into any such arrangement against their will.

(b) No scheme for the international control of the distribution of raw materials could be operated without fixing prices and allocating supplies on some principle of rationing. In our opinion, this necessarily involves the international control of the whole internal economic life of the countries concerned.

(c) No scheme of rationing is possible without the power of compelling the consuming countries to take up their rations and to pay for them, which is clearly impracticable under present conditions.

(d) There is no criterion by which an International Office could fix a reasonable ration of any raw material to be allowed to any country, except either on the basis of previous consumption (which would stereotype the existing distribution of industry) or on some arbitrary estimate of needs, which would empower the International Office to dictate the lines of future industrial development of all the States of the League.

(e) If all the above objections could be overcome the mere loss to productive industry from the inevitable inefficient operation of the bureaucratic machinery of the International Office would probably be fatal to the scheme.

(6) The next group of possible remedies, viz., those designed to improve international credit and to rehabilitate exchanges, are expressly excluded from our reference, and the only point, therefore to which we venture to call attention in this connection is the possibility which has been suggested to us by Professor Gini as the result of his visit to certain countries whose finances have been disorganised by the war, that great assistance might be given by the League of Nations in the work of reconstructing the financial and economic position of those countries, if the Council were willing on the application of the Governments of such countries to nominate competent expert advisers, who could advise the Governments on such matters as currency, exchange, and financial and economic policy generally. The Economic Section, while alive to the practical difficulties involved in such a proposal, consider that it is one which merits the careful attention of the Council.

It would be necessary, of course, to take great care in the selection of the advisers, and to come to an understanding with the Government in question as to the conditions of their engagement. It will probably be found that the extent and value of the services which an adviser will be able to render will depend mainly on his personality, but it is essential to safeguard his position and independence by a suitable contract. It has been represented to us that some countries which would be unwilling, on grounds of prestige, to apply for advisers to particular Governments, may be willing and anxious to utilise the services of an international and impartial body like the League of Nations for this purpose, and in view of the fact that the financial administration of certain States is, at the present very critical time, in the hands of relatively inexperienced officers, we venture to think that an experiment in the direction indicated may be fruitful in good results. We may add that we do not propose that the League should incur any financial or other responsibility beyond the careful selection of the nominees. Should the Council see no objection to this proposal in principle, we suggest that it should be remitted to the Financial Section of our Committee to work out a detailed scheme. If in the meantime, as is possible, any definite application should be received by the Council for the nomination of a technical adviser for any of the States in question, we recommend that it should be sympathetically considered.

ANNEX 2.—Report of the Third Committee to the Assembly concerning the Reduction of Armaments.

The question of reduction of armaments was considered at the First Assembly, and it arrived at three resolutions and one recommendation on the subject. The third resolution, which was in some respects the most important, ran as follows :—

"The Committee, being convinced that the maintenance of peace demands the reduction of armaments, in accordance with the principles set forth in Article 8 of the Covenant and in the preamble of Part V of the Treaties of Peace of Versailles, Saint-Germain, and Neuilly, which declare that the disarmament of certain Powers signatory to those Treaties be provided for 'in order to render possible the initiation of a general limitation of the armaments of all nations' ;

"And associating itself with the pronouncement of the Supreme Council on 8th March last 'that, in order to diminish the economic difficulties of Europe, armies should everywhere be reduced to a peace footing, that armaments should be limited to the lowest possible figure compatible with national security, and that the League of Nations be invited to examine proposals to that end without delay' ;

"And with the Resolution of the International Financial Conference at Brussels, 'recommending most earnestly to the Council of the League of Nations the desirability of conferring at once, and agreeing with, the several Governments concerned, with a view to securing a general reduction of the crushing burdens which, on their existing scale, armaments still impose on the impoverished peoples of the world, sapping their resources and imperilling their recovery from the ravages of war' ;

"Realising, on the other hand, that a complete and comprehensive scheme of disarmament depends upon the following conditions : first, under the responsibility of the Powers signatory to the Treaties of Peace, upon the complete fulfilment of the reduction of armaments imposed by the abovementioned Treaties upon certain of these Powers : secondly, upon the exercise, as occasion may demand, of the right of investigation accorded by these Treaties to the Council of the League of Nations, in order to maintain this reduction ; and, lastly, on the collaboration of the other great military Powers which have hitherto remained outside the League ;

"Invite the Council :—

"(a) To request the Permanent Advisory Commission for Military, Naval and Air Questions rapidly to complete its technical examination into the present condition of armaments ;

"(b) To instruct a temporary Commission, composed of persons possessing the requisite competence in matters of a political, social and economic nature, to prepare for submission to the Council in the near future reports and proposals for the reduction of armaments as provided for by Article 8 of the Covenant ;

"(c) To form within the Secretariat a section to serve as a centre of information for the Commission in question, and also as a channel for the publication and exchange of the information referred to in the Covenant ;

"(d) To consider the mechanism by means of which the military information to be exchanged under the provisions of Article 8 of the Covenant can be verified in the event of the principle of mutual verification by Members of the League being confirmed by an amendment to the Covenant."

The action taken by the Council in pursuance of the definite proposals here made will be found in the report to the Second Assembly on the work of the Council at pages 75 to 81. It will be noticed that as to proposal (a) no practical result has been achieved. The Permanent Advisory Commission drew up a questionnaire on the subject, but the Council decided it was not desirable to send it out. It is now proposed that the matter should, to some extent, be dealt with in a different way. As to proposal (b) a good deal has been done. The Temporary Commission has been appointed as set out on pages 74 and 75 of the above-mentioned report. Unfortunately, owing to reasons into which it is not necessary now to enter, the Temporary Commission did not meet until 16th July of this year, and has consequently only been able to hold some five meetings, which has necessarily restricted the work it has been able to do. Still, even so, there is much that is valuable in its report. An examination of that document will show that the Commission has made certain recommendations which have been examined by this Committee, and they have dealt with them under the following heads :—

I —Statistics.

The Committee took note of the resolution adopted by the First Assembly in accordance with which the Assembly, while recognising that the final and general limitation of armaments is subordinate to certain preliminary conditions, expressed the wish that the first steps towards disarmament should be taken without delay.

One of the preliminary conditions is the ascertainment of the present military strength of the various States, and, consequently, it is necessary to carry out a statistical investigation which would bring into clear relief the ante-bellum and the present position of armaments. To this should be added such information of a military and budgetary nature as will allow of an accurate estimate being formed of the military power of the various States and of the measures which they may have already adopted for the reduction of their armaments. Nor must the position of each State from the point of view of its national security be overlooked.

The Committee therefore proposes :—

(a) That a statistical investigation should be carried out with regard to the armaments of the various countries for the years 1913 and 1921. The enquiry should bring out the facts indicated in the programme drawn up by the Temporary Mixed Commission in pages 7 and 8 of its report to the Council.

(b) That with regard to the method to be followed, a beginning should be made by gathering all possible information to be obtained from international treaties, official publications, parliamentary papers and debates, year books and other public sources of information ; but that, if need be, the enquiry should be completed, as far as the Members of the League of Nations are concerned, by means of a questionnaire based upon the programme which has been approved.

(c) That the Governments should be asked to furnish to the Secretariat of the League of Nations : —

(1) The military, naval and air budgets for the years 1913 and 1921 ;

(3) The general budget for all the Ministries for the years 1913 and 1921 ;

(3) The reports and minutes of parliamentary debates relative to military, naval and air estimates in 1913 and 1921, and, in general all legislative documents and other publications which throw light on the military policy of each State ;

(4) The text of the laws determining the organisation of the land and sea forces.

(d) That, as soon as possible, each of the Governments should be asked to furnish a statement of the considerations it may wish to urge in regard to the requirements of its national security, its international obligations, its geographical situation and its special circumstances.

The Governments should be especially requested to indicate separately the police and military forces which they consider indispensable for the preservation of domestic order, and the expenditure entailed thereby.

(e) That the responsibility for carrying out these resolutions should be left to the Secretariat, under the direction of the Temporary Commission and of the Council, and that the Secretariat should be enabled to deal as rapidly as possible with the work of summarising and co-ordinating the statistical data and the documents sent to it, and should be enabled also, in case of need, to call upon the co-operation of competent correspondents in the various countries chosen by the Armaments Section under the supervision of the Temporary Commission.

The Secretariat should be authorised to publish from time to time, with the consent of its Temporary Mixed Commission and of the Council, reports on the partial results of the investigation, without waiting till the results of the statistical enquiry have been fully co-ordinated.

(f) That once the enquiry has been carried out for the years 1913 and 1921, the Council should be responsible for keeping it up to date for the succeeding years and for having it put into execution by competent bodies.

These resolutions in effect accept the recommendations on the points made by the Temporary Commission. In one point, however, they go further. The proposal that the Governments should make specific returns of what they require for the preservation of domestic order is based on the consideration that with these forces the League of Nations is not directly concerned. Their size and strength are primarily a domestic matter, and do not in themselves affect the international situation. The rest of the forces of each State is for the purpose of combating foreign foes, and it is this portion of the forces which it is the duty of the League of Nations of reduce. It is of great importance that the peoples of the world should be made aware how much of the money and personnel devoted to armaments is the direct consequence of international fear and suspicion, by reason of the relativity of their respective state of safety. It is only by a realisation of this truth that an effective appeal can be made to the reason and conscience of mankind in favour of a serious reduction of armaments.

II.—Private Manufacture of and Trade in Arms.

The next point in the Temporary Commission's report dealt with by the Committee was that concerning private manufacture of armaments and trade in arms.

These matters are to a certain extent dealt with together by the Temporary Commission, and they are no doubt very closely related, since it is evident that the control over the trade in arms would make a very material difference in the question of their manufacture. Still they are separate questions, and may well have to be dealt with by separate international action. The position of the private manufacture of arms under the Covenant is that it is recognised to involve evil consequences which are not defined, and that the Members of the League are to agree to find a remedy for them. It is obvious that there are two stages necessary before the evils can be dealt with. They must first be examined and their nature ascertained; proposals for dealing with them can then be made.

The Committee were therefore of opinion :—

(1) That the Temporary Commission, aided by the Secretariat, should continue its investigations into the whole subject; and

(2) That the Assembly should request the Council to invite all the Members of the League and interested States which are not Members of the League to take part in an International Conference on the Private Manufacture of Arms and the Trade in Arms, so far as it has not been dealt with earlier, which should meet as soon as posssible at a date to be fixed under the responsibility of the Council. It is considered highly desirable that this date should be prior to the next session of the Assembly.

The Temporary Mixed Commission should be entrusted with the task of preparing the programme of the Conference and of submitting to it a draft Convention.

Some members of the Committee were anxious that a date should be fixed before which the Conference should be held, but the majority were of opinion that to fix a date might be productive of serious practical inconvenience, and that it was enough to express the view that it was desirable that the Conference should be held before the next Assembly.

III—Arms Traffic.

It will be noticed in the last quoted resolution that the Committee recommend that the Conference should also consider the question of the trade in arms, and indeed it is vitally necessary that some control over the export and import of munitions of war should be established and in particular that full information as to the extent and nature of this trade should be given to the League of Nations, and should be published. The Committee are of opinion that this question should be dealt with in a separate Convention concluded at the Conference which considers the private manufacture of arms so far as it has not been dealt with earlier.

Further, the Committee had before them the first Resolution of the First Assembly, calling attention to the position with regard to the Convention of St. Germain on the traffic in arms, as well as the report of the Temporary Commission on the subject, and they arrived at the following resolutions :—

"1. The Assembly is of opinion that the control of the international traffic in arms and ammunition is an essential preliminary to any effective supervision of armaments, and that no international agreement for this purpose can attain the desired object so long as there remain important countries in which the arms traffic is not subjected to control. The Assembly therefore strongly impresses on all the States signatories to the Arms Traffic Convention of St. Germain, whether Members of the League of Nations or not, the urgent importance of ratifying the Convention at the earliest possible moment; and, at the same time it invites all non-signatory States to adhere to the Convention.

"2. The Assembly expresses its earnest desire that the importance of this subject may be strongly urged at the forthcoming Conference on Reduction of Armaments at Washington.

"3. The Assembly, taking note of the view expressed in the report of the Temporary Mixed Commission on the Reduction of Armaments with regard to the desirability of making provision for excluding the import of arms and ammunition in time of peace from countries in which the traffic is uncontrolled, invites the Council to prepare a draft protocol for this purpose for the consideration of the various Governments. At the same time it expresses the earnest hope that this procedure will not in any way be permitted to delay the general ratification of the Convention of St. Germain."

They are further of opinion that some steps should be taken to deal with the large stock of surplus munitions of war at present existing in the world. They are a very serious danger to peace, and it is not too much to say that much of the fighting which is at present going on in the world would not be taking place had the sale of these surplus stocks been more effectively controlled.

The two subjects are closely connected, and as part of their proposals for dealing with the trade in arms, as distinct from the St. Germain Convention on the traffic in arms, the Temporary Commission should also consider what steps can be taken to secure the destruction of existing surplus stocks of munitions.

The report of the Temporary Commission deals also with certain other subjects notably the recommendation of the First Assembly that:—

" Pending the full execution of the measures for the reduction of armaments recommended by Article 8 of the Covenant, the Assembly recommends the Council to submit for the consideration of the Governments the acceptance of an undertaking not to exceed for the first two financial years following the next financial year, the sum total of expenditure of the naval, military and air services provided for in the latter budget, subject, however, to account being taken of the following reservations :—

" (1) Any contributions of troops, war material and money recommended by the League of Nations, with a view to the fulfilment of obligations imposed by Article 16 of the Covenant or by treaties registered by the League.

" (2) Exceptional conditions notified as such to the Council of the League of Nations in accordance with the spirit of paragraphs 2 and 6 of Article 8 of the Covenant."

The report sets out the replies on this matter which have been received from the various countries, and expresses the opinion that the enquiry has not given very conclusive results. In this opinion the Committee concurs. They think, however, it might be well to circulate the recommendation once again, together with a statement of the results so far achieved. Some of the countries may well be prepared to go further than they have hitherto thought it possible to proceed.

The Temporary Commission also considered the question of investigation and reciprocal control. The Committee have no observations to make on this part of the Temporary Commission's report.

It will be noted that this section of the Temporary Commission's report deals with point (d) in the resolution of the First Assembly quoted at the commencement of this report. The proposal contained in the remaining point in this last-mentioned resolution, namely, point (c), has already been carried out as set out in the Report of the Council on page 75. The Committee were, however, of opinion that in view of the very considerable addition to the duties of the Secretariat which they are recommending in the matter of reduction of armaments, further provisions should be made for increasing the Armaments Section of that body.

It will be remembered that, at the First Assembly, proposals were made for condemning the use of poison gas in warfare in accordance with the report of the Council on the subject. The Assembly did not in fact take any action about this, and indeed the experience of the late war has shown how difficult it is to enforce any regulations as to the conduct of war under modern conditions. At the same time the Committee are of opinion that the employment of poison gas and similar devices in warfare is an evil of tremendous proportions. It has been stated that inventions have been made or perfected since the war, whereby wholesale destruction of the civil population would be possible by the dropping of poison bombs and the like from the air nor is there any reason to suppose that the limits of invention in these fiendish devices have been reached. And if, as seems to the Committee to be arguable, the employment of these weapons would be rendered impracticable if there were no secrecy about them, the possibility of obtaining complete publicity for scientific researches in this domain is certainly worth exploring. Accordingly the Committee recommend that the Temporary Mixed Commission should be asked to consider whether an appeal should not be addressed to all scientific men of the world, urging them to publish to the world the results of their discoveries in such matters, so that the knowledge of them having become public property, their use as weapons of war by any single State may be rendered improbable.

Valuable and important as the proposals are which have been discussed, it is nevertheless true that they do not touch the kernel of the question. If they were all carried out, only preliminary steps would have been taken towards the limitation of armaments. By Article 8 of the Covenant it is made the duty of the Council to "formulate schemes" for the reduction of armaments. No such scheme can yet be said to have been formulated. Doubtless there is much force in the contention that armaments can only be effectively limited when a world condition of peace have been reached, and when the League has become universal. But even this contention may be pressed too far. Complete peace has scarcely ever existed in the world, and cannot be expected in the immediate future. Few observers will deny that great steps might be taken towards the limitation of armaments in many of the principal countries if it were not for the existence of international fear and suspicion, depending not on present hostilities, but on the recollection of past wars. It is true that no complete scheme of reduction of armaments can be carried out without the co-operation of the United States, Germany and Russia. In particular, the naval strength of the first-named Power makes any scheme of naval disarmament impossible without her support, and it is for that reason among others that the Committee warmly welcomes the forthcoming conference at Washington, and trusts that it may be fruitful in securing a large measure of reduction of armaments. But on the military side it must be observed that the Army of the United States has been reduced to 120,000 men. German disarmament, whether complete or not, has proceeded a very considerable distance, and the armies of Russia have neither equipment nor discipline to be a very formidable force to any well trained European army.

There seems no reason indeed why the Council, in performance of the duty imposed upon them by the Covenant, should not lay down the general lines of a policy for the limitation of armaments. The Committee therefore think it desirable that the Temporary Commission should be specifically charged with the duty of preparing such a policy.

It is clear that if, and when, this policy come to be put into effect by the acceptance of a definite scheme of reduction of armaments by the Governments of the Members of the League, this scheme might take the form either of a general treaty or of a series of regional treaties laying down in detailed stipulations the armed forces which each of the contracting parties undertake not to exceed. There is no need here to go into the exact form which these treaties would take. There are already in existence treaties limiting the armaments of various countries, and possibly these might serve as a model. That, however, is a minor point. The principal thing is that the agreements which bring about the reduction of armaments would have to embody mutual undertakings either as to the number of men to be maintained by the various countries, or as to the amount of money to be spent on the equipment, or as to both men and money. It is most important, in order to bring a concrete proposal before the attention of the peoples of the world, that the Temporary Mixed Commission should, after due consideration, draw up the general lines of some definite plan in accordance with which these agreements might be framed. It would be worth while for them to consider whether they could go so far as to propose a report in the form of a model skeleton treaty which could be adapted to the requirements of the situation when the actual agreements came to be made. In order to carry out this task the Committee adopted the suggestion of one of the members of the Temporary Mixed Commission that it should be reinforced.

Finally, the Committee recognise that a policy of disarmament to be successful requires the support of the populations of the world. Limitation of armaments will never be imposed by Governments on peoples, but it may be imposed by peoples on Governments. The Committee are firmly convinced that it is of the most urgent importance that an earnest and vigorous propaganda be carried on in all countries of the world, to bring home to their populations the urgent necessity for the reduction of armaments as provided for in Article 8 of the Covenant, and the Committee venture to suggest to the various delegates to this Assembly that they should make it their business to preach this doctrine in their own countries. For it is only by creating an instructed public opinion in each country that the necessary strength of world opinion can be obtained.

The following recommendations have therefore been adopted by the Committee :—

1. That it is desirable that the Temporary Mixed Commission should be asked to continue the work which it has begun.

2. That the Temporary Mixed Commission be asked to make proposals on general lines for the reduction of national armaments which, in order to secure precision, should be in the form of a draft treaty or other equally definite plan, to be presented to the Council if possible before the Assembly next year.

In order to enable the Temporary Mixed Commission to accomplish this task, the Council should be asked to strengthen the Temporary Mixed Commission.

3. A statistical investigation will be made with regard to the armaments of the various countries upon the lines indicated in the body of the report.

4. That the Temporary Mixed Commission be requested to continue the examination of the question of the Private Manufacture of Armaments and the Trade in Arms.

5. That the Council be requested to invite all the Members of the League and interested States which are not Members of the League to take part in an International Conference on the Private Manufacture of Arms and the Trade in Arms, which should meet as soon as possible at a date to be fixed under the responsibility of the Council. It is considered highly desirable that this date should be prior to the next session of the Assembly.

The Temporary Mixed Commission should be entrusted with the task of preparing the programme of the Conference and of submitting to it a draft convention.

6. That the urgent importance of ratifying the Convention at the earliest possible moment should be strongly impressed on all the States signatories to the Arms Traffic Convention of St. Germain, whether Members of the League of Nations or not, and at the same time all non-signatory States should be invited to adhere to the Convention.

The Assembly expresses its earnest desire that the importance of this subject may be strongly urged at the forthcoming Conference on Disarmament at Washington.

7. The Assembly, taking note of the view expressed in the Report of the Temporary Mixed Commission on Disarmament with regard to the desirability of making provision for excluding the import of arms and ammunition in time of peace from countries in which the traffic is uncontrolled, invites the Council to prepare a draft protocol for this purpose for the consideration of the various Governments. At the same time it expresses the earnest hope that this procedure will not in any way be permitted to delay the general ratification of the Convention of St. Germain. The steps that may eventually have to be taken for the destruction of the surplus stocks of munitions may be considered by the Temporary Mixed Commission.

8. That, subject to the conditions set out in the recommendation of the first Assembly, the recommendation that Members of the League should undertake not to exceed for the next two financial years following the present year the sum total of expenditure on military, naval and air forces provided for in the budget of that year, should be again forwarded to all Members of the League, together with a statement showing the replies already received to this recommendation.

9. That the Temporary Mixed Commission be asked to examine—in consultation with the Permanent Advisory Commission—whether it is advisable to address an appeal to the scientific men of the world to publish their discoveries in poison gas and similar subjects, so as to minimise the likelihood of their being used in any future war.

10. That it is desirable that propaganda in favour of the reduction of armaments, as contemplated in the Covenant, should be carried out with earnestness and conviction in all nations.

11. In pursuance of the third resolution of the First Assembly, the Committee is of opinion that the Secretariat should be asked to complete the organisation of the Section of the Secretariat dealing with the question of the reduction of armaments and that this section should have a directorship of its own, or other equivalent official organisation, quite separate from and, if necessary, in addition to, those already proposed by the Fourth Committee of the Assembly.

ANNEX 3.—Report presented to the Assembly by Committee No. III, on the Economic Weapon of the League.

The League of Nations broached last year the question of the use of the economic weapon and of the construction to be placed upon the provisions of Article 16 of the Covenant. The First Assembly entrusted this question to the Sixth Committee, which, after a Sub-Committee had investigated the matter, submitted a report, drawn up by Lord Robert Cecil, to the Assembly. In this Report, which was adopted by the Assembly with certain slight amendments, the Sixth Committee made certain provisional suggestions with regard to the interpretation and application of Article 16, and in conclusion drafted the following resolution:—

"The Council should be asked to appoint an International Blockade Committee to consider the application of Article 16 of the Covenant. The Committee will report to the Council, which shall place the conclusions before the Assembly at its next session for their acceptance, rejection, or amendment, without prejudice to any action which may have been originally taken upon them. The Committee should not exceed eight in number, with power to summon experts to advise them, and not less than half its members should be persons representing States which have not a right to permanent membership of the Council."

The first Assembly adopted this Resolution at its meeting on 10th December 1920. The Council therefore appointed the International Blockade Committee, which sat at Geneva from 22nd to 29th August last, and submitted its report to the Council at the end of that month.

The Council has submitted this report to the present Assembly, and the latter has referred it to the Third Committee.

The Third Committee has devoted a number of meetings to the consideration and discussion of the International Blockade Committee's Report, and now has the honour to submit to the Assembly the result of its investigations and the conclusions drawn therefrom.

The International Blockade Committee, with a view to accomplishing its task, divided its report into four headings, on the basis of the following questionnaire: -

(1) Under what conditions should sanction, be applied?

(2) Whose duty is it to decide that the necessity for sanctions has arisen?

(3) At what moment, and by whom, should these measures be applied?

(4) How should they be applied?

Your Committee has adopted the same logical system in its enquiry, and has thus been enabled to investigate in proper sequence all the principal questions relating to the employment of the economic weapon, especially the questions referred to in the report adopted by the First Assembly.

The Committee has, however, slightly amended the headings of the various chapters in order to make these headings correspond more precisely to the subject dealt with in each chapter.

It is important first of all that certain general considerations should be put forward.

There is no doubt that Article 16 is one of the most important and fundamental Articles contained in the Covenant. As Lord Robert Cecil pointed out in the speech which he made on this question in the First Assembly, the most powerful weapon possessed by the League of Nations is the public opinion of the world, which will force the members of the League to respect the Covenant. In the domestic affairs of States, however, it is sometimes necessary to use force in order to compel certain individuals to respect the law, and in the same way it may, in certain cases, be necessary to resort to the economic weapon in order to compel Members of the League to fulfil their obligations.

It follows, therefore, that Article 16 is one of the principal elements of the legal system embodied in the Covenant, and this system would be altogether incomplete were no provision made for the enforcement of effective sanctions against States which do not fulfil their obligations.

On the other hand, there is no doubt whatever that the application of Article 16 involves many complicated questions which it is very difficult to solve.

The starting point of the argument and of the conclusions arrived at by the Blockade Committee has been as follows:—The authors of the Covenant had considered the League of Nations as an organisation embracing all or nearly all States, and capable of prompt action in the event of breach of the Covenant. In the view of the International Blockade Committee, the application of Article 16, even had the League been universal, might have formidable consequences either for the League of Nations in general or for some of its Members. But the afore-mentioned Committee was of the opinion that as the League of Nations had not yet attained a world-wide or nearly world-wide character, a very rigid application of Article 16 would not only meet with very great obstacles, but might also place the States Members of the League in very difficult situations. That is why the International Blockade Committee has seen fit to recommend solutions which, in the present stage of the League of Nations, will, so far as possible, make allowance for the facts as they are.

Your Committee therefore considered that it must proceed cautiously and by degrees; hence the texts which it ventures to submit to you.

The International Blockade Committee came to the conclusion that certain parts of Article 16 would have to be modified, and submitted texts to this effect, considering also that if its various proposals for interpretation were favourably received, it would be expedient to sumbit the Article as a whole to re-consideration and re-drafting.

Your Committee has accepted this point of view and accordingly submits to you a new drafting of Article 16, embodying the amendments which it thought necessary to introduce.

For this reason your Committee has considered it advisable to leave the provisions of Article 16 as a whole intact and in their logical connection, restricting itself to proposing three amendments only to the text of the Article which appeared indispensable, as they contemplate measures for the adoption of which declarations of a purely interpretative character would not suffice.

I.—Under what Conditions should Sanctions be applied? Effect of a Member of the League having resort to War in violation of the Covenant.

The Blockade Committee, in the first place, expressed the opinion that, reserving the special provision in Article 17, the economic measures mentioned in Article 16 are only applicable to the specific case contemplated in that Article.

Your Committee associates itself with this point of view; the provisions of Article 16 in this respect are clear and explicit. Economic measures as a means, not only of putting an end to hostilities, but also as a means of forestalling them, or of assuring the execution of arbitral awards, may be contemplated also in other cases—to give examples, in those cases referred to in Articles 10 and 11, first paragraph, Article 17, fourth paragraph, etc. In these circumstances, however, the application of economic measures has not the character of a compulsory sanction as in the hypothesis contemplated by Article 16. What is this hypothesis?

It is laid down that, "should any Member of the League resort to war in disregard of its Covenants under Articles 12, 13 or 15." It would, therefore, be necessary to resort to compulsory application of the economic sanctions provided for by Article 16 when a Member of the League resorts to war—

(a) without having submitted a dispute likely to lead to a rupture either to arbitration or to enquiry by the Council (Article 12, first paragraph);

(b) without having waited three months after the award by the arbitrators or the report by the Council (Article 12, first paragraph);

(c) against a Member of the League which complies with the award by the arbitrators (Article 13, fourth paragraph);

(d) against a Member of the League which shall have accepted a report by the Council concurred in by all the Members, or a resolution of the Assembly adopted by a majority under the conditions contemplated by the last paragraph of Article 15.

Finally, the compulsory application of economic sanctions mentioned in Article 16 is required in the case contemplated in the first and third paragraphs of Article 17, either, when a State, not a Member of the League, has resorted to war and agrees to submit to the obligations imposed upon Members for the purpose of settling a dispute, or when a State which is not a Member of the League refuses to accept these obligations.

A second point of great importance for the just interpretation of Article 16 is the declaration, contained in the first paragraph of the same Article, the State Member of the League which resorts to war contrary to the provisions of Articles 12, 13, 15, "shall, ipso facto, be considered as having committed an act of war against all the other Members of the League."

With regard to this, the Blockade Committee has emphasised the difference between act of war and state of war. There is no doubt that an act of war on the part of the Covenant-breaking State gives to all the other Members of the League the right to proceed to acts of war against that State, and even to declare themselves at war with it.

But the unilateral act of the defaulting State is not, according to the views held by the Blockade Committee, sufficient to create a state of war which would, for the greater part of the Members of the League, be a mere fiction.

Your Committee concurred in this point of view. The fundamental idea inspiring the Covenant is the avoidance of war and the substitution of pacific measures for the settlement of international differences, or of less violent sanctions such as those of an economic nature. Once this fundamental idea is admitted, it scarcely seems rational to attribute to the unilateral act of a defaulting State the power of determining automatically a general state of war throughout the world; it is evidently not in the interests of the Members of the League to be obliged to consider themselves from the first moment as at war with the defaulting State, and to deduce from this state of war all the consequences admitted by international law.

It appears, on the contrary, more in keeping with the high ideals of the League of Nations to grant the Members of the League a certain latitude in applying the sanctions contained in Article 16, so that at the outset they might restrict themselves to exercising a certain economic pressure which could, if necessary, be gradually increased and intensified; but they might declare themselves definitely at war only if the defaulting State persisted in its conduct as a Covenant-breaking State.

In accordance with the foregoing considerations, the Committee asks the Assembly to adopt the following Resolutions:—

1. Subject to the special provisions of Article 17, the economic measures referred to in Article 16 shall be applicable only in the specific case referred to in this Article.

2. The unilateral action of the defaulting State cannot create a state war: it merely entitles the other Members of the League to resort to acts of war or to declare themselves in a state of war with the Covenant-breaking State; but it is in accordance with the spirit of the Covenant that the League of Nations should attempt, at least at the outset, to avoid war, and to restore peace by economic pressure.

II. – Whose Duty is it to decide that the necessity for Sanctions has arisen? Nature and Limitations of the Powers of the Council.

A guiding principle for the interpretation of Article 16 was approved by the Assembly at its first meeting, in accordance with the proposals of the Committee set up last year. This principle is as follows: It is the duty of each of the Members of the League to ascertain and to decide whether a breach of the Covenant within the meaning of Article 16 has been committed.

The principle is in agreement with the spirit of the Covenant, and with the fact that Article 16 does not recognise that any organisation of the League of Nations has the power to decide, in such a way as to bind all the other Members, that a given Member is a treaty-breaking State. Such a power would not be consistent with the sovereign rights of the various States.

On the other hand, this principle certainly does not mean that the Members of the League may of their own free will withdraw from the obligations incurred in virtue of the Covenant. When cases provided for by Article 16 arise, and as soon as a Member of the League is convinced that a breach of the Covenant has occurred within the meaning of Article 16, it is bound to co-operate in the application of the sanctions provided for in this Article. This obligation is explicitly imposed by the Covenant, and must be observed by the Members of the League in accordance with the respect due to Treaties.

Nevertheless, the difficulties involved in the application of the fundamental principle which we have just stated cannot be ignored.

Differences of opinion may exist in the various countries as to the facts which would constitute a breach of the Covenant within the meaning of Article 16. As the International Blockade Committee points out, grave doubts may arise as to which country had committed the first acts of war, or whether the State which has been attacked has carried out a unanimous recommendation of the Council. Moreover, isolated attempts, aiming at the immediate application of the economic sanction, might involve the States actually making these attempts in very unfortunate consequences, without affecting the Convenant-breaking State to any appreciable degree. They may, moreover, give rise to disagreements between the States applying the economic weapon and such Members of the League as may delay in doing so.

It is therefore a question of reconciling the liberty and independence of the States in the determination of a breach of the Covenant on the one side, with the obvious necessity on the other, of arriving at an agreement between Members of the League as to the existence of a substantive breach of the Covenant within the meaning of Article 16 and of co-ordinating their action on the basis of a joint plan.

Your Committee believes that this conciliation can be found in the procedure outlined in the Resolutions, the text of which it submits to you at the end of this chapter.

Every Member of the League has the right, and it is the Secretary-General's duty immediately to inform the Council of any breach of the Covenant, or to warn it of the danger of such a breach. Thus informed, the Council, on its side, must meet with as little delay as possible, and summon, besides the States involved in the conflict, the other States most concerned which are not represented on the Council.

It is not possible to give any exact definition of what is to be understood by "the States most concerned." Nevertheless, we are in agreement on this point with the International Blockade Committee, and we have therefore endeavoured to show, in a list which is purely indicative in character, what States these might be. The majority of the Committee did not agree with the International Blockade Committee proposal to leave—temporarily and subject to the Council's decision—the choice of the States to be summoned to the President of the Council. It seemed to the majority of the Committee that this was a duty of such importance that it could only be assigned to the Council itself; this body, moreover, meeting urgently, would certainly not fail to take steps at its first meeting for summoning the States in question. If the choice of the States to be summoned were left to the President, this procedure might give rise to serious inconveniences, especially if the President's choice should not be ratified by the Council.

It must be emphasised that the Council must not take any decision as to whether a breach of the Covenant had taken place; its duty is merely to give its opinion.

It is the great moral authority of the Council, strengthened by the presence of the States concerned, which must confer upon its opinion that convincing force which is essential for bringing the Members of the League into agreement, and for inducing them to take joint action. Faced with the Council's opinion, deeming a State to have broken the Covenant, it will be very difficult for the Members of the League to evade the fulfilment of their engagements.

In order that the Council's opinion that a breach of the Covenant has taken place may have all necessary influence on the Members of the League, it is indispensable that the minutes of the meeting at which this opinion has been formulated should be transmitted with the least possible delay to all the Members of the League, together with a statement explaining the reasons for this opinion and a request to the Members to conform thereto; the greatest publicity should be given to this act in order that it may be known to States which do not belong to the League of Nations and to public opinion throughout the whole world.

One more point remains to be elucidated with regard to the procedure to be followed by the Council in adopting the opinion in question.

We have admitted that representatives of the States in conflict and of the other States most concerned, even if they are not Members of the Council, should sit on that body whenever an opinion is to be formulated as to whether there has been a breach of the Covenant or not.

That is in accordance with the provisions of Article 4, paragraph 5, of the Covenant. But it would not be possible to admit also that a State accused of having violated the Covenant, whether it is or is not an ordinary Member of the Council, may by its vote prevent action on the part of the League, or that the accusing State should have a decisive influence on the opinion adopted by the Council.

The Committee has endeavoured to avoid, as far as possible, proposing amendments to Article 16, preferring to employ the method of interpretative statement. But to settle the question of procedure which is under discussion here, it is essential to amend the text of Article 16 in order to modify the general provisions laid down in Articles 4 and 5.

We have accepted the International Blockade Committee's idea not to create a permanent technical organisation to carry out Article 16, but only to provide that the Council shall, if necessary, when Article 16 is being applied, be assisted by a technical Committee, the members of which would be appointed by the Council.

The Committee proposes that the Assembly should adopt the following resolutions :—

1. It is the duty of each Member of the League to decide for itself whether a breach of the Covenant has been committed. The fulfilment of their duties under Article 16 is required from Members of the League by the express terms of the Covenant, and they cannot neglect them without breach of their Treaty obligations.

2. All cases of breach of Covenant under Article 16 should be referred to the Council as a matter of urgency at the request of any Member of the League. Further, should a breach of Covenant be committed, or should there arise a danger of such breach being committed, the Secretary-General should at once give notice thereof to all the Members of the Council. Upon receipt of such a request by a Member of the League, or of such a notice by the Secretary-General, the Council will meet as soon as possible. The Council should proceed to summon representatives of the parties to the conflict and of all States which are neighbours of the defaulting State, or which normally maintain close economic relations with it, or whose co-operation would be especially valuable for the application of Article 16.

3. If the Council is of opinion that a State has been guilty of a breach of Covenant, the minutes of the meeting at which that opinion is arrived at should be immediately sent to all Members of the League, accompanied by a statement of reasons and by an invitation to take action accordingly. The fullest publicity shall be given to this decision.

4. For the purpose of assisting it to enforce Article 16, the Council may, if it thinks fit, be assisted by a technical Committee. The composition of this Committee, which will remain in permanent session as soon as the action decided on is taken, will be subject to modification and may include, if desirable, representatives of the States specially affected. Those representatives should be selected by the Council.

The Committee proposes the following amendment to Article 16 before the last paragraph should be inserted :—

"The Council has to give an opinion as to whether a breach of the Covenant has taken place or not. When the Council gives such an opinion, the votes of the States charged with having committed a breach of the Covenant and of the State bringing the charge, no matter whether these States are Members of the Council by virtue of Article 4, paragraph 1, of the Covenant, or have been specially summoned, shall not be reckoned in determining whether or not there has been an unanimous decision."

III.—At what Moment and by whom should the Sanctions be applied?

The Committee agrees with the International Blockade Committee as regards the following statement: In view of the fact that it is necessary in the general interest that the economic weapon should be effective, and that for this purpose efforts must be centralised and a common plan of action adopted, the Council should fix a date on which the measures in question should be taken, and that it should give notice of this date to all the Members of the League.

It is true that in paragraph 1 of Article 16 the word "immediately" is used, but this word may, in the opinion of the majority of the Committee, be reconciled, according to circumstances and common sense, with the necessary and inevitable period required for the adoption and putting into practice of a common plan for the application of the economic sanctions.

The Committee also agrees with the International Blockade Committee as regards the general principle that, all States should be on the same footing in respect of the application of measures of economic pressure, and should be treated with absolute impartiality. This general principle, however, may, in practice, give rise to certain reservations on two grounds.

On the one hand, it may be necessary to assign a special mission to certain States. For example, those States which border upon or are situated near the State which has violated the Covenant may have to take special measures, the adoption of which by the other Members of the League it would be unnecessary or quite useless to demand It may also be necessary to take naval, military or air measures against the State which has committed a breach of the Covenant. In this case it is the duty of the Council under the terms of Article 16, paragraph 2, to recommend to the various Governments concerned the measures to be adopted. It is clear, however, that all States could not be called upon to take part in these steps in the same manner and to the some extent.

In the second place, the International Blockade Committee was of opinion that in the case of certain States complete and immediate participation in an economic blockade might, owing to the inadequate natural resources and the geographical position of these States, involve them in serious dangers, particularly if the blockaded State were economically very strong and one with which the States in question ordinarily maintain close commercial relations. The amendments to the Covenant submitted by the Scandinavian States refer to this case.

On this point the international Blockade Committee arrived at the conclusion that in practice the principle on which these amendments are based must be carried out, but that it is of the utmost importance to specify that what is aimed at is not a general system of exemptions, but only an exemption for a specific case and in particular circumstances which justify such an exemption. On this point the International Blockade Committee proposed the following amendment to Article 16 :—

" The Council may, however, at the request of a Member which can show that the facilities demanded are essential for its economic or political security, grant such exemptions as, in its opinion, will not conflict with the aims of Article 16."

On this point there was a long discussion in your Committee. From this discussion it was ascertained that the majority of the Committee felt that it could not support the amendment proposed by the International Blockade Committee for the reason that it did not think that it could, in principle, allow any real exceptions to the obligations laid down in Article 16 to be granted. Indeed, such exceptions would be contrary to the duty of all the States Members of the League to observe the engagements which they have undertaken in virtue of the Covenant, and would also contravene the principle of justice and equality among these States.

But the majority of your Committee considered that account must to a certain extent be taken of the particular conditions and requirements of certain countries, and that situations might arise in which it would be recognised as expedient to postpone, in the case of certain States, either wholly or in part, and for fixed periods, the effective application of the economic sanctions laid down in Article 16. In this there would be no contravention of the fundamental principle that all the Members of the League are equally bound to observe the obligations of the Covenant. It will be admitted that under given circumstances the application of the economic measures may be carried out with a certain gradation, not in any particular interest, but in the general interest of the success of the economic pressure on the defaulting State.

It might happen, for instance, that, in view the particular situation of a State, if this State were to break off all relations with the defaulting State, the latter would be induced to commit acts endangering the success of the common action of the League—for example, to take possession of certain strategic points of the first State. On the other band, the spirit of article 16 presupposes a co mmon plan of action and gives to the States the right of mutual support.

The view was expressed in the Committee that this solution was contrary to the principle laid down in the first paragraph of Article 16 ; that is to say, that the members of the League undertake immediately to break off all relations with the defaulting State. But, as has already been stated in the preceding chapter in connection with the moment at which the economic pressure is to be applied, the expression " immediately " used in Article 16 must, in the opinion of the majority of your Committee, be interpreted as meaning that the act constituting a breach of the Covenant entails an immediate obligation for all Members of the League to break off their relations with the defaulting State. This, however, does not mean that, as far as time is concerned, certain States may not, by common agreement and in the general interest, be absolved from the immediate carrying out of this obligation. In interpreting the word ' immediately " in the light of the existing situation and of common sense, we are therefore inclined to the view that the execution of the obligation must be effected without delay, when, having regard to the common object in view, such execution is essential.

The Committee has thought it necessary that the solution proposed to you should take the form of an amendment, the text of which it now lays before you.

The Committee proposes that the Assembly adopt the following resolutions :—

1. The Council should fix the date on which the enforcement of economic pressure, under Article 16, is to be begun, and should give notice of that date to all the Members of the League.

2. All States must be treated alike as regards the application of the measures of economic pressure, with the following reservations : —

(a) It may be necessary to recommend the execution of special measures by certain States ;

(b) If it is thought desirable to postpone, wholly or partially, in the case of certain States, the effective application of the economic sanctions laid down in Article 16, such postponement shall not be permitted except in so far as it is desirable for the success of the common plan of action, or reduces to a minimum the losses and embarrassments which may be entailed in the case of certain Members of the League by the application of the sanctions.

Further, the Committee proposes to the Assembly the following amendment : Insert after the first paragraph of Article 16 :—

"Nevertheless, the Council may in the case of particular Members postpone the coming into force of any of these measures for a specified period where it is satisfied that such postponement will facilitate the attainment of the object of the measures referred to in the preceding paragraph, or that it is necessary in order to minimise the loss and inconvenience which will be caused to such Members."

IV.—How should the Sanctions be Applied ?

The Committee supports the view of the International Blockade Committee, which has expressed the opinion that it is impossible to decide in advance and in a definite manner on all measures to be taken for the application of Article 16. It has, however, recognised that it would be well to give, at this juncture, some general indications on the way in which the sanctions of the said Article should be applied.

Article 16 stipulates, in the first paragraph, that the Members of the League of Nations undertake "immediately to sever all trade or financial relations with the defaulting State, to prohibit all intercourse between their nationals and the nationals of the Covenant-breaking State, and to prevent all financial, commercial or personal intercourse between the nationals of the Covenant-breaking State and the nationals of any other State, whether a Member of the League or not."

According to this provision, from the moment when the sanctions are applied, a situation arises which is not compatible with the maintenance of diplomatic relations. But, if a state of war is not expressly declared, it would not be impossible, in the opinion of the International Blockade Committee, to confine this action, at the outset, to the recall of the heads of Missions. This step would probably produce a profound impression, especially if taken by the various Members of the League simultaneously. At first it might, therefore, be advisable to maintain diplomatic representatives of lower rank, in the hope that the defaulting State might change its attitude.

Your Committee supports this view, and also shares the opinion of the International Blockade Committee regarding the possible maintenance of consular relations. In a similar way, if no state of war has been declared, the temporary maintenance of Consuls at their posts may serve a useful purpose in view of any change in the attitude of the Covenant-breaking State.

As regards the most essential parts of the sanctions of Article 16, that is to say, the severance of all trade and financial relations, and the prohibition of all financial, commercial or personal intercourse between the people of the blockaded State and of other States, the word "nationals" used in this Article has raised serious problems. Last year it was held in the Assembly that the word "nationals" should be interpreted as a synonym for "inhabitants" in the sense that a Member of the League shall not be obliged to prohibit, in its own territory, the intercourse of its own nationals with the nationals of the defaulting State. The prohibition of intercourse, according to this interpretation, should apply from country to country, i.e., between States and not within States. It has been observed that any contrary interpretation might create extremely difficult situations, especially in countries the population of which comprises a large proportion of foreigners.

The International Blockade Committee has held that the word "nationals" should be understood in the sense of "residents," but that this interpretation of the word "nationals" was not an obvious one, so that it was necessary to amend Article 16 in this respect.

Your Committee shares this view, and consequently submits to you a proposed amendment to the second portion of the first paragraph of Article 16. It does not appear that the problems raised by the word "nationals" can be solved merely by an interpretation explanation and without inserting an explicit amendment in the provision in question.

The International Blockade Committee, after having laid down that the prohibition of all commercial relations with the inhabitants of the defaulting State should be strictly applied by all Members of the League, proposed to prepare and to revise from time to time a list of articles considered to be of vital importance in warfare. No exemptions could be granted concerning articles mentioned in this list, which would at the same time form a list of contraband, if it became necessary to exercise the right to search vessels at sea.

Your Committee did not consider it expedient to accept this suggestion made by the International Blockade Commission. It seemed to the Committee that it was premature to draw up a list of this kind at this time. We are here concerned with measures which cannot be anticipated, the details of which depend upon circumstances of time and place difficult to foresee accurately, and on the special situation of the State which might be subjected to economic pressure.

The International Blockade Committee justly considers that the economic pressure should be applied by measures becoming, if necessary, more and more stringent. Your Committee accepts this principle of graduation in the employment of the economic weapon and associates itself also with the conclusion that the cutting off of the food supplies of the civil population of the defaulting State should be regarded as an extremely drastic measure, to be applied only if all other available measures have been found to be clearly inadequate.

In order to assure the interruption of the relationships mentioned in the first paragraph of Article 16, it will be essential to submit correspondence and all other methods of communication to special regulations. The necessity of such a measure has been shown by experience.

Article 16 speaks of the prohibition not only of financial and commercial relations, but also of personal communications. The International Blockade Committee has felt itself called upon to interpret this expression in the sense that personal relations should only be interrupted if they have a bearing upon commercial or financial relations. Your Committee, however, has not considered that it was necessary to introduce distinctions in this respect, which would be difficult to draw, and limitations which may be dangerous to the success of the measures of economic pressure.

As regards humanitarian relations, it is fully accepted that these should continue. Last year this question was discussed in the Assembly, and the Sixth Committee expressly declared that the prohibition of all commercial or other relations between the inhabitants of countries Members of the League of Nations and the inhabitants of the territory of the defaulting State did not include any existing humanitarian relations.

A difficult question which has been raised is that of deciding how the economic weapon is to be employed when a Covenant-breaking State has for a neighbour a State which does not belong to the League, and, generally, what is to be the attitude to be adopted towards those States which are not Members of the League.

The International Blockade Committee did not think it necessary to give much time to the consideration of this point, as it involves questions which do not arise directly, or at any rate not exclusively from Article 16. The Committee limited itself to declaring that, as regards the States which are not Members of the League, every possible effort should be made to conclude agreements which would assure at least the passive co-operation of these States in the measures to be taken ; this recommendation applies also to all the exporting States and all the States whose territory is adjacent to that of the defaulting State. The International Blockade Committee did not consider it necessary to formulate a decision on the measures which might be adopted if it should be impossible to arrive at agreements, an eventuality which the Committee did not consider probable.

Nor does your Committee believe it necessary or suitable, at the present time, to make declarations upon this point which might limit the freedom of action of Members of the League. If the occasion should arise, it will be the duty of the Council to consider the means for preventing the employment of the economic weapon being rendered useless by the action of States which do not form part of the League, and to propose suitable measures for this purpose to the Members of the League.

It has already been explained in Chapter III, that for the application of economic sanctions it may be necessary to recommend special measures for certain States. Amongst these special measures we must mention particularly that of the effective blockade which would have to be applied on the seaboard of the defaulting State. If it were decided to have recourse to such a measure, it would devolve upon the Council, in accordance with Article 16, paragraph 2, to recommend what naval forces should be employed, and what Members of the League should be called upon to effect the blockade.

The International Blockade Committee hesitated to declare an opinion on the application of the maritime blockade and on the exercise of the right of visiting vessels, because it felt that the effects of the new conception, which is embodied in the League of Nations upon the traditional principles of international law, required an exhaustive study. Instituted to investigate the question of the application of Article 16, the Committee, by reason of its technical nature, consider that a legal problem of such importance was scarcely within its competence. It confined itself to stating that in particular instances, where the enforcement of economic measures was necessary, it might be expedient to impose and maintain an effective blockade on the seaboard of the defaulting State, and that it might also be expedient for a certain number of Members of the League to exercise the right of belligerents in stopping and visiting vessels at sea and establishing prize courts.

It was proposed in your Committee to ask the Council to appoint a special Committee of legal, naval and commercial experts, who should be instructed to consider the rules for the application of a maritime blockade, considered as a measure supplementary to the economic sanctions provided for in Article 16 of the Covenant. But the majority of the Committee were unwilling to endorse this proposal.

As regards the executive or legislative measures which each country might have to adopt for the application of the economic sanctions of Article 16, the International Blockade Committee considered that this was a question which each country must decide for itself. It was neither incumbent upon, nor possible for, the League to lay down uniform rules for the legislative or executive procedure to be adopted by the various countries.

This opinion cannot but be unreservedly accepted, and it was precisely on account of this consideration that the Secretary-General of the League had addressed a questionnaire to the various Governments, in order to find out what were their respective laws in this matter. The replies from the Governments to this questionnaire have been published. From them it is evident that the laws of the various countries in the matter of the competence of the Governments, or of the legislative bodies, to authorise and adopt the measures provided for in Article 16, are very different. What is most important in the opinion of your Committee is that the Secretary-General of the League of Nations should again urge upon all Governments to prepare themselves to carry out without delay—should occasion arise—the obligations they have undertaken under Article 16 of the Covenant.

The Committee proposes the following resolutions for adoption by the Assembly :—

(1) It is not possible to decide beforehand, and in detail, the various measures of an economic, commercial and financial nature to be taken in each case where economic pressure is to be applied.

When the case arises, the Council shall recommend to the Members of the League a plan for joint action.

(2) The interruption of diplomatic relations should, in the first place, be limited to the withdrawal of the heads of Missions.

(3) Consular relations may possibly be maintained.

(4) For the purposes of the severance of relations between persons belonging to the Covenant-breaking State and persons belonging to other States Members of the League, the test should be residence and not nationality.

(5) In cases of prolonged application of economic pressure, measures of increasing stringency should be taken. The cutting off of the food supplies of the civil population of the defaulting State should be regarded as an extremely drastic measure which should only be applied if the other measures available are clearly inadequate.

(6) Correspondence and all other methods of communication will have to be subjected to special regulations.

(7) Humanitarian relations will be continued.

(8) Efforts should be made to arrive at arrangements which would ensure the co-operation of States non-Members of the League in the measures to be taken.

(9) In special circumstances and in support of economic measures to be taken it may become advisable (a) to establish an effective blockade of the seaboard of the Covenant-breaking State ; (b) to entrust to some Members of the League the execution of the blockade operations.

(10) The Council should urge upon all the States Members of the League that their Governments should take the necessary preparatory measures, above all of a legislative character, which would enable them to enforce at short notice the necessary measures of economic pressure.

The Committee proposes an amendment to the following effect : the words "their nationals and the nationals," in the first paragraph of Article 16, shall be replaced by the words "persons residing in their territory and persons residing in the territory"; the words "the nationals of the Covenant-breaking State and the nationals," in the same paragraph, shall be replaced by the words "persons residing in the territory of the Covenant-breaking State and persons residing in the territory."

The Committee thinks that it has conscientiously considered the Report of the International Blockade Committee and has clearly stated its opinions upon the various solutions suggested by that Committee. The Committee has not accepted all these solutions and has modified the form of some of them, but, generally speaking, it feels bound to express its appreciation of the efforts of the International Blockade Committee, which has undoubtedly made a considerable contribution to the work of interpreting the Covenant.

The Committee has endeavoured to provide the Assembly with complete information on the question, so that it may be in a position to take the decisions necessary for the practical application of Article 16 and for the employment of the economic weapon. The Committee hopes that it has in this way fulfilled the task entrusted to it by the Assembly.

ANNEX 4.—Report submitted by the Fourth Committee on the organisation of the Secretariat and the International Labour Office.

The Fourth Committee devoted nine meetings between 8th and 21st September to detailed work upon, and exhaustive study of, the report of the Commission of Enquiry. It has adopted the conclusions of this Commission of Enquiry with a few slight alterations affecting the form rather than the substance.

We examined both the organisation of the Secretariat of the League of Nations and that of the International Labour Office. In the case of these two institutions the majority of the problems are identical, or at least of a very similar nature. The remarks and recommendations of the Fourth Committee will consequently have reference both to the Secretariat and to the International Labour Office. Particular mention will, however, be made in fine of special points connected with the International Labour Office.

Finally, three annexes are attached in support of certain recommendations, and to develop certain questions which have called for special discussion, or to illustrate, by means of selected examples, certain points of detail.

PART I. SECRETARIAT OF THE LEAGUE OF NATIONS.

I.—GENERAL OBSERVATIONS.

The Fourth Committee endorses in general terms the high opinion formed by the Commission of Enquiry in regard to the work of the Secretariat and the manner in which it has understood and carried out its duties.

We have taken into consideration the individual qualities and high standard of culture shown not only by the Directors, but by the great majority of the administrative staff.

We congratulate them and thank them for their unbounded faith in the great ideals of the League, their unremitting zeal in the execution of its designs and their unshaken confidence in its ultimate success We consider that, in order to appreciate what is actually achieved, it is fair to bear in mind the difficulties inherent in any organisation, the personnel of which is of necessity recruited on an international basis, and which was called upon to set to work and forthwith produce results. We agree that it is difficult to see how what has actually been achieved could have been more speedily or effectively carried out.

We recommend with special urgency that, in the interests of the League, as well as in its own interests, the Secretariat should not extend the sphere of its activities, that in the preparation of the work and the decisions of the various organisations of the League it should confine itself to collating the relevant documents and the preparation of decisions without hazarding suggestions; finally, that once these decisions had been taken by the bodies solely responsible for them, it should confine itself to executing them in the letter and in the spirit, and should refrain as far as possible from interpreting them.

II.—SEAT OF THE LEAGUE.

The Fourth Committee has taken note of the statement of the Commission of Enquiry with regard to the high cost of living in Geneva.

We are of opinion that, as regards the choice of the town where the seat of the League is to be established, the realisation of possible economies is only one aspect of the question. For a problem of this kind is in our opinion governed by other and far more important considerations.

We consider, however, that all the evidence necessary for arriving at a reliable estimate of the cost of living in Geneva should be collected. We propose to entrust this investigation to the Salaries Adjustment Committee, the creation of which is dealt with later.

III.—THE MEETING PLACES OF THE COUNCIL, ASSEMBLY, COMMITTEES AND CONFERENCES AND EXPENSES OF MEETINGS.

The Fourth Committee, realising that the holding of the meetings of the various organisations elsewhere than at the seat of the League occasions both considerable expenditure and a temporary but profound disorganisation of the services of the Secretariat, recommends that the meetings of the Council shall normally be held at the seat of the League, and that, except on the rarest possible occasions, all Committees and Conferences held under the auspices of the League shall also meet there. We recognise that it is clearly desirable that the Secretariat should keep in the closest and most frequent possible touch with the principal countries, but we recommend that this contact should be established by means of individual journeys on the part of the Director of the Secretariat, and especially the Secretary-General and the Deputy Secretary-General.

IV.—INTERNATIONAL LIAISON BUREAUX.

The Committee adopts the observations and recommendations of the Commission of Enquiry as regards the organisation of international liaison bureaux in the great capitals in order to provide for the co-ordination and unification of relations of all kinds between the League of Nations and its organisations and the Government services in the principal countries. The economies in personnel, time and charges of the League which the formation of these national bureaux would make possible (the bureaux being, of course, organised by the individual initiative of the various countries and supported by their respective budgets) are both, from the material and moral points of view, so considerable that the Committee feels impelled strongly to recommend their establishment. Further, the establishment of corresponding national bureaux at the seat of the League, which appears eminently useful in the case of distant countries, must even more emphatically be left to the initiative of the nations interested.

The Committee considers that from the point of view of economy—which is our sole object - such an arrangement seems less necessary for certain less distant countries with whom liaison is both quicker and easier.

V.—OFFICE OF THE LEAGUE OF NATIONS IN SOUTH AMERICA.

The Secretariat has taken the step—which experience has shown to be justified—of establishing branch offices in Paris and London. These offices are controlled and paid for by the League of Nations, which differentiates them completely from the national liaison bureaux referred to above.

It has contemplated the extension of similar institutions, and its attention has been drawn in the first place to the utility of establishing one in South America. The Financial Director of the Secretariat has emphasised the notable economies, as well as the very appreciable simplification of communications which would be realised by the despatch of all documents, messages, and, above all, of all cablegrams, towards one central office which would undertake their redistribution.

No doubt the economy which would certainly thus be realised would not absolutely compensate for the fresh expenditure necessitated by the creation of this office This creation would thus, on the whole, imply fresh expenses for the League; but the consideration of the moral benefit to be reaped appeared to the Committee by far to outweigh that of the material expenditure.

Having reassured ourselves that this innovation would generally correspond to the wishes of the States interested, we formally approved the principle, leaving the details of its execution to the Secretary-General, under the authority of the Council.

VI.—POSTAGE.

The Committee considers that the postal and telegraphic expenses, rendered heavier for the majority of States by the rate of exchange of the Swiss franc, which at the present time is high, constitute an extremely heavy burden on the Budget of the League. We recommend the Secretary-General to do his utmost, with the help of the Swiss Government, to obtain the greatest possible facilities.

VII.—STAFF.

1. The Fourth Committee has formed the general conclusion that the absolute value of salaries and wages shows a high average. It has been found impossible to do otherwise than calculate it on the basis of salaries granted to the highest paid officials in the various States Members of the League, at the risk of seeing the Secretariat and the International Labour Office deprived of the services of the aforesaid officials, which would have been out of the question. Having formed this conclusion, the Committee considers that, in accordance with the opinion of the Commission of Enquiry, this average scale of salaries and wages is justified as compared with those obtainable elsewhere.

The Committee attaches to its Report see Annex 1) a schedule of salaries which it considers reasonable for the various grades of the staff. This schedule contains, at least in the case of the higher officials (from Directors down to Members of Sections) figures slightly inferior in a descending scale to those given in the Report of the Commission of Enquiry. These latter figures themselves were already such as to make it possible to recruit members of the staff at somewhat lower figures than those which have been paid hitherto, and which must continue to be paid until the expiration of current contracts.

We consider that the figures proposed in Annex 1 are perfectly reasonable and will allow the retention of the services of the nationals of all States Members of the League. Moreover, they constitute their own justification as against criticisms which public opinion—when better informed--will, it is to be hoped, no longer direct against them. Further, the emoluments at the present moment granted to the Secretary-General and his assistants may in the future and at the expiration of existing contracts be subjected to reasonable reductions proportionate to those which enabled us to arrive at the figures of Annex 1.

2. A Salaries Adjustment Committee.—The Fourth Committee adopts the proposal of the Commission of Enquiry to create a Salaries Adjustment Committee with the object of modifying from time to time the salaries of employees in accordance with the periodic variation of the cost of living. We approve the methods proposed to this end by the Commission of Enquiry for the constitution and duties of this Salaries Adjustment Committee. We consider that any recommendations made by this Committee must be submitted in the case of the Secretariat to approval of the Council of the League, and in case of the International Labour Office to the Governing Body, for their approval before they are put into effect. It is a matter of course that the aforesaid Committee must keep strictly within the limits the budget regularly voted by the Assembly.

3. Choice between payment in Swiss francs or in Gold francs.—The Committee has adopted the conclusions contained in the Report of the Commission of Enquiry suggesting the adoption of the Swiss franc, and it recalls the fact that the salaries figuring in the schedule of Annex I have been calculated in this currency.

4. Expatriation.—The Fourth Committee appreciated the fact that in the scale of salaries proposed by the Commission of Enquiry the factor of expatriation had not been overlooked, and we consider it reasonable that the Commission should have taken it into account.

5. Income-Tax.—The Fourth Committee, taking into consideration the unfavourable situation of certain officials of the League who are nationals of the States whose fiscal laws impose a tax on incomes and in particular on salaries and earned income, approves and adopts the suggestion made by the Commission of Enquiry that the Governments concerned should be approached with a view to inducing them to exempt all officials of the League of Nations, in respect, of course, only of their salaries from the League, from income-tax of any kind upon those salaries.

6. Travelling Expenses, Subsistence and Entertainment Allowances.—The Committee recommends that, as far as travelling expenses and subsistence allowances are concerned, travelling expenses should henceforward be paid exactly as incurred; that subsistence allowances should be calculated to cover not the total expenses of an official during his absence, but only the excess of exceptional expenditure that he incurs abroad as compared with his daily expenditure at home; finally, that these subsistence allowances should in no case be intended to meet any portion of out-of-pocket expenses which may be incurred in entertainment. As regards allowances payable to outside persons who may be called upon to take part temporarily in the work of Committees or Conferences, the Committee decides to fix the normal scale of their allowances at 70 gold francs per diem. If, however, the League has in exceptional cases need of the special services of a particularly distinguished personage, the Council must have full liberty to take appropriate measures in such cases as an exception to the general rule.

The Fourth Committee recommends the establishment of the entertainment fund proposed by the Commission of Enquiry. We consider that there is reason to establish this kind of "pool," which will be administered by one of the officials of the Secretariat specially appointed to ascertain the obligations incumbent, according to the particular case, either upon the officials of the Secretariat or the external members of the various Organisations of the League, and that this official should propose the allocation to the person concerned of such sums as may be considered suitable and charge them to the entertainment fund. The amount of this "pool" should not at the present moment exceed the total of the sums which certain high officials of the League have voluntarily surrendered. In this connection the Committee desires to express its gratitude to these officials for the grace and generosity of their action. It is a matter of course that any officials who may be appointed in the future will draw only the entertainment allowances recommended by the Commission of Enquiry.

The Committee recommends that all Members of the League of Nations should refer to the official especially appointed to administer the entertainment fund, requesting him to take all necessary steps for the accommodation of their representatives and officials, both for meetings of the Assembly and for those of the Committees, etc., in the city where the League has its headquarters; these representatives would be requested to give notice beforehand of their wishes and the approximate prices they would be willing to pay.

(b) Conditions of Service.

In accordance with the proposals of the Commission of Enquiry, the Fourth Committee considers it extremely important that definite terms of engagement should be established for the staff without delay and on the model of all great administrations—fixed conditions indicating its rights in concrete form and giving explicit information as to its obligations. Such terms would safeguard the staff from the very natural feeling of insecurity which tends to diminish efficiency by destroying confidence in the future, and to dampen goodwill and devotion to duty. The Fourth Committee urges that this reform should be promptly effected. We fully realise the difficulties involved in the drawing up of detailed regulations and conditions of service which have to apply to a staff of such varied nationalities and occupations,

We must therefore confine ourselves to stating certain principles and to drawing attention to certain recommendations which we consider essential. Beyond that, we consider that the task of working out details should be left to the responsible officials on the condition that they take prompt action.

1. Selection of the Staff. As a result of the exceptional circumstances which governed the creation of the League of Nations, the staff was at first appointed almost exclusively by individual selection by the Secretary-General or by his principal officers acting in his name, in virtue of powers expressly conferred upon him by the Covenant. We have already testified our high appreciation of the quality of the present staff.

This system of recruitment, however, which was the only possible one in the initial period, must be replaced, as a general rule only to be departed from in very special cases where the necessity for such departure can be established, by that of "competitive selection." The Committee recommends that this selection should be carried out in accordance with the principles and according to the method laid down in Articles 42 to 54 of the Commission of Enquiry's Report.

The Committee lay special stress upon the great desirability, especially in regard to the higher administrative posts, of recruiting the staff of both the Secretariat and the International Labour Office as far as possible in equitable proportion from the various States Members of the League. It recommends that this principle should be carefully observed whenever fresh appointments may have to be made in the future, always bearing in mind, however, the necessity of obtaining competent officials.

2. Promotion.—The Fourth Committee recognises that the system of grading into classes and promotion within classes, and from one class to another is bound to make for efficiency in the staff. The staff of the Secretariat should have reasonable prospects of promotion.

In this respect the Committee adopts in their entirety the views and suggestions contained in paragraph 43 of the Commission of Enquiry's Report.

3. Engagement.—(a) The Committee realises the difficulty of applying the principle of a definite period of engagement in the case of the Secretariat of the League of Nations, in spite of the fact that normally it is strictly necessary in organizations of this nature. Such an application of the principle would, no doubt commend itself to the existing staff, directing or subordinate, but it must not be forgotten that the very nature of the duties encumbent upon the Secretariat -its international character and its universality—prevent it from giving all its officials, without exception, a guarantee of permanent employment.

The Committee, however, is well aware that a guarantee of this kind is one of the surest factors making for the efficiency of any administrative staff, and that a tolerable measure of security is indispensable for the satisfactory accomplishment of the daily task. For this reason, we desire to put an end to the present feeling of uncertainty on the part of the officials of the League of Nations, and we have, therefore, carefully considered to what extent we could suggest that the normal system of long-term engagements should in future be applied.

(b) At present each official has entered into an individual contract with the Secretary-General. The contracts are of varying durations, and are in all cases limited to a maximum of five years. They may, of course, be cancelled for misconduct or inefficiency. They do not include any provisions against sickness or accidents, and do not carry pension or gratuity on retirement.

The Committee considers that it is desirable to class the officials and employees of the Secretariat in three categories, each of which require separate consideration :—

(c) 1. To the higher official it does not, in our view, seem possible to give long-term engagements. The international character of the League of Nations, and the legitimate desires of the Member States, render it essential that systematic changes should take place in the higher posts of the Secretariat in order to enable them to be filled by persons of any country whatsoever, who are of recognised importance and widespread influence among their own people, and whose views and sentiments are representative of their national opinion. This principle of frequent changes is essential to make the League a living force among the nations.

On the other hand, there could be no question of depriving the Secretariat of its leaders, just when the experience which they have gained by the study and solution of the various problems with which they may have to deal would be of most value. It is therefore clearly advisable that Members of the higher staff should serve for a sufficiently long period to enable their work to bear fruit, and that they should not be replaced simultaneously.

When this temporary difficulty has been duly met, a maximum period of seven years for members of the higher staff (Secretary-General, Deputy Secretary, Under Secretary-General and Directors) appears to be the correct solution.

In view of the considerable emolument assigned for these higher officers, we do not, in their case, recommend pension or gratuity on retirement.

In exceptional cases these officials may be reappointed.

(d) 2. Subordinate Staff.—At the opposite end of the scale is the subordinate staff, which may be divided into two classes: first those who are engaged in the purely manual and at the expiration of existing contracts be subjected to reasonable reductions proportionate to those which enabled us to arrive at the figures of Annex 1.

2. A Salaries Adjustment Committee.—The Fourth Committee adopts the proposal of the Commission of Enquiry to create a Salaries Adjustment Committee with the object of modifying from time to time the salaries of employees in accordance with the periodic variation of the cost of living. We approve the methods proposed to this end by the Commission of Enquiry for the constitution and duties of this Salaries Adjustment Committee. We consider that any recommendations made by this Committee must be submitted in the case of the Secretariat to approval of the Council of the League, and in case of the International Labour Office to the Governing Body, for their approval before they are put into effect. It is a matter of course that the aforesaid Committee must keep strictly within the limits the budget regularly voted by the Assembly.

3. Choice between payment in Swiss francs or in Gold francs.—The Committee has adopted the conclusions contained in the Report of the Commission of Enquiry suggesting the adoption of the Swiss franc, and it recalls the fact that the salaries figuring in the schedule of Annex I have been calculated in this currency.

4. Expatriation.—The Fourth Committee appreciated the fact that in the scale of salaries proposed by the Commission of Enquiry the factor of expatriation had not been overlooked, and we consider it reasonable that the Commission should have taken it into account.

5. Income-Tax.—The Fourth Committee, taking into consideration the unfavourable situation of certain officials of the League who are nationals of the States whose fiscal laws impose a tax on incomes and in particular on salaries and earned income, approves and adopts the suggestion made by the Commission of Enquiry that the Governments concerned should be approached with a view to inducing them to exempt all officials of the League of Nations, in respect, of course, only of their salaries from the League, from income-tax of any kind upon those salaries.

The Committee recommends that all Members of the League of Nations should refer to the official especially appointed to administer the entertainment fund, requesting him to take all necessary steps for the accommodation of their representatives and officials, both for meetings of the Assembly and for those of the Committees, etc., in the city where the League has its headquarters; these representatives would be requested to give notice beforehand of their wishes and the approximate prices they would be willing to pay.

(b) Conditions of Service.

In accordance with the proposals of the Commission of Enquiry, the Fourth Committee considers it extremely important that definite terms of engagement should be established for the staff without delay and on the model of all great administrations—fixed conditions indicating its rights in concrete form and giving explicit information as to its obligations. In exceptional cases these officials may be reappointed.

(d) 2. Subordinate Staff.—At the opposite end of the scale is the subordinate staff, which may be divided into two classes: first those who are engaged in the purely manual duties of any administration (attendants, messengers, charwomen, etc.). It appears reasonable that these persons should be recruited on the spot, which is the cheaper plan. They might be engaged for a definite period and in accordance with special local custom. In our view the second class should include duplicating, roneographic staff, etc. This part of the staff should be recruited on the spot, and should also be engaged in accordance with the normal conditions of Swiss administrative services, but provision should be made for promotion to the class above by means of competitive examination.

(e) 3. Intermediate administrative personnel.—Under this heading we class personnel whose work entails, in varying degree, intellectual attainments and a knowledge of languages.

Subordinate Staff (Class C).—We have placed in a class by itself (C) shorthand-typists, the subordinate staff of the Publications Department, of the Library and the majority of the staff of the Registry, etc. The specialised work of this personnel and its comparatively limited range do not lend themselves to the application of the rule of frequent changes Its permanency should be secured under the best conditions possible, nor is there anything to prevent the rigorous application to this class of the three principles stated above, i.e, appointment by competitive examination of a widely international character, annual increments, and long-term of engagement. These engagements might be made for 28 years (four periods of seven years) in cases of exceptional ability, with the possibility of advancement to the next grade (B) in cases of exceptional ability, or of appointment in the course of the 28 years, to staff posts (i.e., heads of administrative departments and their deputies).

This personnel, which would thus be assured of a real career with the League of Nations, should be given the benefit of definite conditions of service, which would include a limited pension scheme and provision for sickness or other disability.

(f) Members of Section and officers of Equivalent Grades (Classes B and A).—These officers perform important duties. Under the direction of the higher staff they carry out all the intellectual and administrative work of the Secretariat. These require high educational qualifications and in the upper ranges demand very considerable capacity and qualities of initiative and resource.

We are of the opinion that the principle of frequent changes should only be applied to members of this grade of the staff—whose duties are of a diplomatic and political nature similar to those of the higher personnel—in cases where permanent officials can be detached from their national administrations for a definite period of service with the League without losing their rights of pension or promotion, or being troubled by doubts, so harmful to good work, as to their careers in their own countries. We recommend that steps should be taken to secure the loan of the services of such officials wherever possible.

(g) The Committee realises, however, that the employment of national officials cannot become the general rule. Moreover, there are certain posts which could not easily be filled by the permanent officials of the National Governments (e.g, Information Section, Technical Experts, Interpreters, etc.), or which would invariably fall to such countries as possess highly organised civil services, a result which would be contrary to the spirit of the League.

There is the further consideration that, if the staff were drawn very largely from national administrations, it might suffer from a tendency on the part of the officials in question to be thinking always of the prospects of advancement in their own countries, and so being tempted to support in certain cases a specifically national, rather than the strictly international, point of view which characterises the League.

(h) For these reasons the Committee has finally adopted a general solution in respect of all persons of the staff belonging to this category, namely, long terms of engagement and no system of rotation.

Individual and specialised experience gained on the spot cannot but be of great value to the League.

(i) The Committee therefore recommends that, as a general rule, arrangements should be entered into for 21 years, fixing 55 as the age limit and dividing this 21 years into three periods of seven years with the bilateral right to terminate the engagement at the end of each of these periods.

N.B.—Consequently, any persons entering the service of the League when over 34 years of age could only be employed up to the age of 55, and any person entering at a lower age will be able to remain 21 years.

Present members of the Secretariat over 45 years of age who may be judged indispensable may be kept up to the age of 60 years.

(j) These provisions will afford sufficient security to members of the staff to enable them to devote themselves to their work without any anxiety as to their future, for only the hope of a definite career will attract them to the service of the League.

At the same time, the vacancies caused by retirement on completion of service, and by the resignations, which may be expected to be fairly frequent in a staff the members of which may at any time desire to return to their own country, should secure sufficient changes of personnel within the different sections of the Secretariat and satisfy the legitimate and natural desires of the various States to have ample opportunities for sending a fair share of their nationals to the Secretariat.

(k) These are, then, the main lines on which the Committee recommend that the conditions of service of the staff should be drawn up. We understand that the Secretary-General wishes to prepare the conditions of service as soon as possible. We agree that this is most desirable, and we think that the members of the different grades might be asked to submit suggestions for consideration. Without prejudice to the indispensable principle of authority, it is essential that these conditions of service should be drawn up only after a thorough enquiry among the interested parties and that they should be in conformity with the wishes of the Secretariat as a whole.

(l) We consider that, when the conditions of service have been drawn up, the existing members of the staff should be asked to waive their present contracts in so far as they relate to conditions of service and to re-enter under the conditions of the new scheme. It is not, of course, intended to reduce the salary already authorised for any particular officer, unless with his own express consent in cases where a lower scale is laid down for future occupants of the post. It would, however, be well to recall here the generosity of the heads of departments who have spontaneously consented to considerable reductions in their emoluments.

Details of the salaries proposed for the various grades of posts are given in Appendix I. The scales there suggested are based on the assumption that the officials concerned will be called upon to make at least some contribution towards pension in the form of deferred pay.

The Committee has adopted the principle of a pension and deferred pay scheme and has decided that the League should contribute to the fund in a proportion to be determined later. It has further instructed the Salaries Adjustment Committee to prepare a detailed plan in this connection. This Committee will also examine the question whether it should take into account a proposal made suggesting that the fund should be administered by the persons concerned.

The Committee on Salaries will have to submit a report on this subject, which will then be submitted to the next Assembly, after having been communicated to the Members of the League three months before the meeting of the Assembly.

Pending final decision the Committee expresses the hope that the League of Nations will equitably and generously consider any request which may be made to it either as regards pensions, allowances or assistance.

VIII.—FINANCIAL CONTROL.

(a) The Committee considers itself bound by its terms of reference to pay particular attention to the system of control of expenditure which has been established in the Secretariat of the League of Nations. The measures to be taken in this connection fall into five divisions :—(1) Preparation of the budget and a Commission of Control, (2) Audit, (3) Financial year, (4) Form of the budget, (5) Disposal of balances.

1. Preparation of the Budget and a Commission of Control.—(b) In matters of finance the position of the Secretary-General of the League is at the present moment one of some difficulty. The peculiarities of his situation will best be illustrated by recalling the normal financial procedure in a Government Department. The responsible Minister at the head of a spending department has to submit his estimates for amounts of money which he considers he will require to enable him to carry out his policy during the next financial year to the Finance Minister, who conducts the most careful scrutiny into the demands made upon the national exchequer, and only passes such demands as he is prepared to defend in Parliament. In some countries the estimates, in addition, undergo close examination by a budget Committee before they are submitted to Parliament.

Whatever the precise method employed, the principle is the same, namely, that proposals for expenditure shall, before submission to Parliament, first be submitted to a careful scrutiny by a small body capable of giving expert advice, and entirely independent of the body which framed the policy involving the expenditure in question.

(c) In the opinion of the Commission, it cannot, therefore, be considered the most desirable procedure that the Secretary-General should submit his proposals for expenditure to the Council and the Assembly before they have been examined in detail by some such body as that indicated above, which is capable of subjecting them to expert and impartial criticism. It is a serious defect of the system as we find it that the Assembly should be without the benefit of such expert advice, and it is equally embarrassing to the Secretary-General that he should be without the opportunity of justifying his proposals in a more ample manner than is possible under the present system.

(d) We therefore recommend the creation of a Commission of Control consisting of three to five members, one of whom at least should be a special financial expert chosen by the Council at the request of the Assembly from among the various States Members of the League.

It seems desirable that the Members of the League other than those represented on the Council should be represented in this Commission.

The Commission should meet at the seat of the League once a year for the purpose of investigating in detail the budget of the League of Nations for the ensuing financial year. The date of the meeting should be so fixed as to give sufficient time for its report to be circulated to the States Members of the League, at the same time as the budget proposals, to which it would serve as a commentary. The Members of the League would thus be able to study the budget proposals in the light of the expert opinion of the Commission which had studied them on the spot, and would be in a position to instruct accordingly their representatives at the next meeting of the Assembly.

2. Audit.— (e) The arrangements proposed above seem to us to satisfy the broad principles which we have enunciated as to the examination of proposed expenditure, but there is another matter of almost equal importance in any financial system.

It is necessary that the Assembly which had voted a budget for certain definite purposes should be in a position to satisfy itself that the money had been applied to those purposes. To attain this end, it is necessary that there should be close co-operation between the Assembly and the persons appointed to carry out the audit. In default of such co-operation, the audit tends to become a formal matter directed to ascertaining whether expenditure is supported by vouchers, rather then to enquiring whether any particular item of expenditure has been duly authorised, and whether the intentions of the Assembly have been properly interpreted.

(f) We therefore recommend that the Commission of Control should, at each session, examine the completed accounts of the League for the past financial year as verified by the Auditors provided for in Articles 8 to 10 of the Assembly Recommendation, dated 17th December 1920, on the administration of the finances of the League of Nations. The preparatory examination would be carried out by the expert official referred to below [(paragraph IX (m)], who should report to the Commission any cases in which expenditure was unsupported by vouchers, and more particularly any case in which expenditure appeared to have been wrongly or irregularly authorised.

It is particularly necessary that this Commission should examine all cases in which a decision of the Financial Director may have been overruled by written directions from the Secretary-General, whether or not acting on instructions from the Council. To attain this end, it will be necessary that the Commission of Control should have power to call upon officers of the Secretariat to appear before them and explain the circumstances attending any exceptional or extraordinary expenditure.

It goes without saying that the control—especially the financial control—of this Commission will at the same time extend to an investigation of the question whether all the rules and administrative or other principles formulated in the present report have been scrupulously observed, and that it will also apply to the International Labour Office.

3. Submission of the Budget.—(g) The Committee desires to examine specially, in connection with the financial control, the form in which the budget is to be submitted.

Up to the present the task of the Financial Director in estimating the total expenditure that will be required by the League to meet totally new developments has been one of great difficulty, and it has not been found possible in many cases to make any detailed apportionment of the items of the proposed expenditure of the League under a specific head, e.g., meetings of Conferences. Yet the detailed study of the individual items composing a budget is the only road to economy, and the only method of ensuring proper financial control. Now that the Financial Director has gained so considerable an experience of most of the requirements of the League, on which a detailed estimate can be based, we suggest that the items of the budget should in future be sub-divided more than has hitherto been practicable.

(h) Further, we consider that it is desirable that a full comparison should be given in the budget between the expenditure in the current and forthcoming financial years, as regards not only the total expenditure on each item, but also the numbers of staff employed in each grade and the salary of that grade. In these matters the estimates presented to the British House of Commons would appear to be a suitable model, which might be followed by the League of Nations.

We also consider that the expenses incurred on behalf of the Technical Sections should be grouped together in such a manner as to show the total expenses of each Technical Section on staff, travelling expenses, subsistence allowances, postages, publications, etc., including all expenditure incurred in connection with the Technical Committee and Conference which are served by the Technical Section in question. We have made certain detailed suggestions to the Financial Director, who has been able to prepare the budget for 1922 on these lines, and we are satisfied that the requirements indicated above will be fully met.

(i) We have, moreover, recommended that the staff should be paid in Swiss francs. After very careful consideration of the many issues involved in this intricate problem, we are of the opinion that the gold franc, as being the most stable monetary unit the world over, should be retained as the unit of account for the purpose of assigning contributions. This, of course, will involve expressing the total income and expenditure of the League in gold francs, but it does not follow that the detailed expenditure under the various heads need also be so shown. If it were, it would be impossible to make any exact comparison. For instance, a fixed annual expenditure of, say, 5,000 francs (Swiss) might give different figures from year to year when expressed in gold francs.

(j) At the present time, the detailed accounts are kept in gold francs, a special officer being required to convert the everyday expenditure in Swiss francs into gold francs at the current rate of exchange.

In our opinion, this procedure is hardly necessary. We recommend that the detailed accounts should be kept in Swiss francs, and that the detailed items in the budget should be shown in Swiss francs. The totals of the votes only should be converted from Swiss francs into gold francs for the purpose of balancing the estimated revenue and expenditure of the League*.

(k) The rate of exchange at which this conversion should be made is a matter of some difficulty. In normal circumstances it should be made at par, and there is considerable force in the contention that this course should be followed even at the present time to avoid any element of exchange speculation. This, however, would at the present time involve the payment of higher contributions from the States Members than they would normally be called upon to make. We consider that the right course is to make the conversion in the budget from year at on arbitrary rate, calculated to allow a reasonable margin, and to show the actual results of the conversions effected in an exchange conversion account.

4. Disposal of Balances.—The question of the disposal of the balance of revenue over expenditure at the end of the financial year has been brought to our notice. We consider that the course which should be followed in normal times is that such balance should be brought forward into the account of the ensuing financial year, the contributions from the different States Members being reduced accordingly.

The practice hitherto has been that any balance at the end of the financial year has been appropriated to the Working Capital Fund. We see no objection to this procedure, in so far as it has been followed during the early organisation period, but we consider that such appropriations, if made in the future, should first be approved by vote of the Assembly. We consider, further, that if this procedure is to be maintained for the present, it would be desirable that the total of the Working Capital Fund, a part of which, proportionate to its budget, might be at the disposal of the International Labour Office, should be fixed.

A separate Working Capital Account should be annexed to the budget, showing any advances made in respect of over-due contributions, advances made to administrative Commissions, etc., and the reimbursements received in respect of such advances within the past financial year.

IX—Organisation.

(a) As stated at the outset of this report, we have been very favourably impressed by the measure of the success which has so far been achieved in the organisation of the Secretariat, an organisation which has had to be constructed on novel lines in order that it might fitly perform the international duties entrusted to it. It is not necessary for us to emphasise the importance of these duties or the fact that few organisations have ever been called upon at so short notice to undertake a task of such complexity and difficulty.

(b) It appears to us, however, that, while the salaries hitherto paid to what may be called the founders of the new system have been justified, it should be possible, now that the strain of the initial period of organisation is beginning to pass, to effect certain economies in the staff of the higher personnel, as a result of the experience which has been gained.

After careful consideration of the degree of responsibility which is likely to devolve upon officers of the different grades of the Secretariat, we have come to the conclusion that it should not be necessary to appoint more than one Deputy Secretary-General and one Under Secretary-General to assist the Secretary-General in the work of general control.

It goes without saying that we make this recommendation with regard only to the important economy which would be realised by the suppression of one of the two posts of Under Secretary-General. It is true that we are also of opinion that, from an administrative point of view, a new organisation which included only one Under Secretary-General solely responsible for the interior organisation and permanently employed at the Secretariat would be from the point of view of efficiency, at least as satisfactory as the present organisation.

We have had to consider the question as to whether the organisation of the Secretariat is sufficiently far advanced to allow the reform to be carried out at the first opportunity, in fact immediately. We consider that this is so.

*In the case of the International Office, the Budget and Accounts will be presented to the Secretary-General expressed in Swiss francs only.

Other considerations of considerable weight but of quite a different nature have been brought to our notice, having reference to the important principle that the various nationalities shall, as far as possible, be represented in equitable proportions on the Secretariat and above all, amongst the Directors.

We felt that, under our terms of reference, we were bound to regard the question entirely from the economic and administrative points of view; and have declared ourselves in favour of the immediate realisation of a reform which circumstances have now rendered possible.

(c) It appears to us that the functions of the Secretary-General and of his Deputy may, broadly speaking, be defined as comprising:—

(1) The general direction of the work of all the sections in so far as policy and the taking of decisions upon important questions of principle are concerned.

(2) Close personal contact with the Assembly and with the Members of the Commissions and Conferences meeting under the auspices of the League. These meetings are, of course, the very life of the League. Without them the Secretariat would be a mere engine without impulse thrashing chaff in the void. The primary duty of the Secretary-General as representative of the Secretariat is therefore to centralise and co-ordinate its efforts, to keep all the Committees and Conferences in mind of the general policy of the League, and thus help them to arrive at decisions which are in harmony with the lofty aims of which the League is the conscious expression.

(3) The maintenance of close relations with the important political centres of the world —a duty which, as we have already said, involves, at any rate in so far as Europe is concerned, frequent and prolonged absences from the seat of the League.

(d) It appears to us that the Secretary-General and his Deputy have hitherto in an excessive degree been over-burdened with questions of interior organisation, discipline and routine, which have involved, inter alia, in the case of the Secretary-General, his almost continuous presence at the Headquarters of the League, and that it is essential in the general interests of the League that they should be relieved as far as possible from all responsibilities of this nature.

(e) We therefore suggest that all headquarters routine business should, subject to the final approval of the Secretary-General, be assigned to the Under Secretary-General. The latter would thus be placed in permanent charge of all matters connected with interior organisation and finance, discipline, staff questions and routine. He would also supervise those sections which properly belong to what may be called the machinery of the Secretariat and concern its working as a whole, as, for instance, the service of the translation, preparation and publication of documents, and the service of distribution.

This would leave the Secretary-General and his Deputy free to concentrate all the reins of policy in their hands, to supervise the work of the Directors, while leaving to the latter a large initiative so far as the administration of their various departments is concerned.

(f) The Secretariat might thus be grouped into a series of international organisations, established in accordance with the terms of various Articles of the Covenant, each driving wheel, as it were, of the machine being responsible to its own Commission or Conference and to the Secretary-General; preparing its own budget, after consultation with the Secretary-General and the Committee concerned, for submission by him to the Council and the Assembly, on the understanding, of course, that the regulations and scales of pay for their staff would follow the general lines prescribed for the Secretariat as a whole.

(g) The Technical Committees and Conferences would thus correspond in miniature to the Council and Assembly of the League itself. Each of the Technical Sections would become a small Secretariat under a Director with semi-independent functions working in connection with his own Committee, and preparing the full working material for his own Conferences under the general directions of the Secretary-General and using the general machinery of the Secretariat.

(h) We suggest, for instance, that these Sections or sub-Secretariats might be organised as follows:—

(1) Section of the Economic and Financial Commission;

(2) Transit Section;

(3) Section of Public Health, which would be responsible for all social questions and for the proposed international legislation for the control of the Traffic in Opium and other dangerous Drugs;

(4) Political Section;

(5) Section of the Administrative Commissions and Minorities and Mandates, that is, a combination under one Director of the work at present done by two separate Sections;

(6) Press Section

Should the Council see fit to retain a seventh Director for the time being, it would have the right to do so. To the Sections we would add a Legal Adviser's Branch, which, in addition to giving legal advice to the Secretariat as a whole, would act as a channel of communication between the Secretariat and the newly-constituted Court of International Justice.

(i) We have given much attention to the number of officers of the grade of Director shown upon the present establishment, and to the rate of salary now paid to these officers. The present rate is a high one, even allowing for the ultimate reduction which we propose, as shown in Appendix I, and we feel some doubt as to whether it should eventually be necessary to retain the present number of officials paid at this rate If the above proposals are adopted, we wish it to be understood that the scale of salary which we recommend for Directors is suggested only on the understanding that the number of Directors will not ultimately exceed six, unless new developments take place justifying an increase in the number.

(j) It will be seen from Annex 1 that we have recommended the creation of a new grade, that of Chief of Section This grade is intended to provide for the case where there is work of considerable importance to be undertaken which would normally be assigned to a Director if he were available to take charge of it, but where, because of its temporary character, or for other reasons, although an official with special technical qualifications is needed, the services of a Director are not required.

(k) We have not thought it advisable to give any precise indication of the number of the Chiefs of Section or of the proportion of the more costly Members of Section, Class A, to the less costly Members of Section, Class B, nor do we think that it will ever be possible to do so. The work of the Secretariat will undergo constant change ; while some branches of its activity may be temporarily on the increase, other branches may be expected to bring their work to a conclusion within a definite limit of time, with the result that the staff required in these branches may at any time be reduced or altogether dispensed with, those who are members of the permanent staff being transferred to other branches. But it is obvious that if the establishment showed a number of the more highly paid posts out of all proportion to the lower, the scales which we propose would not make for economical administration. We therefore insist that, in preparing his budget for any given year, the Secretary-General must bear constantly in mind the necessity for economy and recommend only such promotions to the higher ranks as are really required in the interests of the work*.

(l) Work of the Sections.—We have examined the statements and proposals of the Commission of Experts as to the conditions under which the work of each Section is carried out.

As regards the Library, the Registry, the Publications and Information Sections, the subordinate services, the supplies and furniture, and the restaurant, we are in full agreement with the Commission of Enquiry, and we venture to draw the attention of the Assembly to those parts of the report of that Commission which deal with the six questions concerned (pages 23-26 and 64-67, paragraphs 85, 86 87, 92, 93, 95, 96, 97, 100).

We propose that the Assembly should, like ourselves, declare its agreement with the proposals and recommendations included in these nine paragraphs.

(m) We consider that particular stress should be laid upon the Financial Director's Department.

The Secretariat possesses a currency conversion officer. The changes which we have recommended as to the payment of salaries in Swiss francs and the keeping of the accounts of the League in the same currency permits a saving to be effected by the suppression of this post.

The Appropriation Officer is responsible for insuring that proper provision exists in the budget, in the form of corresponding credits, for each payment, before payment is actually made by the accountant.

We understand that the purpose for which this post was created was to ensure that expenditure was in complete conformity with the provision made in the budget: we consider that this post should be maintained, but, as a consequence of the creation of the Commission of Control, it is clear that in future this officer will receive his instructions from the Commission of Control, and will be responsible to it for any expenses incurred without vouchers or without authorisation.

With regard to the organisation of work, we think that it would be advisable in the near future to organise the routine work of the Finance Section into three sub-sections, corresponding to the technical organisations, the Establishment Section and the Printing and Publications Section respectively. The accountant of each sub-section, who would be responsible for checking all bills before payment and for the preparation of salary-lists and cheques, would also collaborate in the compilation of the budget estimates for their respective sub-sections.

*It is hardly necessary to state that the same observations apply to the International Labour Office. The scales proposed for the Chiefs of Division of the International Labour Office are lower than those suggested for the Directors of the Secretariat. These scales have been proposed advisedly, and it follows that the same sparing use for Chiefs of Section should be made in that Office as is recommended in the Secretariat.

We consider that the present procedure of closing accounts at the end of the financial year, and paying outstanding bills out of similar appropriations for the following year, should be continued; arrangements should, however, be made to secure that orders for payments outstanding for three months should lapse automatically. A special form for orders for payments would be sufficient for this purpose. Such a system would facilitate and hasten settlement of accounts.

(n) We consider that it might be desirable, in accordance with the recommendation of the Commission of Enquiry, to combine the work of the Translators and Interpreters Section with that of the Precis-writing Department. This would result in giving the staff of the combined section more variety in their work and would also provide greater elasticity especially at times of pressure. We desire to place on record a statement, which is purely objective, since it is not within our competence to alter the Covenant, that at least one-third of the internal expenditure of the League arises from the compulsory use, prescribed by the Covenant, of the two languages French and English in all official documents.

This statement is not without value in view of the hypothesis that the employment of another language, natural or artificial, is said to be contemplated in some quarters.

(o) A very interesting observation on the part of the British Delegate has drawn the attention of the Committee—which in its turn feels bound to draw the attention of the Assembly—to the differences, sometimes considerable, existing between the French and English texts of documents furnished by the Secretariat. This difference is particularly marked in the provisional verbatim records of the meetings of the Assembly and of the Committees. The explanation of these differences is clearly to be found in the speed with which the Secretariat is compelled to satisfy the demands of journalists for information.

It was suggested, at the Committee, for example, that for next Assembly the procedure adopted in certain Parliaments might be followed with advantage, especially the rapid publication of an analytical verbatim record, followed at 24 or even 48 hours' interval by the stenographers' report of the debates after the proofs had been corrected by those interested in the matter in hand.

We wish, in any case, to draw the attention of the Secretariat to the necessity for obtaining closer agreement of the English and French texts of all documents furnished by it.

(p) As regards the employment of women in the services of the League, we recognise the justice of the rule laid down in the Covenant that all positions under or in connection with the League shall be open equally to men and women.

We would only wish to draw attention to the difficulties which might arise from the employment of husbands and wives, at least in the same branch of the office.

We welcome the appointment already made of two ladies of proved experience, who may be consulted by the Secretariat on women's questions generally, especially on matters of discipline, and questions of health, morals and welfare.

Vague proposals have been made to the effect that women employed should be compelled to wear a uniform, or at least to dress in dark colours.

A rule of such unpleasant severity seems veritably uncalled for and ill-timed, for the radiant charm of a discreet elegance as displayed in feminine attire creates an atmosphere which is wholly delightful and is far from impairing the quality of the work undertaken in common.

(q) As regards the hours of work and leave, we recommend that the working week should be 42 hours a week with a half-holiday on Saturday when the state of work permits.

Whenever possible, time in lieu should be given to the subordinate staff as compensation for overtime, and overtime should not be claimable except for an attendance which exceeds 44 hours a week.

We recommend that an attendance book should be kept for officials of all ranks without exception.

Sick leave on full pay, and after the expiration of a certain period on half pay, should be granted to the staff under regulations similar to those generally in force in public administrations. We are satisfied with the rules already in force with regard to regular leave.

It has been brought to the notice of the Committee that existing regulations concerning leave demand that officials proceeding on annual leave should do so at their own expense. We consider that we should be justified in recommending that the Assembly might fairly confer on the staff the privilege, which would be much appreciated, and relatively inexpensive, of one journey home a year at the cost of the League : provided that this advantage should not be conferred upon members of the staff who have the opportunity during their regular service, and at the expense of the League, of returning home during the current financial year and to spend their normal period of leave there.

Outside the limits of Europe, it would probably be necessary, owing to the far greater cost involved, to give this privilege only once in every two, or, in the case of the most distant countries, every three years. Apart from the fact that it is obviously desirable that members of an international staff should be encouraged to keep in touch with their own nationals, the privilege of returning home at least once a year would have certain advantages in view of the high cost of living in Geneva, which has often been impressed upon us. In particular, it would enable members of the staff to buy their clothing and personal necessities in their countries of origin. This would relieve them of the necessity of purchasing such articles in Switzerland at prices which are said to be higher than those in their own countries.

PART II—International Labour Office.

I—General Observations.

In Part I of this Report we have made certain observations of a general nature which apply to the International Labour Office no less than to the Secretariat.

But there are certain adaptations and modifications in respect of their specific applications to the International Labour Office which now require to be stated.

Before submitting these considerations which refer especially to the International Labour Office, we venture to draw attention to paragraphs 104—111 (pages 27 and 28, 68 and 69) of the Commission of Enquiry Report, in which are summarised the principles of the International Labour Organisation and of its three divisions: the General Conference, the Governing Body, and the International Labour Office.

Generally speaking, we prefer the observations, for the most part of a favourable nature, made by the Committee of Enquiry with regard to the lines upon which the International Labour Office has, up to the present, been conducted.

We agree that attention should be drawn to the dangers which accompany any excessive diffusion of energy and to the fact that it is essential for the International Labour Office, in its own interests and for its own welfare, to maintain the objective impartiality which is the only reasonable standpoint of an organism whose principal, if not sole, duty lies in the accumulation of the most complete, definite and universal information on all labour questions. It is fair, however, to state that the Commission are fully satisfied that the International Labour Office has hitherto made every endeavour to confine its enquiries and activities within the proper limits, and, above all, to keep in close touch with the Secretariat and the various technical organisations that have been set up in the League of Nations. It seems clearly desirable that the International Labour Office should adhere to this line of conduct.

By reason of the fact that its duties are clearly marked and their application well defined, the organisation of the International Labour Office has been able to be carried out with greater speed and facility than that of the Secretariat, which had to deal with a great number of different subjects, ranging from questions of the most technical nature to political problems of the widest kind.

The duties of the International Labour Office, as understood and carried out by it, can be defined broadly as follows; the collection of accurate information and statistics about labour problems on an international basis; the preparation of detailed material which shall lead up to the International Labour Conventions and the following up of the application of the International Conventions by the various national legislatures.

It is only fair to recognise that the International Labour Office has, in a short period, been able to attain a high state of organisation and efficiency.

We have noted the observations contained in the Report of the Commission of Enquiry to the effect that the staff is able, hard-working and enthusiastic, and that, inspired by the overflowing energy and remarkable personal magnetism of their distinguished Director, and recruited with the greatest care, they possess to an unusual degree—whether in the administrative or in the more highly specialised sections—the qualities required.

II—Staff.

(a) Recruitment and Conditions of Service.—We are of the opinion that, generally speaking, the decisions which were formerly arrived at, as regards the conditions of service and recruitment of the Secretariat, can be applied also to the International Labour Office. They may be summarised as follows: The posts of Director and Deputy Director should be filled by appointments from outside the office; the subordinate personnel should be recruited locally: the staff of the intermediate grades should be recruited internationally, and should be given long-term engagements. Proportional representation, as far as possible, of the different nationalities on the staff of the International Labour Office is of the greatest importance. Efficiency should, however, be the prior consideration, since the staff must be highly trained and specialised in all questions with which it has to deal before being able to attain the maximum efficiency.

As regards the method of recruitment, the general principles recommended for the Secretariat may be applied with advantage to the International Labour Office.

(b) Salaries.—The general observations which we have made relating to the salaries of the staff of the Secretariat may be taken as holding good in the case of the International Labour Office with certain qualifications. We recommend that the scale of salaries in Annex 1 should be adopted for this staff.

The Committee has, however, decided to refer to the Salaries Adjustment Committee the question of whether an intermediate scale of salaries should be fixed, as the International Labour Office proposes.

(c) Subsistence Allowances and Frais de Représentation.—We consider that the rates recommended for adoption in the Secretariat, and set out in Annex 3, should also be adopted for the officials of the International Labour Office.

We would also recommend that the question of the Frais de Représentation should be taken up and decision arrived at on the lines laid down in paragraphs 37 and 39 of the Report of the Committee of Enquiry.

III—FINANCIAL CONTROL.

We consider that the principles underlying the arrangements which have been proposed in Part I of this Report, as to the control of expenditure of the Secretariat, should apply equally in the case of the International Labour Office.

In submitting this view, we have taken into full consideration those articles of the Treaties which have some reference to the financial control of the International Labour Office. We consider, however, that it is essential that the Assembly, which is called upon to vote the funds required for the support of the International Labour Office equally with the funds for the support of the League as a whole, should be afforded the same opportunities of controlling the expenditure proposed by the Governing Body of the International Labour Office as we have suggested should be afforded in the case of expenditure of the Secretariat of the League. Owing to the constitution of the International Labour Office, it may, however, be necessary to make certain modifications in the procedure to be adopted.

The present procedure is as follows: The budget of the International Labour Office is first submitted by the Director to the Finance Committee of the Governing Body: and, after approval by the Governing Body as a whole, is transmitted to the Secretary-General of the League for inclusion in the general budget of the League.

It might be objected to the proposal that the budget of the International Labour Office should be discussed again de novo by the Commission of Control, that, as 12 Governments have official representatives on the Governing Body, the Governments of the States Members have already had some opportunity, through the agency of their official representatives, of criticising the budget proposals.

This objection, however, seems to us to impose an altogether unfair responsibility on the official representatives of the Governing Body who may be selected primarily for their experience in labour matters and not as financial critics.

Nor does it provide for any adequate criticism by representatives of the Assembly.

We suggest that the position of the Governing Body of the International Labour Office in regard to finances would be more amply safeguarded if four of its members were appointed to meet the Commission of Control to discuss and explain the budget proposals for the ensuing financial year and also to appear before the Fourth Assembly Committee. Two of these representatives should be chosen from among the Government representatives, one from the employers' and one from the workers' representatives. In addition, it might be left to the Governing Body, if they thought fit, to ask that the Director or his Deputy should be allowed to accompany this body as an additional member. We suggest that it would be advantageous that one of these representatives, appointed by the Governing Body, should be accorded the privilege of appearing in the Assembly when the Budget of the International Labour Office is discussed by that body since the discussion of proposed expenditure is bound to be unfruitful unless accredited representatives of the responsible authorities are afforded this opportunity of defending their proposals in person.

Consequently, we propose that the Governing Body of the International Labour Office may send one representative to the Assembly when the budget of the International Labour Office is discussed. This representative, selected by the Governing Body, may speak in the Asssmbly at the President's invitation, in an advisory capacity. The representative this year will be the Rapporteur for the budget or the President of the Governing Body.

We consider that the arrangement proposed for the audit of the completed accounts of the League should apply to the International Labour Office without modification.

IV—ORGANISATION.

We have already given reasons why the task of building up the organi ation of the International Labour Office has been in some respects easier than the corresponding task as regards the Secretariat.

We do not, however, wish this observation to be allowed to detract in any way from our opinion that the organisation of the Office has been brought to a very high state of efficiency—a fact which will cause no surprise to those who recall the past triumphs of the present Director in the field of organisation.

The Director has received very able assistance in the matter of organisation from the Deputy Director, who is responsible for the control and arrangement of the internal services of the Office.

We have no criticism to make of the manner in which the accounts are kept, or of the general financial arrangements, except that we would suggest that rather more detail might be given in the budget on the general lines indicated in Part I of this Report.

Offices of the International Labour Office.—We have been informed that the International Labour Office has contemplated the possible purchase of the building which it at present occupies.

We have requested that a Sub-Committee should be appointed to enquire into this matter and to express an opinion upon it.

The results of this enquiry, which are fully accepted by the Fourth Committee, are as follows :—

(1) It is not desirable that the International Labour Office should take any steps in the matter of purchase until a definite decision has been reached with regard to the permanent adoption of Geneva as the seat of the League. It is to be hoped that this decision will be reached before next Assembly.

(2) It is clearly desirable that the International Labour Office should own the building which it occupies in whatever city is chosen as the permanent seat of the League.

(3) In the meantime it is preferable to lease the buildings.

(4) The Governing Body of the International Labour Office should be authorised to expend, during the next 12 months, a sum not exceeding 10,000 or 12,000 Swiss francs for the purpose of renting a building in the neighbourhood of the building now occupied and of carrying out certain improvements and alterations.

Organisation of Sections.—In accordance with our terms of reference, we propose to make certain observations on the organisation of the different Sections of the Office, but these observations refer, in general, more to the lines of the future development of the Office than to any specific alteration which might be immediately undertaken.

(a) Cabinet.—The cabinet system has made it possible for a very high degree of centralisation to be carried out in the administrative work of the Office. Without that system the Director could not have kept himself informed of the many important phases of development in the work of the Office as it grew up, nor would he have been able to maintain direct and personal touch with Governments and important organisations throughout the world. There is no doubt, therefore, that this highly centralised system has been helpful in the organisation period of the International Labour Office. It is, however, undeniable that the cabinet system is bound to diminish, to some considerable extent, the responsibility of the Chiefs of Divisions.

We would like to record our opinion that it may be desirable at some future date, when the work of the International Labour Office has attained greater stability than at present, and when the need for centralisation is less urgent, to give increased responsibility to heads of Divisions with advantage to the general working of the Office.

(b) Allocation of Work to three Divisions.—At present there are two main Divisions, exclusive of the central services, which are under the special charge of the Deputy-Director—the Diplomatic and the Scientific Divisions.

Before making such observations as occur to us on the work of these Divisions, we would suggest that the co-ordination between these Divisions and Technical Sections is not sufficiently close if considered as a permanent form of organisation. Concentration is not necessarily centralisation, and we suggest that, as opportunity occurs, every effort should be made to attach the work of the Technical Sections more definitely to that of the Divisions. Such a development would seem to indicate that the main work of the Office should be re-grouped into three Divisions, each under a head of Division.

The first would deal with the diplomatic work, viz., the execution of the decisions of the annual conference, and of the commissions arising out of that conference, as also with International Conventions and the task of carrying on negotiations with the various Governments and preparation of work for future conferences.

The second Division would deal with Research, and it would be in this Division that the majority of the Technical Section would be incorporated, the work of the Division being generally to undertake the technical preparation required for the work of the Diplomatic and Publications Divisions.

We think it would be desirable to constitute a third Division for the publication work now assigned to the Scientific Division.

(c) Technical Sections.—In the preceding paragraph the Committee has suggested attaching certain technical sections to the Scientific Division, while other technical sections would be attached to the present Diplomatic Division.

The only general observation which the Committee wishes to make about the work of this Section is that it considers it of great importance that the practical end in view should be constantly borne in mind.

Although the method of work employed by the staff of the suggested Research Division would be analogous to that of a research worker, it would suggest that out of the almost limitless field for possible enquiries the International Labour Office should, in these early stages of its formation, prefer enquiries on such subjects as are likely to lead to legislation within the next few years to what might be termed "sounding" enquiries of a general nature, however tempting such researches may be to the general study of industrial and labour problems, and whatever interest they may have possessed in the past from an ideal point of view. The Committee notes with satisfaction that the policy of the Governing Body and of the Director of the International Labour Office has generally conformed to this principle.

(d) Scientific Division.—We have suggested above that the work at present performed in the Scientific Division might be divided into two parts.

One part would be assigned to a new Research Division to which the Technical Sections would be attached, while the other would be assigned to the Publications and Intelligence Division devoted to the collection and dissemination of intelligence and to producing the publications of the Office.

To this Division we should also assign the record of labour legislation, the Library and the very important work of the Statistical Section. The latter section is at present understaffed and the Committee considers that it might usefully be strengthened.

The collection of information is for the double purpose of keeping the staff of the Office informed of events which affect their work as a whole, and of collating material concerning labour questions—a task of international interest. This function of the International Labour Office is prescribed by Article 396 of the Treaty of Versailles.

The Committee considers, however, that steps should be taken to ensure that the collection of information and the compilation of statistics shall be carried out in close co-operation with the national Governments.

Most of the Labour Ministries of the world now include an Intelligence Section, which studies labour questions abroad. There would thus seem to be a promising field for economy if the national Government Offices concerned could rely on the International Labour Office for all information and statistics relating to labour questions in countries other than their own, and confine their researches to the national aspect only of such questions.

The information thus supplied by the national Government would be codified by the International Labour Office, which in this manner would serve as a clearing-house of intelligence and statistics and relieve the national Governments of the difficult task of collecting information regarding the conditions prevailing in foreign countries.

The Committee appreciates the great importance of the work which the International Labour Office is undertaking in the establishment of a uniform system for the preparation and compilation of statistics. It considers that the relations established in this respect with the Economic and Financial Section of the Secretariat should become closer. The functions of the International Labour Office in this respect should, therefore, be limited to matters of industrial as distinguished from economic interest.

(e) Daily Intelligence.—The attention of the Committee has been called to the Bulletin printed daily in the International Labour Office and circulated by post throughout the world. It has ascertained that the cost of printing and publishing this Bulletin alone, not including the cost of postage, amounts to no less than 120,000 gold francs a year. It considers that the Bulletin is scarcely useful enough to justify an expenditure on this scale.

It would recommend that its publication, apart from Conference periods, should be normally limited to a weekly or a bi-weekly issue, considering that the information supplied therein is not of such importance that it need be published every day. Among other advantages this would permit of the contract for printing being placed elsewhere than at Geneva, for instance at Lyons, where printing rates are lower.

In view of the length of time before the Daily Intelligence is received by its readers—particularly in the more distant countries—the Commission would suggest that its contents should be limited to matters of permanent international interest, and should not deal with current events of an evanescent character, which the Press is certain to bring to the notice of the general public and of persons specially interested.

(f) Library.—The International Labour Office has, in the opinion of the Commission, done well to purchase the Library of the International Labour Association of Basle. It thinks it is clearly right that the International Labour Office should carry on the work of the Basle Library, and gradually build up a collection of literature on subjects affecting the work of the Office, and it has no fault to find with the choice of books bought. It is, however, essential that great care should be exercised to avoid overlapping with the Library of the Secretariat. The Committee, however, is inclined to think that the organisation of the Library has been framed on rather too ambitious a scale. When once the task of cataloguing the Basle Library has been completed, it should be possible to effect reductions in the staff of the Library, which at present numbers 14.

In connection with the observations on the organisation of the work of the various sections of the International Labour Office, the Committee is of opinion that the Director would be left some latitude in the application of proposals dealing merely with points of detail.

Finally, the Fourth Committee has paid the Commission of Enquiry the most valuable tribute it could hope for by adopting almost all its suggestions.

The President of the Commission of Experts ventures to thank the Fourth Committee on his own behalf, on that of his Colleagues and especially on behalf of Colonel Johnson, whose personal labours were a decisive factor in the achievement of a fruitful and efficient work.

The Fourth Committee has doubtless suggested many reforms, from which it expects, together with an appreciable reduction in expenditure, results at least as great and even greater than in the past from the work of the two principal organisations of the League.

In conclusion the Committee would, however, repeat what it said at the beginning of this report, that the League of Nations should, on the whole, be very grateful for the work already done and the results obtained by the staff of its Secretariat and especially by its higher officers.

SUMMARY OF SPECIFIC DECISIONS TAKEN BY COMMITTEE No. 4.

1st Meeting.—Nothing.

2nd Meeting.—The Committee agreed that the question of the cost of living in Geneva should be referred to the Salaries Adjustment Committee mentioned in the Report of the Committee of Experts, the question of the seat of the League being expressly excepted from this reference.

"Considering that the question of the seat of the League is not governed exclusively by financial considerations, the Committee, in taking note of the opinion expressed in the Report of the Committee of Experts regarding the cost of living in Geneva, which is referred to a special Committee for investigation, leaves the question of the seat of the League to be considered elsewhere."

3rd Meeting.—Any recommendations by this Committee (Salaries Adjustment Committee), must be submitted to the Council (or, in the case of the International Labour Office, to the Governing Body) for their approval before they are put into effect. These conclusions must, however, conform to the budget formally voted by the Assembly.

The Committee agreed to fix a formal rate of 70 gold francs per day for the members of fixed Committees, such as the Financial Committee, which assembled at Geneva or elsewhere periodically to give their assistance to the League. If, for some purpose, the League required the special services of some eminent person, the Council should have liberty to make special arrangements.

4th Meeting.—The total of this fund (Entertainment Fund) should not exceed the total amount of entertainment allowance surrendered by the higher officials of the League.

The Committee recommends that all members of the League should entrust the reservation of accommodation for their representatives and officials visiting Geneva, to the expert official referred to in paragraph 38 of the Report of the Committee of Experts, informing him in good time of the accommodation required, and of the approximate price they are prepared to pay.

It is exceedingly desirable, especially in the higher administrative positions, that the Secretariat of the League of Nations and of the International Labour Office should, as far as possible, be recruited in fair proportion from the various States Members of the League, and that this principle should be carefully borne in mind in filling future vacancies, regard being always had to the requirements of efficiency.

5th Meeting.—These officials (Directors) may, in exceptional cases, be reappointed.

The Committee agreed to maintain the period of engagement at 21 years, as recommended by the Committee of Experts, but agreed to fix the age-limit at 55 years instead of at 50 years. No official could remain in the service of the League more than 21 years or after reaching the age of 55 years.

The Committee adopted the principle of a deferred pay scheme.

The Committee agreed to refer to the Salaries Adjustment Committee the elaboration of the details of this scheme. This Committee would decide whether or no it would adopt the proposal that the Pension Fund should be worked under the management of the parties concerned. The Committee agreed to instruct the Salaries Adjustment Committee to prepare a report on the question for submission to the next Assembly, such report being distributed to the States Members of the League three months before the date of the next Assembly.

6th Meeting.—The Committee agreed to adopt paragraph 42 of the Report of the Committee of Experts relative to the recruitment of staff, with the following modification: The words "recruitment by open competitive examination" should be replaced by the words "recruitment in conformity with the principles laid down in Articles 42 to 54 of the present report."

The Committee agreed to insert in Article 59 of the Report of the Committee of Experts, after the words "the Council," the words "at the request of the Assembly," and to stipulate that at least one of the Members of the Commission of Control should be a financial expert.

The Committee further agreed not to recommend the appointment of a special financial expert.

7th Meeting.—The Committee agreed to maintain the existing financial year.

The Committee agreed to recommend the principle of the fixation of a maximum of working capital fund and to adopt the recommendations, in the Report of the Committee of Experts, that payments to the reserve fund should only be made with the express approval of the Assembly.

The Committee recommended that the Labour Office should participate proportionally in the working capital fund.

8th Meeting.—The Committee adopted the recommendations of the Committee of Experts that the number of Under Secretaries-General should be reduced to one, and the number of Directors to six, on the understanding that this number could be increased to seven with the approval of the Council.

The Committee agreed to recommend that the Appropriation Officer mentioned in Article 89 of the Report of the Committee of Experts should receive his instructions from and report to the Commission of Control, and to amend in this sense the paragraph in question.

The Committee agreed to recommend the establishment of an Office in Latin America.

The Committee recommended that in future the provisional Verbatim Record of the proceedings of the Assembly should be revised by one or two experts before being published, so as to avoid obvious divergencies between the English and French texts.

9th Meeting.—The Committee agreed to refer to the Salaries Adjustment Committee the question of the desirability of creating, as proposed by the International Labour Office, an intermediate scale of salaries.

The Committee agreed that, during the discussion of the budget in the Assembly, the Labour Office could, on the invitation of the President and with the approval of the Assembly, be represented by one person, but that the four members of the Governing Body referred to in the Report of the Committee of Experts should be empowered to appear before the Fourth Committee and before the Commission of Control.

The Committee agreed, in accordance with the report of the sub-Committee appointed for that purpose, not to recommend the purchase of the building occupied by the International Labour Office.

Annex I.—Rates of salary proposed.

The following are the rates of salary which the Committee recommend should be adopted for future appointments to the Secretariat and to the International Labour Office. It should be understood that these rates have been suggested by the Commission, having regard to the present cost of living in Geneva, and that they should be reviewed, in the manner indicated in Annex II, should the cost of living fall or rise to any considerable degree.

	Minimum.	Increase, Annual.	Maximum.
	Swiss Francs.
Directors (Secretariat only)	41,000	2,500	53,000

Clerical Assistants	7,000	200	9,500
Copying Typists (locally recruited)	(See recommendations of I. L. O.)

The Committee wish it to be distinctly understood that they consider that the salaries which are now being paid in many cases in excess of those suggested by them above are justified, having regard to the necessity for recruiting especially well-qualified personnel in the organisation period. They are, however, of the opinion that, as soon as normal conditions of work prevail, it should be possible to obtain personnel of the requisite calibre at the rates suggested.

There are certain posts which are not included in the general grading of the Secretariat, as to which the Commission would like to suggest that the appropriate salaries on the occurrence of vacancies should be as follows :—

I. Head of the Interpreters and Translators Department. II. Establishment Officer. III. Head of Précis-Writing Department.	These posts might be graded equivalent to those of Members of Sections, Class A.
IV. Head of Registry	This post might be graded with a special scale of salary of 20,000 Swiss francs, rising by 500 annually to 25,000.
V. Libiarian	The holders of this post might receive a special salary of 20,000 Swiss francs. The two chief assistants in the Library should receive salaries on the scale 13,750 by 300 to 16,250 Swiss francs annually.

It was decided to refer to the Salaries Adjustment Committee the question whether a new class of Précis-writers, with a salary from 11,250 to 13,000 Swiss francs, should be introduced into this scale for the International Labour Office only.

17,000	12,800	4,200

The general principles underlying these tables are as follows :

(1) It is clear that, other things being equal, the smaller the amount of salary received the greater is the proportion of that salary which must be expended on the necessaries of life; and that, on the other hand, the larger the salary received the greater is the portion of that salary which is available to meet outgoings other than in respect of necessaries, and that these outgoings, in so far as they represent savings, are less affected by temporary variations in the cost of necessaries of life. To the extent that they represent luxury expenditure, the spenders have more opportunity for economies than those who are in receipt of low salaries.

(2) We have, therefore, to suggest some system by which the lower ranges of salaries shall vary in a more direct relation to the variations in the cost of living than the higher salaries. This principle applies, of course, with equal force, whether the cost of living rises or falls.

(3) It is clear from the above that, as the salaries at present paid to the staff, and those recommended by the Commission to be paid, are admittedly based on the existing position with regard to prices, the present scales for the lower grades contain a large proportion of compensation for the present normal cost of living than those for the higher grades.

The system which is usually followed in England and elsewhere is to make percentage additions to the 1914 standard of remuneration, which are proportionately higher in respect of the lower salaries. But in the present case two important factors necessary to work out calculations on this basis are missing :—

(a) It is impossible to conjecture what the 1914 standard of remuneration for the League would have been, as the League did not exist at that date.

(b) We have no reliable figures to hand as to the 1914 cost of living in Geneva as compared with the cost at the present time. The statistics which have been presented to us compare only the cost of living in Geneva and London at the time of the removal of the headquarters of the League. It will be the task of the Salaries Adjustment Committee to compare the cost of living in Geneva at various times.

The element of expatriation, which has formed so large an element in arriving at the existing salaries, presents another factor difficult to estimate.

It therefore seems best to take as our starting point the rates of remuneration shown in Annex I, which have been arrived at after taking into full consideration, inter alia, the present high cost of living. The method which we propose is that the present salaries should be divided into two parts, of which one part should be fixed, while the other part should vary in exact relation with the variation in the cost of living as ascertained by the Salaries Adjustment Committee. For the reasons given above, the amount of variable salary must be proportionately greater in the lower than in the higher grades, and our tables have been constructed on this basis.

The Commission wish it to be understood, however, that the tables are tentative, and we do not suggest that any modification in the amount of the variable portion would prove fatal to the scheme. On the contrary, we would recommend that these tables should, prior to adoption, be submitted to the proposed Salaries Adjustment Committee, when constituted, for their consideration and observations.

It is suggested that any re-assessing of salaries which may be necessary should be made once every six months, and that the salaries for the coming period of six months should be based on the average rise or fall of the cost of living over the preceding period of six months. The average rise or fall should be calculated in round figures to five decimal points, taking the figure for the present cost of living as represented by 100. Further, as a matter of administrative convenience, it would be advisable until the cost of living has moved by 10 per cent. in either direction, that no variations should be effected in accordance with this scheme.

The arrangements outlined above have been framed without reference to the cases of the Secretary-General, the Deputy Secretary-General, and the Under Secretaries-General, whose salaries have been fixed in pounds sterling on five-year contracts. So far as we are aware, these officials would not have any claim to any increase in their remuneration should the cost of living rise and it might well be claimed that they should equally be exempt from any deduction in their salaries should the cost of living fall, but in all the circumstances we consider that it would be fair that salaries should be subject to some deduction should the cost of living fall. We therefore recommend that, in the case of a fall, but not of a rise, in the cost of living, 10 per cent. only of the salaries of these officials should be subject to variation, in accordance with the cost of living, in the manner indicated in this Appendix. We finally suggest that the same arrangement might fairly be applied to the case of the Director and Deputy Director of the International Labour Office.

Annex III.—Subsistence Allowances.

The following are the rates of subsistence allowances which the Committee recommend should be adopted for members of the Secretariat in lieu of those at present in force :—

ANNEX 5 :—Report of the Committee No. IV on the Allocation of the Expenses of the League of Nations.

In execution of the recommendation adopted by the Assembly of the League of Nations in December 1920, a Committee of five Members was appointed by the Council to report on the allocation of expenses. It was composed of MM. Reveillaud (France), Chairman; Barboza Carneiro (Brazil); Alfred Georg (Switzerland); Sthyr, and subsequently de Kauffmann, as substitute for M. Gluckstadt (Denmark); and Sir Henry Strakosch (South Africa). The Report was to be presented to the Council by 31st March 1921. The time at the disposal of this Committee in which to deal with so difficult and complex a question was, therefore, extremely short. It was obviously beyond its powers thoroughly to investigate all possible bases of allocation which might contribute to forming a fair estimate of the "capacity for payment" of the various Members of the League, which was the guiding principle approved by a Committee of the Brussels Financial Conference.

Adequate statistics of national resources were not available, and the Committee, faced with the obligation of submitting a practical proposal within three months, adopted as a measure of the capacity for payment the index obtainable from totals of populations on 31st December 1919, in conjunction with the net revenue for 1913, the last year before the war. The Expert Committee readily admitted that both these indices must remain afar from complete or reliable basis for the purpose in view. They recognised, for instance, that the large native populations of certain extra European countries do not, in many cases, appreciably increase their resources. It was, therefore, laid down that the co-efficient of the population of any State should in no case be estimated as exceeding 5 per cent. of the total population of the States Members of the League. No less readily did the Expert Committee admit the difficulties which arose in determining the amount which could properly be ascribed to net revenue. The principle adopted was to add to the gross revenue, derived from taxation, without taking into account the cost of collection, the amounts derived from what may be described as the trading departments of a State (railways, domains, postal service, etc.) from which administrative and running expenses were deducted.

The very long delay which would have been entailed by the collection of documents and evidence to establish the due proportion of local and general expenditure in, the budgets of individual components of a Federal State, made it inevitable, under the circumstances, that this consideration should be ignored in the estimates of net revenue adopted by the Expert Committee. Several Members of the Fourth Committee have drawn attention to this omission as seriously impairing the justice of the actual indices adopted. There were, moreover, other considerations which might be advanced against the adoption of the particular year 1913, or, indeed, of any single year, for the determination of net revenue, such as the fact that the revenue depending on imports and exports in certain countries fluctuates very considerably according to the quality of the harvests. To meet the varying circumstances of a number of countries, an average of the revenue of a series of years would provide a more satisfactory basis.

Finally, the unstable character of exchanges, and the general disturbance of economic conditions at the present moment, could not be overlooked. Proposals exclusively based upon the indices adopted could not therefore be regarded as other than approximate and provisional, and the defects in the system, which was found to be the only practical one to adopt in view of the brief time available, are fully recognised by the Expert Committee in their report. They had, however, been able to make comparisons with certain other statistical data which confirmed their view that the results of their labours were reasonably accurate.

The Committee of Experts proceeded to classify all the countries Members of the League in accordance with a mean index number obtained from the two factors of population and revenue. It maintained the system adopted by the Universal Postal Union of grouping the States into categories—a system which incidentally allowed some account to be taken of other factors than the two mentioned above. It concluded, however, that the apportionment adopted for the Universal Postal Union, which is prescribed by Article VI of the Covenant of the League of Nations as the basis of allocation of contributions, could not equitably be applied, and that it was indispensable to modify it in order to prevent injustice being done to the members. On the other hand, the rules of the Universal Postal Union made it clear that no alteration of its classification could be brought about in less than a year or eighteen months, while there was a probability that the alterations advocated by the Expert Committee would themselves prove an obstable to acceptance of amendments by the Postal Union. The Expert Committee therefore submitted that the scheme which they recommended for the allocation of expenses could only be introduced by an amendment in Article VI of the Covenant. Such an amendment would liberate the Assembly from the obligation of strictly applying the system of the Universal Postal Union.

The proposed new allocation will be found in Table II annexed to the Report of the Expert Committee (A. 40, 1921). In view, however, of the difficulties and delays which an alteration of the Covenant must entail, the Expert Committee, in addition to this proposed allocation, which might hold good until further investigations enabled all the facts of the economic situation to be more precisely established, also submitted a transitional proposal which, it is believed, might be adopted within the present limits of the Covenant, provisionally maintaining the elemental indices of the Universal Postal Union, while at the same time relieving to a considerable extent the States actually included in too high a group.

The provisional allocation is set forth in Table III annexed to the Report of the Expert Committee.

When a discussion of the proposals put forward in the Report of the Expert Committee was opened in the Fourth Committee, it at once became evident not only from the criticisms made orally, but also from a certain number of resolutions which were submitted, that a divergence of view existed as to whether the scheme of allocation set forth in Table II or that in Table III, both of which were regarded as only provisional solutions, was the more acceptable. It was, however, decided that the general sense of the Committee should not be taken on this question until the legal aspect of the situation had been examined.

On the proposal of the Chairman it was decided to invite the First Committee, which has to deal with amendments to the Covenant, to join with the Fourth Committee in appointing a mixed Sub-Committee in which eminent juridical authorities should be included, to examine into, and report on, the legal position. On behalf of the Fourth Committee MM. Adatci (Japan), Fernandes (Brazil), and Trygger (Sweden) were selected to act together with Sir Rennel Rodd, the reporter to the Fourth Committee; on behalf of the First Committee, Captain Bruce (Australia), MM. Noblemaire (France), Osusky (Czecho-Slovakia), with M. Zahle (Denmark) as reporter to the First Committee.

The Italian Delegate took the opportunity of announcing that, by the constitution of Italy, he was precluded from accepting any proposal involving an increased contribution without the sanction of Parliament. He could not therefore assent to any augmentation in the amount allocated to Italy under the Covenant until after the ratification of Parliament had been obtained to an amendment of Article VI. Other delegates expressed similar views.

The question whether exchange, which at the present moment so seriously affects the economic situation of certain Members of the League, should be taken into account in determining the allocation of contributions was raised by the Delegate of Poland, who in this matter spoke also on behalf of Roumania, Czecho-Slovakia, and the Serb-Croat-Slovene State. The Fourth Committee decided, by a majority resolution, that for various reasons of a practical and technical character the consideration of exchange must be excluded.

It was further decided that the numerical order of the groups into which the countries Members of the League were divided, which had led to misapprehensions, should be discontinued, and that countries should be arranged in alphabetical order.

Other Members of the Fourth Committee supplemented the criticisms to which reference has already been made, such as the incompleteness or insufficiency of the indices adopted, by drawing attention to the absence of any special consideration for the countries which had suffered most heavily by the war, and to the somewhat arbitrary nature of the grouping system, which placed in the same category countries whose index figures differed widely, and whose economic situation was not comparable.

The Fourth Committee, however, realising the difficulties which had been encountered and the impossibility of arriving under the circumstances at more than an approximate adjustment, expressed their high appreciation of the remarkable achievement of the Expert Committee which had, within so brief a period, succeeded in presenting an unanimous report and submitting a proposal for the readjustment of contributions which, it was generally admitted, in its main outlines went far to correct the manifest injustices to the existing scale.

The joint Sub-Committee of the First and Fourth Committees after several meetings expressed the unanimous opinion that the actual scale of allocation in force could not be modified without amending the Covenant. The Transitional Table III, submitted in the Report of the Expert Committee was, in this respect, in precisely the same position as Table II, and did not offer a provisional solution within the limits of the Covenant.

The Sub-Committee accordingly suggested the following amendments to the Covenant:—

" 1. The last paragraph of Article VI of the Covenant shall be replaced by the following:—

"The expenses of the League shall be borne by the Members of the League in the proportion decided by the Assembly."

" 2. Provisional Article (to be inserted as an Annex to the Covenant):—

"The following allocation of the expenses of the League shall be applied as from 1st January 1922." (Insert the Table to be adopted by Committee No. 4.)

The following considerations were added in the Report of the joint Sub-Committee :—

"By the new paragraph of Article VI of the Covenant the Sub-Committee adopts the proposal of the Committee dealing with amendments to the Covenant, according to which the Assembly would have the power to determine the scale simply by a Resolution and not by the procedure laid down in Article 26 of the Covenant. In accordance with Article 5 of the Covenant this Resolution will have to be accepted unanimously.

Nevertheless, as the Assembly will be unable to make use of its new faculty until the amendment shall have been ratified, as prescribed in Article 26 of the Covenant; and as, on the other hand, it is absolutely necessary that the inequity, already recognised by the First Assembly, of the present scale of the Universal Postal Union should be modified as soon as possible, the Sub-Committee was of opinion that Amendment of Article 6 of the Covenant should be supplemented by a provisional Article, possessing the same validity as the Covenant, and being subject to the stipulations prescribed in Article 26 of the Covenant. It is obvious that this Temporary Article will only become effective during the course of the year 1922, but once it has become effective the scale to which it refers will become operative as from 1st January 1922, and consequently will cover the whole financial year 1922.

The Sub-Committee is of opinion that the matter can be arranged in the following manner between 1st January 1922 and the date when the provisional Article becomes effective. In January 1922, when the Director of the Financial Administration has to notify to the Members of the League the amounts which they are required to pay for the expenses of 1922, we shall most probably find that we are still under the existing scale of the Universal Postal Union, and the Director of the Financial Administration should therefore inform the Members of the League of the amount of their contribution according to this scale. But there is no reason why the Director should not also inform the Members of the amount of their contribution as calculated under the new scheme. Until the amendment becomes effective, Members of the League could therefore begin by paying either the amount due according to the Postal scale or that due according to the new scale.

The Sub-Committee considers that it should draw attention to Article 13, section (e) of the Recommendation adopted on 17th December 1920, by the Assembly on the subject of the Finances of the League. According to this Article the allocation for 1922 should be so arranged by the Assembly of 1921 that Members who contributed in 1921 more than they would have done if the new scheme had been in force should, in 1922, pay a correspondingly smaller amount than their quota and vice versâ. If it is determined to retain this readjustment, a question which this Sub-Committee is not competent to consider, Article 13, section (e) of the Recommendation of December 1920 should be incorporated in the provisional Article, as it constitutes a modification of Article 6 of the Covenant, and it will be sufficient to substitute 1921 for 1922.

If the allocation to be adopted by Committee No. IV, is the best solution obtainable for the time being, it will nevertheless be extremely desirable that M. Reveillaud's Committee should continue its labours. It is only in this manner that the Assembly will be enabled eventually to decide upon satisfactory allocation as prescribed in the new final paragraph of Article 6 of the Covenant."

The fourth Committee, in considering the report of the joint Sub-Committee, dealt first with the concluding paragraph, and had no hesitation in adopting a resolution in the following sense : –

> "The Fourth Committee, recognising that the proposals of the Expert Committee are still susceptible of improvements and adjustments after a more exhaustive investigation of the data, recommends that this Committee, so ably presided over by M. Reveillaud, be reappointed by the Council to continue its labours, and after taking account of the various factors not yet fully examined, to submit a further report indicating such modifications of the allocation provisionally accepted as it may deem equitable."

It is anticipated that these further proposals will be ready for consideration by the Assembly not later than 1923.

The Fourth Committee next adopted the amendment to Article VI of the Covenant (No. 1 above), proposed by the joint Sub-Committee, without modification, and recommended that a paragraph should be added to Article 4 of the Rules of procedure of the Assembly to the following effect :—

> "No proposal for a modification of the allocation of expenses for the time being in force, shall be inserted in the agenda unless it has been communicated to Members at least four months before the date fixed for the opening of the session."

The proposed provisional Article (No. 2 above) to be inserted as an annex to the Covenant, led to a long discussion. It was held by many members of the Fourth Committee that any new scale to be adopted could, for reasons which have been sufficiently indicated above, only be provisional and transitory and that there must be a long delay before even such a transitional arrangement could be ratified by the Powers and made effective, with consequent uncertainty and risk of serious disturbance in the financial arrangements of the League. Hence it was urged that it would be more practical to maintain the existing allocation of the Universal Postal Union, until a definitive, equitable adjustment had been submitted to, and adopted by, the Assembly. This view was held even by one or two representatives of Powers which stood to gain considerably by the immediate acceptance of a new allocation. Others, however, entertained no doubt that the risks involved were to be preferred to any prolongation of the existing system, which entailed such manifest injustices, and a division showed that a majority of the Fourth Committee were in favour of a new provisional allocation. Of the two alternatives presented by the Expert Committee Table II was adopted in preference to Table III by a large majority, subject to amendments to be considered later.

Having thus come to a decision, in principle, as to the new scale of allocation, the Fourth Committee proceeded to consider whether any alterations in Table II were permissible. In particular, it discussed a proposal of the Polish Delegate that Poland should be included amongst the countries enumerated in the fourth, instead of the third class of Table II. The Committee decided, by a majority, to accept this proposal, taking into account the exceptional grounds on which it was based, especially the contention that Poland was formed out of parts of the three Empires which, in 1913, were in a condition of prosperity not obtaining when her existence as a separate State commenced, and that only an arbitrary estimate of revenue in 1913 had been possible.

The consequent reduction in the contribution of Poland will not make any appreciable difference in the allocations of the other Members of the League, having regard to the recent admission to membership of Esthonia, Latvia and Lithuania. The eventual shares of these States had not been taken into consideration when Table II was prepared by the Expert Committee.

Table II as amended, showing (a) the units of contribution ; (b) the percentages payable by the existing Members of the League, is given in an appendix.

The Fourth Committee then decided that all other proposals for modification of the scale of allocation and the memoranda submitted in support of them should be referred to the Expert Committee for investigation in connection with the revised scheme which it is to prepare. It will, of course, be open to this Committee to hear the representatives of such countries as desire to express their views, and to present any results which are ready in time, to the Assembly of 1922.

The Fourth Committee recognised the high standard of the memoranda submitted by several of its members, and agreed that both their criticisms and their constructive proposals deserved close study. Had time permitted, the Fourth Committee would have been glad to examine these memoranda in detail. It was forced to recognise, however, that any such examination at so late a period of the present session could have been only cursory and unsatisfactory.

For the sake of greater clearness, and in order that there may not appear to be any contradiction between the terms of Article VI as amended and those of the provisional Article proposed by the joint Sub-Committee, the Fourth Committee agreed to add to the letter the following words :—

"And shall remain in force until a revised allocation has been accepted by the Assembly."

The question of the date to be inserted in the provisional Article brought under review the issue whether the new allocation was to be retroactive in effect, so as to cover the year 1921. A recommendation in favour of such retroactivity had been adopted in the last session of the Assembly in 1920. This question was very carefully considered and argued in the Fourth Committee, and a certain number of members urgently advocated a readjustment in the sense of that recommendation. They represented that not only they, but their Governments also, regarded the 1920 recommendation as in the nature of a pledge. After a long discussion a large majority of the Fourth Committee declared itself against upholding the recommendation. They contended that at the time of its adoption there was a hope that it would be possible to apply a revised scale for 1922, without amending the Covenant, by arrangement with the Universal Postal Union. They further urged that insistence upon retroactivity would prejudice not only the prospects of acceptance of the provisional Article in the Assembly, but above all the prospects of approval of the new allocation by certain of the Parliaments, and ratification by the respective Governments. Failure in either case would entail, as the only alternative, the maintenance of the old allocation under the Universal Postal Union.

It may be desirable to add a word or two, as to the position of States which may be admitted to membership of the League in future years. The units of expenditure payable by such members cannot be determined under the wording of the provisional Article referred to above. It is suggested that the difficulty would best be met by a specific decision of the Assembly after reference to the appropriate Committees at the time when any new application for membership comes before it.

The task imposed upon the Fourth Committee in considering the many aspects of a question which is by its nature contentious, has been no light one, and in presenting recommendations which appear to be the most practical under present conditions, it must once more express appreciation of the excellent work accomplished in so short a time by M. Reveillaud's Committee, on which the proposed resolutions are based. Every assistance has been afforded by the members of that Committee in explaining the principles which have guided their action, and in elucidating the various points which have arisen during the progress of discussions. The Fourth Committee have every confidence that a resumption of the investigation, in the light of further data which may become available, and of the recommendations advanced by various members, will lead to even better results in the future.

In conclusion the Fourth Committee has the honour to propose to the Assembly the following Resolutions which have been adopted, either unanimously or by a majority :—

I.—That the last paragraph of Article VI of the covenant should be replaced by the following paragraph :—

"The expenses of the League shall be borne by the members of the League in the proportion decided by the Assembly."

II.—That the following provisional Article shall be inserted as an annex to the Covenant :—

"The following allocation of the expenses of the League shall be applied as from 1st January 1922, and shall remain in force until a revised allocation has been accepted by the Assembly :—

III.—That the Assembly, recognising that the proposals of the Expert Committee (A.-40, 1921) are still susceptible of improvements and adjustments after a more exhaustive investigation of the data, recommends that this Committee so ably presided over by M. Reveillaud, be re-appointed by the Council to continue its labours and, after taking account of the various factors not yet fully examined, to submit a further report indicating such modifications of the allocation provisionally accepted as it may deem equitable.

IV.—That the following paragraph should be added to Article IV of the Rules of Procedure of the Assembly :—

SUPPLEMENTARY MEMORANDUM BY THE RAPPORTEUR.

The rapporteur of the Fourth Committee on the subject of Allocation of Expenses proposes, in submitting the Committee's report to the Assembly, to discuss the following Resolutions :—

(1) (to be substituted for Resolution 2 in the report of the Fourth Committee, page 7 of A. 179, 1921) :

(a) That the following paragraph shall be added to Article 6 of the Covenant as amended :—

"The allocation of the expenses of the League set out on Annex 3 shall be applied as from 1st January 1922 until 31st December 1923, unless in the meantime a revised allocation has come into force after adoption by the Assembly."

(b) That the following shall become Annex 3 of the Covenant :—

Allocation of the Expenses of the League.

(As in Resolution II, in the Report of the Fourth Committee.)

(2) (Additional Resolution.) "The Assembly is of the opinion that, when a revised scheme of allocation of the expenses of the League has been adopted after consideration of the fresh recommendations of the Expert Committee, it would be equitable that Members of the League which may, with effect from 1st January 1921 and up to the year for which the revised scheme is adopted, have paid more than they are called upon to pay under the operation of such scheme, should be entitled to a refund of the excess amount paid.

"Such refund shall be made as surplus funds accrue and without prejudice to the maintenance of the working capital account of the League at its full normal figure."

Contribution of Germany for 1921	343,750
Estimated subscriptions for Office publications for 1921	100,000
	1,364,390

In regard to the disposal of these sums, the Governing Body, at its meeting of 14th April 1921, approved the following recommendation contained in the report of their Finance Committee:

"It will be a matter for the Assembly of the League of Nations to determine how these sums should be treated; whether they should go in reduction of the contributions required in respect of the cost of the Office during the current year, or whether they should be brought into account in fixing the Budget for 1922. It is suggested that these amounts should be shown in a note appended to the Estimate for 1922, and the view of the Governing Body on the question indicated. The Finance Committee think the best course is to appropriate them in reduction of the expenditure for 1922."

ANNEX 8:—Report of Committee No. IV on the Financial Administration of the League.

I.—GENERAL OBSERVATIONS.

The early period of the life of the League was a difficult time from the point of view of finance.

Difficulties arose, on the one hand, from the fact that the League was suddenly confronted by problems which increased every day in number and in importance and which called for expenditure on the part of the League, and on the other hand, from the fact that a system of financial regulations was almost completely lacking. One of the few provisions existing of this matter—that contained in the last paragraph of Article 6 of the Covenant, dealing with allocation of the expenses of the League of Nations—is, moreover, very unsatisfactory.

It appears that the rapid increase in expenditure came to an end at the close of the year 1920. Again it is unquestionable that the very severe strictures by the First Assembly to which the rapid growth of the expenditure of the League had given rise did much to check the tendency which had been criticised. The discussions in the Fourth Committee have, moreover, very clearly again emphasised the earnest desire of the Financial Committee of the Assembly to limit, as far as possible, the expenditure of the League of Nations, and the Fourth Committee is glad to report that the budget, as it is submitted to the Assembly, amounts to only 20,758,945 gold francs, whilst the budget for 1921 amounted to 21,250,000 gold francs.

The other cause of the difficulties was found in the almost complete absence of financial control. Before the meeting of the First Assembly, the Council had already adopted measures to remedy this state of affairs, and the First Assembly, with the same object in view, adopted the Recommendation of 17th December 1920, containing a provisional code of rules for the administration of the finances of the League of Nations. This Recommendation contains provisions for the preparation and the definite adoption by the Assembly of the General Budget of the League of Nations, which includes the Budget of the International Labour Organisation, provisions regarding the procedure to be followed when incurring unforeseen expenditure, regarding transfers from one appropriation to another, regarding the working capital fund, regarding the auditing of the accounts and receipts, and their adoption by the Assembly, and, finally, regarding the allocation of expenditure as between the Members of the League of Nations.

II.—AMENDMENT OF THE RECOMMENDATION OF THE ASSEMBLY, DATED 17TH DECEMBER 1920, ON THE QUESTION OF THE FINANCES OF THE LEAGUE OF NATIONS.

The Recommendation of 17th December 1920 laid the requisite legal foundation for a practical and satisfactory administration of the finances of the League of Nations. While it is true that it covers the whole ground of administration, it constitutes, however, only a first step towards a final settlement of a matter which is of such importance for the life of the League. The First Assembly, therefore, in the Recommendation itself, requested the Council to draw up, for the annual session of the Assembly in 1921, if experience should prove it advisable, a Resolution to strengthen and improve the financial administration. It is evident from the memorandum of the Secretary-General and from the Resolution adopted by the Council on 30th August 1921, that the Council considered that it would not be expedient to draw up final regulations so long as the Assembly had not expressed its opinion in the portions of the Report of the Commission of Experts which dealt with this administration.

The Fourth Committee was completely in agreement with this view, but, as the Assembly has now formulated its opinions on the remarkable work of the Commission of Experts, it is of opinion that the Council should be requested to enter at once on the preparation of the Draft Resolution, in order that it may be submitted to the Members of the League at a very early date, so as to enable the Third Assembly to adopt a final Resolution.

Article 6 of the Recommendation of 17th December 1920 was to the effect that extraordinary expenditure could only be incurred under the last item of Chapter 2 (Article 27 of the Budget for 1921) by virtue of a special resolution of the Council. As regards the Budget for 1921, a similar permission must be obtained for the unforeseen expenditure referred to in Article 25.

While the Recommendation of 17th December 1920 does not authorise the transfer of credits from one item of the budget to an item of another chapter, it provides, for the year 1921 alone, the possibility of transfer from one item of the Budget to another of the same chapter. In accordance with the memorandum of the Secretary-General and the Resolution adopted by the Council on 30th August 1921, even the transfer of credits from one chapter to another might perhaps be permitted, but the Council merely indicates to the Assembly the expediency of continuing, in 1922 also, transfers of credits from one item to another of the same chapter with the special permission, of course, of the Council. The Fourth Committee agreed to adopt this Recommendation.

The financial paragraphs of the Report by the Commission of Experts (paragraphs 56–71, 88-91 and 126-129) have already been dealt with in M. Noblemaire's Report on the whole work of the Commission of Experts. If the present Report returns to this subject—as briefly as possible—it is because the financial proposals of the Commission of Experts as they were carried by the Assembly entail a certain number of modifications of the Recommendation of 17th December 1920, and must therefore also appear in the present Report.

The Fourth Committee, in the first place, adopts the idea of the Commission of Experts that the Council should be advised to appoint a Commission of Control which should be entirely independent of the body responsible for the measures involving expenditure, and which should lay before the Assembly its opinion on the Draft Budget (paragraphs 57-59). It is of course understood that the appointment of the Commission of Control by the Council does not in any way prejudice the Assembly's right to nominate a similar Committee.

On the other hand, the Committee was of the opinion that it would not be necessary to attach to the Commission of Control a special salaried financial expert, in addition to the Appropriation Officer, whose duty it is to make sure, before any expense is incurred, that there is proper budget provision for it, and in addition also to the auditors mentioned in Articles 8-10 of the Assembly's Recommendation referred to above, whose report will in future be submitted to the Commission of Control. The Committee decided to retain the Appropriation Officer (paragraph 89) and to place him under the orders of the Commission of Control. It recommended, however, that one at least of the three or five members of the Commission should be a financial expert.

The Fourth Committee proposes that the calendar year which had been adopted as the financial year by the First Assembly should continue to be the financial year (paragraphs 63-65). It concurred in the proposals regarding submission of the Budget (paragraphs 66-70), which, moreover, had already been to a large extent applied in the General Draft Budget for 1922. The Committee also recommends the suggestions of the Committee of Experts contained in paragraphs 88, 90 and 91, relating to the organisation of the Financial Director's Section.

With regard to the Working Capital Fund (paragraph 71), which already occasioned long discussion in the First Assembly, the Committee adopts the proposals contained in paragraph 71. It is of opinion that the maximum amount of the Working Capital Fund might be fixed at 5,000,000 gold francs. Moreover, sums could not be paid into the Fund without the sanction of the Assembly. It follows that the excess of receipts over expenditure, if any, at the end of a financial year, must be carried to the account of the following year. The International Labour Office may, if necessary, obtain assistance, as it has done in the past, from the Working Capital Fund proportionately to its Budget, but it is not to be allowed to have a special fund at its disposal.

Recoverable advances on account of the Working Capital Fund made during the last financial period shall be shown in the statements to be attached to the Draft Budgets in accordance with Article 2 of the Recommendation of 17th December 1920, regarding the administration of the finances of the League of Nations. Finally, the final regulation of the financial administration of the League shall contain definite provisions regarding the administration of the Working Capital Fund.

As regards the financial control of the International Labour Organisation, the Recommendation of 17th December 1920 had already provided for the same guarantees as in connection with the other organisations of the League (paragraphs 126-129 of the Report by the Commission of Experts are based on similar principles). They recommend more especially that the Commission of Control, to which a certain number of delegates of the Governing Body of the International Labour Office could submit the estimates for that organisation, should have the same powers in this connection as over the finances of the other organisations of the League. The fact that the Assembly definitely votes the sum total of the League's Budget has led the Fourth Committee also to adopt the idea that the Governing Body of the International Labour Office should be empowered to make a statement regarding its Budget The Fourth Committee suggests that the Governing Body should be empowered for this purpose to appoint a representative who might attend in an advisory capacity any meetings of the Assembly dealing with the Budget. It is, of course, understood that such a representative could not rise to speak unless invited to do so by the President.

The question of the allocation of the expenses of the League is dealt with in a special report. Moreover, a certain number of amendments to the Covenant concerning the finances of the League have been studied by the First Commission.

In accordance with the above remarks, the Fourth Committee has the honour to submit the following Recommendation to the Assembly :—

Recommendation.

The Assembly of the League of Nations requests the Council to continue to regulate the finances of the League of Nations in the spirit of the principles contained in the Assembly Recommendation of 17th December 1920, as modified by the following Articles, and by the recommendations laid down in the Report of the Fourth Committee on the administration of the finances of the League of Nations. Further, the Assembly requests the Council to prepare for the annual meeting of the Assembly of 1922 a final resolution regarding the administration of the finances of the League of Nations.

Article 1—The Assembly recommends the Council to appoint a Commission of Control of three or five members, one of whom at least shall be a financial expert. The Council shall select the Commission from amongst the Members of the League of Nations in such a way as to include Members of the League which are not represented on the Council.

Draft Budgets and other documents contemplated in Articles 1 and 2 of the Recommendation adopted on 17th December 1920 shall be submitted to the Commission of Control before being submitted to the Council. The Draft Budget of the International Labour Organisation shall be laid before the Commission of Control by four members of the Governing Body, two of whom might be selected from the delegates of Governments, one from employers' delegates and one from the workers' delegates. The Governing Body shall decide whether the Director or Deputy Director of the International Labour Office shall be added to the Delegation.

A representative of the Governing Body shall be authorised to attend in an advisory capacity any meetings of the Assembly that deal with the Budget. It is, of course, understood that the representative in question cannot rise to speak except on the invitation of the President.

The appropriation officers, whether members of the Secretariat or of the International Labour Office, shall be responsible to the Commission of Control.

Article 2.—Article 6 shall read as follows :—

"Expenditure can be incurred only by virtue of a warrant signed by the Secretary-General or one of his deputies specially authorised thereto. This warrant shall mention the fiscal period and the budget item to which the expenditure is to be charged, and cannot be given until the official appointed for the purpose (Appropriation Officer) has certified that the item of expenditure is represented in the Budget by a corresponding credit. Unforeseen expenditure, however, can only be incurred under Article 25 of the General Budget for 1922 if it is authorised by a special resolution of the Council, which must be immediately communicated to the Members of the League of Nations. During the year 1922 transfers from one item to another of the same chapter can be effected by virtue of a special resolution of the Council, which must be immediately communicated to all the Members of the League of Nations."

Article 3. The following sentence shall be added to Article 7 : —

"Additions to this fund, which may not exceed 5,000,000 gold francs, cannot be made except with the approval of the Assembly. If the fund exceeds 5,000,000 gold francs, the excess shall be carried forward to the credit of the next financial period. The International Labour Organisation may continue to obtain, if necessary, assistance from the Working Capital Fund proportionately to its budget."

Article 4.—Insert in Article 9, after the word "auditors," "and to the Commission of Control."

Article 5.—Article 10 shall read as follows :—

"Three months before the annual session of the Assembly, the Commission of Control and the auditors shall present to the Council, or in the case of the International Labour Organisation, to the Governing Body, a Joint Report on the correctness, etc."

III.—Participation in the Expenses of the Technical Organisations of the League by States which participate in the Organisation without being Members of the League.

The Fourth Committee was pleased to note the resolution of the Council of 2nd September 1921, authorising the Secretary-General to request the States which are not Members of the League of Nations, but which form part of the technical organisations of the League, to pay their share of the expenses of the technical organisations in which they participate from the beginning of the fourth financial year of the League (1922). The Commission therefore proposes the following recommendation to the Commission :—

Recommendation.

The resolution of the Council of 2nd September 1921, authorising the Secretary-General to request the States which are not Members of the League of Nations, but which form part of the technical organisations of the League, to pay their share of the expenses of the technical organisations in which they participate, from the beginning of the fourth financial year of the League (1922), should be incorporated in the final regulations of the financial administration of the League.

IV.—INCOME AND EXPENDITURE ACCOUNTS.

In accordance with Article 8 of the Assembly Recommendation dated 17th December 1920, the Council, in a Resolution of 23rd February 1921, requested the Swiss Government to authorise the Audit Department of its Ministry of Finance to undertake the duty of auditing the income and expenditure accounts for the second financial period extending from 1st July to 31st December 1920. The Berne Government has been so good as to instruct M. Ryffel, Head of the Federal Departments of Banking and Accounts, and M. A. Kobler, Deputy Controller of the Federal Finances, to audit the accounts in question. At the request of the Director of the International Labour Office, these gentlemen also undertook the auditing of the income and expenditure account of the International Labour Organisation for the second financial period extending from 1st April to 31st December 1920. The two reports of the expert auditors show that they were completely satisfied with the accounts of the Secretariat and of the International Labour Office.

After a detailed examination of the balance-sheets and of the income and expenditure accounts, the Fourth Committee decided to propose to the Assembly that it should, in virtue of Article 12 of the Recommendation of 7th December 1920, cited above, finally pass the expenditure and receipts of the second fiscal period. The Committee added to this proposal the desire that in the future a cash account should be subjoined to the balance-sheet, and to the income and expenditure account, and that this cash account should also be submitted to the expert auditors, who would also audit the expenditure of the Working Capital Fund account. It must also be understood that the documents emanating from the International Labour Office must no longer be expressed in sterling currency.

In virtue of these remarks, the Fourth Committee has the honour to submit the following Resolution to the Assembly for adoption :—

Resolution.

In virtue of Article 12 of the Recommendation, dated 17th December 1920, on the administration of the finances of the League of Nations, the Assembly of the League of Nations finally passes the expenditure and income accounts for the second fiscal period, terminating on 31st December 1920.

V.—BUDGET FOR 1922.

The arrangement of the General Budget for 1922 and the Budget of the International Labour Office, which is attached to it, gives rise to only a few general observations. The Fourth Committee was gratified to note that the suggestions put forward by the Commission of Experts regarding the introduction of the Budget had already in great measure been given effect to in the Draft Budget presented by the Secretary-General. If the estimates for the Labour Organisation are not yet in complete agreement with these suggestions, this is due solely to the fact that the draft had to be prepared at a date when the views of the Commission of Experts were not yet known. The Fourth Committee is satisfied that the Director of the International Labour Office fully shares its views as to the necessity for adopting in the future the same arrangement for the special Budget of the International Labour Organisation, as well as for the schedules and explanatory notes, as for the General Budget of the League.

The estimates laid before the Assembly amounted to a total of 23,768,846 gold francs, of which 8,245,046 gold francs was on account of the International Labour Office. The estimates which the Fourth Committee proposes that the Assembly should adopt amount only to 20,758,945 gold francs, of which 6,135,610 gold francs is on account of the International Labour Office.

This heavy reduction represents economies which it has been possible to realise and which are to a certain extent explained by the fact that the Secretary-General and the Director of the International Labour Office have to present their estimates at the beginning of the year (see Articles 1 and 2 of the Recommendation of the Assembly adopted on 17th December 1920). It has been possible to deduct from the Budget of the International Labour Office an item amounting to 1,364,390 gold francs, by the suppression of the Special Working Capital Fund for that organisation, the General Working Capital Fund fixed at 5,000,000 gold francs being sufficient for the needs both of the Secretary-General and of the Director of the International Labour Office. It is clear that it will be impossible to repeat a reduction of this kind next year. Amongst the reductions made by the Fourth Committee, there appears a general reduction of 25 per cent. on everything connected with printing expenses, this being due to the general fall in prices in this department.

Though a considerable number of reductions have been introduced into the Budget, the Fourth Committee also proposes the inclusion of a certain number of new credits, which are largely accounted for by Resolutions of the Assembly itself.

Five schedules are attached to the present Report, the first and fourth of which indicate the modifications entailed by the fact that the Secretary-General and the Director of the International Labour Office are forced to prepare their estimates for the following year as early as the beginning of the financial year. The second schedule sets out the modifications necessitated by Resolutions of the Assembly itself, and the third and fifth schedule, reductions introduced at the suggestion of the Fourth Committee.

The detailed and thorough examination to which the Fourth Committee has subjected the estimates for 1922 has brought to light a very considerable amount of information, and full explanations were asked for and given. As regards details of these questions, this Report can only refer to the minutes of the 13th-17th meetings of the Committee. It is necessary, however, to emphasise a few special points.

If the Fourth Committee has agreed to the credits requested for a subsidiary office for South America (item 3*c* and item 6*b* of the General Budget), it has done so on the clear understanding that this office would not be set up before the Council had drawn up a definite scheme for its organisation.

The Fourth Committee, in proposing that the Assembly should grant a special credit of 45,000 gold francs with the object of publishing the Monthly Bulletin in several languages (item 8 of the General Budget), is convinced that the Information Section will exercise a wise selection with regard to these languages and will not neglect Hindustani.

With regard to the special estimates dealing with the various items of the General Budget (special organisations of the League), the Committee calls attention to the necessity for these estimates being as detailed as possible.

The important question of the Working Capital Fund has already been dealt with in section 2 of the present Report.

The question of a new building for the International Labour Organisation has long engaged the attention of the Financial Committee of your Assembly. In this connection the Committee passed the following Resolution :—

> " The Committee, being invited to take a decision on the principle of the acquisition of a building for the International Labour Office, recognises the urgent necessity of a speedy solution of the question, but finds itself to its sincere regret obliged to defer for one year the solution of this important question :
> In order, however, to manifest its good-will in this matter, the Committee enters a credit of 20.000 Swiss francs under this appropriation, for the purpose of making plans, estimates, etc., or of making a contract of option in respect of premises for the International Labour Office."

It follows from this Resolution that the Fourth Committte is of opinion that the 1922 Assembly must have submitted to it a definite and precise proposal as regards the definite installation of the International Labour Office. Meanwhile, the Committee proposes that the Assembly should vote a sum of 12,000 gold francs to be set apart for renting a house near the building at present in use, and for the carrying out of certain improvements and re-arrangements (Division F of the Budget of the International Labour Office), and also a sum of 2,000 gold francs (Division H of the same Budget).

To reduce as far as possible the expenditure of the League of Nations the Fourth Committee recommends finally that for the preparation of new estimates, and for such options as may be contracted, all supplies and articles required by the Secretariat or the International Labour Office, where large quantities are involved (for prices exceeding 10,000 francs), should be obtained as far as possible by means of public tender. A detailed advertisement should accordingly be inserted in two leading foreign newspapers, and also in the Monthly Bulletin of the League of Nations.

During the present session of the Assembly, in accordance with the fifth Article of the Recommendation of 17th December 1920, a certain number of proposals were made to the Fourth Committee by the Secretariat and the International Labour Office. The result of these proposals was to modify the General Budget and that of the International Labour Office. The Commission is of opinion that in future all modifications of the Budget which the Secretariat or the International Labour Office would wish the Assembly to adopt should be contained in one document and submitted at the beginning of the session of the Assembly.

On several occasions the Secretariat brought before the Fourth Committee supplementary estimates to cover expenditure resulting from resolutions submitted by certain Committees to the Assembly or which had already been passed by it. The Fourth Committee has, without exception, adopted these supplementary estimates, even when the particular Committee had failed to state the sum it deemed necessary for the execution of its draft resolution. The Fourth Committee is of opinion, however, that, in the interest of a satisfactory administration of the finances of the League, the Assembly should never in future pass a resolution resulting in expenditure without first consulting the Financial Committee of the Assembly as to the advisability of incurring such expenditure in its relation with the general possibilities of the Budget. The Fourth Committee has, therefore drafted an amendment to the second paragraph of the Article 14 of the Rules of Procedure of the Assembly and has submitted it to the First Committee.

Finally, and in accordance with the foregoing, the Fourth Committee has the honour to propose the following Resolution to the Assembly :—

Resolution.

"The Assembly of the League of Nations, in accordance with Article 4 of the Recommendation on the administration of the finances of the League of Nations, dated 17th December 1920, accepts for the fiscal period 1922, the General Budget of the League and the Budget for the International Labour Office, which are herewith attached and which will be published in the Official Journal."

ANNEX 9.—Traffic in Opium and other dangerous Drugs.

RESOLUTION ADOPTED BY THE COUNCIL ON THE 28TH JUNE 1921.

The Council of the League of Nations resolves :—

1. That States which are Members of the League and have not signed or ratified the International Opium Convention be invited to do so as soon as possible.

2. That the Netherlands Government be requested to continue its efforts to secure ratification of the International Opium Convention by those States which are not Members of the League.

3. That the Provisional Health Committee of the League, or any other similar organisation, be asked to undertake an enquiry to determine approximately the average requirements of the drugs specified in Chapter III of the International Opium Convention for medical and other legitimate purposes in different countries.

4. That in order to carry out the obligations under Articles 3 and 5 and under Article 13 of the International Opium Convention, the Governments which are parties to the Convention be invited to adopt the following procedure :—

"Every application for the export to an importer of a supply of any of the substances to which the Convention applies shall be accompanied by a certificate from the Government of the importing country that the import of the consignment in question is approved by that Government and is required for legitimate purposes.

In the case of drugs to which Chapter III of the Convention applies, the certificate shall state specifically that they are required solely for medicinal or scientific purposes."

5. That the special attention of the Contracting Powers having treaties with China be invited to the provisions of Article 15 of the International Opium Convention, so that the most effective steps possible should be taken to prevent the contraband trade in opium and other dangerous drugs.

6. That consideration of the Fifth Recommendation of the Advisory Committee on Traffic in Opium be deferred.

7. That in view of the world-wide interest in the attitude of the League towards the Opium question, and of the general desire to reduce and restrict the cultivation and production of opium to strictly medicinal and scientific purposes, the Advisory Committee on Traffic in Opium be requested to consider and report, at its next meeting, on the possibility of instituting an enquiry to determine approximately the average requirements of raw and prepared opium specified in Chapters I and II of the Convention for medical and scientific purposes in different countries.

REPORT SUBMITTED TO THE ASSEMBLY BY COMMITTEE NO. V.

The abuse of opium is a widespread and terrible scourge in many countries; moreover, it has been realised that it was indispensable to combat this evil, but it was quickly perceived that merely national measures were inadequate.

It was felt, therefore, that this scourge could only be overcome by international agreements.

The International Commission, assembled at Shanghai in 1909, was the first move in this direction. It paved the way for the Hague Conference of 1911-12, which resulted in the conclusion of the Convention of 23rd January 1912. This Convention was to come into force on 31st December 1914, but the outbreak of war unsettled everything. However, the authors of the Treaty of Versailles devoted consideration to the opium peril, and, in Article 23 of the Covenant, they entrusted the League of Nations with the duty of controlling the traffic in opium and other dangerous drugs.

The first Assembly decided at its meeting of 15th December 1920 to establish an Advisory Committee, which, three months before the beginning of each meeting, should submit to the Council a report on all subjects referring to the execution of the agreements regarding the traffic in opium. This Committee met on 2nd to 5th May last.

It began by drawing up a questionnaire as to the measures taken to carry out the terms of the Convention, and this questionnaire was sent by the Secretariat to the various Governments. It also drew up six recommendations which were submitted to the Council. The latter took note of them and passed a resolution containing seven paragraphs

The Fifth Committee of the second Assembly began its labours, therefore, with these data at its disposal, that is to say, the recommendations of the Advisory Committee and the Council's resolution. It was also assisted in its task by the enlightened assistance of two experts, M. van Vettum and Sir Malcolm Delevingne. The Committee noted in the first place that the Council in its resolution dated 28th June (see Annex 228 to the Minutes of the 13th Session of the Council), fully approved four out of the six recommendations of the Advisory Committee, but that, on the other hand, it postponed one of these recommendations and widened the scope of another.

It concurred in four paragraphs of the Council's resolution, namely, paragraphs 1, 2, 4 and 5, and also the second recommendation of the Advisory Committee (see A. 38, 1921, IV), which was to the effect that each State should make an Annual Report on the carrying out of the Convention. (This recommendation had been approved by the Council, but did not form part of the text of Council's resolution.) But, as differences of opinion had arisen with regard to the other paragraphs, that is to say, Nos. 3, 6 and 7, the Committee appointed a Sub-Committee to reconcile these initial divergencies if possible.

This Sub-Committee held four meetings, and, in spite of the great differences in the views of its members, it was able to arrive at a definite result, thanks to the conciliatory spirit manifested by both sides and thanks also to the skilful guidance of its President, M. de Marees van Swinderen. The report submitted by M. van Swinderen was unanimously adopted by the Fifth Committee.

The Delegates of China and of Siam made a reservation regarding the change proposed in this report as regards paragraph 7 of the Council's resolution.

What, therefore, are the conclusions laid down before the Assembly by the Fifth Committee in regard to the traffic in opium?

They are as follows:—

Besides the four paragraphs, referred to above, of the resolution of the Council dated 28th June, the Committee submits eight recommendations which I shall have the honour of reading to you, and which, I hope, will be accepted by the Assembly.

1. The Assembly concurs in paragraph 3 of the Council's Resolution on the understanding that the enquiries undertaken will be of a scientific character, and that, when they apply specifically to any particular country, they will be made through, or with the consent of, the Government of that country.

2. The Assembly recommends to the Council that, in paragraph 5 of the latter's resolution, it should also draw the attention of the Government of China to Article 15 of the International Convention on Opium.

3. The Assembly recommends to the Council that the enquiry referred to in paragraph 7 of the latter's resolution should be extended to include all opium the consumption of which may be considered legitimate, and that to this end the word "strictly" be omitted, and the word "legitimate" be substituted for "medicinal and scientific." It further recommends to the Council the omission of the reference to prepared opium, that is to say, to opium prepared for purposes of smoking, the complete suppression of which is provided for in Chapter II of the Convention.

4. The Assembly recommends to the Council that the different Governments be invited, where they see no objection, to furnish to the Secretariat, in addition to the official annual report, any information concerning the illicit production, manufacture or trade in opium or other dangerous drugs which they think likely to be useful to the League in the execution of its task.

5. The Assembly recommends the Council to consider whether all nations specially concerned in either the growth or manufacture of opium or other dangerous drugs should not be represented on its Advisory Committee.

6. The Assembly urges those States Members of the League[1] which have not yet signed and ratified the Opium Convention to do so as soon as possible.

7. In order to facilitate the execution of the Convention, the Assembly urges all States Members of the League which are parties to the Convention to signify to the Secretariat as soon as possible their acceptance of the fourth recommendation of the Advisory Committee relating to the requirement of importation certificates.

8. The Assembly recommends the Council to request the Advisory Committee to extend their investigations to include not only the drugs mentioned in the Convention of 1912, but also all dangerous drugs of whatever origin which produce similar effects, and to advise as to the desirability of convoking a further international conference of States which are parties to the Convention, as well as States Members of the League of Nations, with a view to drawing up a Convention for the suppression of the abuse of such drugs.

Having placed before you the various recommendations, I must make the following observations with regard to three of them:—

As regards the second recommendation, the Committee, after having heard the statements of the Delegate of China on the steps taken by the Government of China in respect of the cultivation of opium, is of opinion that, in accordance with paragraph 6 of the Resolution of the Council, the consideration of Recommendation No. 5 of the Advisory Committee may be postponed. The statements of the Delegate of China, of which the Committee takes note, are as follows :—

[1] The following Members of the League have not yet ratified the Opium Convention of 1912 nor signed the Protocol of 1914:—Albania, Argentine, Chile, Columbia, Costa Rica, Finland, Paraguay, Persia, Salvador, Switzerland.

The following have ratified the Convention, but not signed the Protocol of 1914:—Denmark, Venezuela.

"Between 25th June and 15th August last the Chinese Government appointed seven special High Commissioners to investigate the real situation in eight provinces and two special administrative districts where a recrudescence of poppy cultivation is reported to have been taking place. These Commissioners have started on their mission and some are already beginning their investigations. I believe the Chinese Government will be disposed to make available to the League of Nations the results of these investigations after they are laid before the Chinese Government."

As regards the third recommendation, the grounds for the alterations recommended by the Committee in paragraph 7 of the Council's resolution are to be found in the very special conditions obtaining in various countries, particularly in India. The Indian Delegate has informed the Committee that the number of properly equipped hospitals and dispensaries in India is inadequate to the needs of the population, which over vast areas is without medical assistance. In order to cope with the diseases with which some of these regions are constantly infected, the population has cultivated the opium poppy from time immemorial,* and habitually takes opium in small doses as a prophylactic or an effective remedy. It is this use of opium which cannot be styled purely medical, i.e., that which is prescribed by a physician, that the Committee has in mind in using the term "legitimate."

With regard to the subject of the eighth recommendation, it should be noted that it was at the suggestion of M. Hennessy (France) that the attention of the Fifth Committee was drawn to this subject. M. Hennessy emphasised the abuses due to the sale and consumption of drugs of mineral or chemical origin which are not covered by the terms of the Hague Convention of 1912, observing that the scourge which formerly ravaged the East had since the war become universal, that chemically manufactured drugs were hawked, sold at low prices and consumed in large quantities, and that in view of the fact that the legislation existing in the various countries was insufficient, it was imperative that a further international conference should meet.

I would also draw attention to the representations made by the Persian Delegate, Prince Arfa-ed-Dowleh, as to the desirability of the League of Nations undertaking propaganda work amongst Eastern populations addicted to opium by the distribution of pamphlets pointing out the dangers of consuming this drug.

The question of the control of the traffic in opium and other dangerous drugs is one of world-wide importance and well worthy of the deepest interest of the Assembly. The first step towards establishing the control with which the League is entrusted by the Treaties of Peace was taken by the Assembly last year, and a satisfactory beginning has already been made. No comprehensive survey of the actual position at the present time will be possible until the replies to the questionnaire which has been issued by the Secretariat have been received and analysed. The results of the questionnaire will be laid before the next Assembly. In the meantime, as will be seen from what has been said above, useful steps have already been taken on the advice of the Advisory Committee which will facilitate the execution of the Convention; and the further suggestions which the Fifth Committee has made in this report will, it is hoped, help to advance the matter still further.

Finally, it should be pointed out that the control of the traffic is attended with great difficulties. Attention was called to some of these difficulties in the case of Eastern countries by the delegate of Persia. It is only by an international body such as the League that these difficulties can be overcome; and for this the wholehearted continuous and efficient co-operation of all the Members will be needed. The Committee ventures to appeal to all Members of the League for such co-operation.

ANNEX 10.—Draft International Convention for the Suppression of the Traffic in Women and Children, as revised by the drafting Committee appointed by Committee No. V.

Albania, etc.

Being anxious to secure more completely the suppression of the Traffic in Women and Children described in the preambles to the Agreement of 18th May 1904, and to the Convention of 4th May 1910, under the name of "White Slave Traffic";

Having taken note of the Recommendations contained in the Final Act of the International Conference which was summoned by the Council of the League of Nations and met at Geneva from 30th June to 5th July 1921; and

Having decided to conclude a Convention supplementary to the Agreement and Convention mentnoned above:

It particular, they undertake to make such regulations as are required for the protection of women and children travelling on emigrant ships, not only at the points of departure and arrival, but also during the journey, and to arrange for the exhibition, in railway stations and in ports, of notices warning women and children of the danger of traffic, and indicating the places where they can obtain accommodation and assistance.

Article 8.—The present Convention of which the French and the English texts are both authentic, shall bear this day's date, and shall be open for signature until 31st March 1922.

Copies of such notification shall be transmitted forthwith by him to all other Parties, notifying them of the date on which it was received.

The denunciation shall take effect one year after the date on which it was notified to the Secretary-General, and shall operate only in respect of the notifying Power.

Article 13.—A special record shall be kept by the Secretary-General of the League of Nations, showing which of the Parties have signed, ratified, acceded to or denounced the present Convention. This record shall be open to the Members of the League of Nations at all times; it shall be published as often as possible, in accordance with the directions of the Council.

Article 14.—Any Member or State signing the present Convention may declare that the signature does not include any or all of its colonies, overseas possessions, protectorates or territories under its sovereignty or authority, and may subsequently adhere separately on behalf of any such colony, overseas possession, protectorate or territory so excluded in its declaration.

ANNEX 11.—Report presented to the Assembly by Committee No. VI, on Mandates.

Resolution adopted by Committee No. VI.

The Committee, having considered the letter of the 19th September, addressed to its Chairman by the Sub-Committee on Mandates, endorses the views expressed in that letter, and recommends the Assembly to make a communication to the Council in accordance with the suggestion of the Sub-Committee.

Letter from President of Sub-Committee "B" to President of Committee No. VI.

Geneva,
19th September 1921.

Sir,

The Sub-Committee has considered the Draft Resolution handed in at the Assembly by Lord Robert Cecil, in the following terms:—

"The Assembly regrets the delay which has taken place in the definition of the Mandates, recognises that the Council is not responsible for that delay, and is of opinion that it would be desirable that the Mandates of the 'A' and 'B' classes should be forthwith defined."

2. The Sub-Committee fully endorses the view expressed in the first part of Lord Robert Cecil's resolution. It, too, regrets the delay which has taken place in the definition of the "A" and "B" Mandates. At the same time it recognises that the fault cannot be said to lie with the Council.

3. The action of the Council in this matter is fully set out on pages 46—47 of its Report, which is before the Assembly (A. 9). In brief, being apprised of the objection of the United States to the definition of the Mandates without previous consultation with themselves, the Council determined to defer confirmation of the remaining Mandates until the Government of the United States had an opportunity of expressing their views. It is understood that negotiations between the principal Allied Powers and the United States are still proceeding, that a Memorandum from the United States was received by these Powers only a few days before the Assembly met and that its terms are now under examination. There would seem no option to the Council but to give time for the conclusion of these negotiations before confirming the remaining Mandates.

4. Nevertheless, the Sub-Committee realises that the delay in the issue of the remaining Mandates may cause anxiety and apprehension, anxiety because the trust conferred by Article 22 of the Covenant of the League of Nations on the Mandatories has not yet been fully defined; apprehension lest, in the absence of the completed Mandates, the sacred trust laid down by that Article may not in all respects be fulfilled.

5. The Sub-Committee has not felt it part of its duties to examine the draft Mandates "A" and "B," nor yet to consider the reports which the Mandatory Governments have in some cases, at any rate, submitted to their national Parliaments, and communicated to the Council for information, upon the administration of the mandated territories confided to their charge during their preliminary period. The world, however, will be able to draw its own conclusions from these documents, which are now public property, and from others which will shortly be available, and it is to be hoped that the anxiety and apprehension alluded to in the previous paragraph will be allayed by their perusal.

6. With regard to the "A" Mandates, the Sub-Committee feels that it would be in any case premature to press for immediate action by the Council. It takes note of the fact that the Treaty of Sèvres has not yet been ratified by the Powers. As to these Mandates, the Sub-Committee would only express its hope that, so long as the transitory conditions continue, the administration of the territories in question will still be carried out in the spirit of Article 22 of the Covenant.

The "B" Mandates, however, are in a different category, seeing that they are founded upon the Treaty of Versailles, which has been ratified. Moreover, drafts of all the "B" Mandates have been before the Council since the beginning of the present year. Even if these drafts are still subject to alteration in details, are not the principles enunciated such as could command the approbation of the Council? Finally, the French and British Governments were charged by the terms of the decision of the Supreme Allied Council of 7th May 1919 with the duty of coming to an agreement upon the future of Togo and the Cameroons, which they would recommend the League of Nations to adopt. This agreement has now been reached and it is desirable that the Council should, at the earliest possible opportunity—

(a) Formally approve the application of the Mandate system to Togoland and the Cameroons;

(b) In particular, adopt, in principle, the declarations signed by the representatives of the French and British Governments on 10th July 1919, as to the respective spheres which are to be placed under the authority of each Government.

7. Accordingly, the Sub-Committee suggests that much will be gained if the Council could be invited by the Assembly forthwith to address a despatch to the Powers entrusted with the administration of the territories referred to in Article 23, paragraph 5, of the Covenant, indicating that, whilst the Council has not felt able to proceed with the confirmation of the "B" Mandates pending the results of the negotiations now proceeding between the principal Allied Powers and the United States, and whilst examination of the details of these Mandates must necessarily be reserved in view of modifications which it may eventually be found suitable to make in the terms of these Mandates the Council is satisfied by its perusal of the drafts (if such should be the case) that generally speaking, the principles there laid down express the high objects which the Covenant has in view and lay down, in a spirit in harmony with that of the Covenant, safeguards for the rights of all Members of the League.

The Sub-Committee would further represent that the Council should now formally approve the application of the Mandates system to Togoland and the Cameroons, and, in particular, adopt in principle the declarations signed by the representatives of the French and British Governments on 10th July 1919, as to the respective spheres which are to be placed under the authority of each Government. Finally, it might be suggested that the Council should express its confidence that Mandatory Powers will continue to exercise the administration of the territories committed to their charge in the spirit of the draft Mandates until such time as the position shall have been definitely regularised.

8. The Sub-Committee feels convinced that this action by the Council, in particular such a communication from the Mandatory Powers, and such a measure of confirmation of the terms of the "B" Mandates, would not only be welcomed by the Mandatory Powers themselves, but would serve as a token to the world of the earnestness of the League in pressing for the speedy realisation of the aims of Article 22 of the Covenant.

APPENDIX IV.

Certain Speeches delivered by the Delegates of India at Plenary Meetings of the Assembly and Resolutions proposed by Sir William Meyer in Committee No. IV.

ANNEX 1.—Speech delivered by the Right Hon. V. S. Srinivasa Sastri, on the 12th September, in the Debate on the Work of the Council.

As you have been informed, I come from India, separated from you by many thousands of miles, but I trust you will recognise akin to you, alike in loyalty to the League, in the spirit of humanity, and in zeal for the welfare of our kind. Coming rather late in this debate, I have had the rare advantage of listening to many speeches in connection with our work. I have heard a note here and there of pessimism. I do not wonder. I have heard much criticism, valuable and wholesome to those who are engaged in high and serious tasks, but I am happy to think that the dominant note of all the speeches has been one of hope for the future enthusiasm for the ideals that underlie our work, and for the peace and goodwill amongst the nations of the world that we wish to see established on a firm and unalterable basis. I confess I have been moved to my inmost depths by what I have seen and heard. Hard and cold, indeed, must be the heart that fails to be touched, and touched to noble issues, by a spectacle such as this. The nations of the world foregather from the ends of four continents, representing many shades of colour, many varieties of political and social thought, and many states and grades of culture and advance in all directions—peoples small and great, weak and strong, but all alike weary of the mistaken past, eager for a better day for mankind, and resolved, with bruised and bleeding hearts, to stand by higher ideals for human kind.

And yet one has very often been hearing, during the last few days, of people standing outside the organisation, criticising our work as from a different planet, unconcerned spectators whose only duty is to find fault and fix blame on particular people. I confess I have no patience with that sort of critic. The friendly appraiser of good and evil, who is anxious for improvement, one has use for; one can listen to him with respect and with attention; but to those who will not take a share in the work we can only turn a deaf ear to their cold criticisms. When a man has told me: "The League has not done this," I am inclined to ask whether he is not to blame for it. When he has told me: "There are these tasks still unfinished," I am inclined to ask him: "Why do you not come in and lend a helping hand?" If he says "There is no room for me in the Assembly, which consists only of a certain number of people," my answer to him is that there is work inside the Assembly and there is work outside the Assembly. The work outside is not less important, not less necessary, but sometimes far more difficult, far more onerous and far more exhausting, I may say, than the work inside the Assembly. We want an army of workers in every country to educate the hearts of the people, to make them realise the high aims and tasks of this League of Nations, and, in fact, to be propagandists, in season and out of season, amidst discouragement and cynicism and difficulties of every sort. We can spare many critics of the kind that I have alluded to, and wish for helpers, in this spirit.

We have been bidden to cast our glance down the list of contents to be able to appreciate the magnitude and variety, the delicacy and the difficulty, of the tasks undertaken by the League. That represents, no doubt, a great part of the truth. But I would ask people not merely to be content to look at the table of contents, but to turn also to the inside pages of the Report that has been presented to us. There we shall see accounts of great work undertaken and great work accomplished. It may be that the Report is not presented in an attractive and literary form, but we can read between the lines. We can read the anxiety, we can read the industry, we can read the plans carefully made and vigorously executed for the accomplishment of the record that is down therein. If the League has so far been rather cautious in undertaking work, I ask: Is that necessarily a defect? We all know how long great institutions take to strike root, and as we know that this League is breaking entirely new ground, we should wait in patience for great results, should we not? Do we not know that those who snatch before the time often fail of their grasp and come to grief? Should we rather that the League undertook impossible tasks, came into collision with the Great Powers, and tried to upset and go against human nature, and thus dash all our hopes of the future? Should we not rather praise the League for the cautious steps it takes, so that the first tasks that it undertakes it may carry on to a successful and triumphant conclusion, that it may thereby be enabled in the face of the world to undertake the greater tasks that lie ahead.

I believe in the wisdom of the old proverb that you ought not to bite off more than you can chew. That the League has limited its scope and its activity I regard rather as a merit and proof of wisdom than as an occasion for adverse criticism. Should we not wish for more? Take, for instance, this war between Greece and Turkey. We all wish that it were in the power of the League to have prevented this in the beginning, or to terminate it to-day.

It seems almost as though the nations of Europe had made up their minds that, when human passions are at their worst, instead of allaying and diverting them, the right and proper thing was to let them work themselves out in their malignant fury and virulence.

Take, again, the question of Upper Silesia. What better testimony to the promise that the League has so far held out than that the Supreme Council should, in their perplexity, have yielded up this question of great moment to the solution of this great organisation? It is a great test and a great opportunity for the League of Nations to establish itself in the heart, not only of Europe, but of the civilised world. I know that it is the Council, and not the Assembly, which is charged with the great task of settling this problem. Nevertheless, the Assembly has a mighty rôle to perform in this matter. Whether in this matter of Upper Silesia, or any other great tasks between Powers, the Council has a very delicate and a very onerous responsibility resting on its shoulders. It may do its work with the utmost impartiality, with the most conspicuous ability, with the most unwearied industry; nevertheless, for the results of its work to be acceptable, for its judgments to be taken by the Great Powers concerned; it is necessary that the sympathy and support of the Assembly should be constantly in attendance on the work of the Council at every stage. The Assembly cannot afford to efface itself in this matter. We, representing the different peoples of the world, are in a measure custodians of the peace of the world. We, I dare to say it, are the authentic voice by means of which the conscience of the world will speak. Our duty lies here, to try and understand, to wait in patience till the Council is able to take us into its confidence, and then, with due discrimination and with a sense of responsibility, to stand behind the Council and lend them our hearty support. The Council will find it necessary, therefore, from time to time to be in living touch with opinion in the Assembly, with the wishes and feelings of the Members represented here, and likewise, also, at every stage to publish such records as may be safely published, so that they may have behind them, as I said, always the moral support of the Assembly. I do not say that the Council are going to fail in giving this due publicity, but I think it is necessary, from every point of view, to add our voice to the great demand that has been made on them so far by demanding that this publicity should never at any moment be neglected.

It is just possible that in the greatness of their task the Council may feel deterred by undue public criticism. It is just possible—who knows? We are dealing with human nature—it is just possible that they may sometimes like to wrap themselves up in oligarchic mystery. It is necessary, therefore, for the Members of this Assembly to assure them that, if they treat us in the proper spirit, their goodwill and confidence will be reciprocated in abundant measure, and rewarded a thousand-fold. We, for our part, have often been criticised as representatives of the little Powers, more or less, like units in a democratic Assembly, to be treated with consideration, but never to be fully trusted, and oftentimes to be set aside as noisy brawlers.

Brother and Sister Delegates, criticism of this sort is bound to come. We know there are always plenty of people who rail at democracy, democracy whether amongst individuals or amongst the nations of the world. We have, therefore, to remember that, in the face of hostile opinion, we have got to establish ourselves as people who will do their great duty without fear or favour. Some of us may be small, and may be threatened by the larger Powers around us; others amongst us may be in search of commercial and trading facilities, and may find it necessary therefore, if they are prudent, to accommodate ourselves to the selfish plans of other people. I think that our supreme duty lies in believing, as has been pointed out by the Delegates from Belgium and Persia, that we not here to further the interests of the countries which we may happen immediately to represent, but we must constantly bear in mind that we are, each and every one of us, bound to act in the interests of all the others; that we are cosmopolitan really, that we are citizens of the world, and not merely of the limited countries which we happen for the moment to represent. We must resolutely refuse to be bought by any bribe, whether of political privilege or of trade facilities. We must not be daunted by fears of aggression by powerful neighbours, and we must, without haste and without rest, proceed, in the daily work here, to speak and to vote in obedience solely to our conscience and our sense of duty.

Now, from the particular view of India, I have a few observations to make to which I solicit your kind and indulgent attention. One word in the beginning I must say about disarmament. On this subject we have heard weighty opinions. Mr. Balfour, in particular, in a cautious and impressive speech, marked by that fine poise and balance for which he is famous amongst the philosophers and statesmen of the world, has told us to be patient a little, and not to expect considerable results in this direction. He has reminded us that, although the war has harrowed and chastened our feelings in a very considerable measure, the character of humanity is not yet radically altered. In his own words, we do not yet constitute a peaceable world. That was quite true, when one comes to think of it, but how I wish—how, I take it, you all wish—that, for once, Mr. Balfour was in the wrong, and it was possible to promise ourselves in the immediate future a large measure of general disarmament amongst the Powers of the world. India, distracted and suffering under anxieties of a particular kind, with resources of a very limited character, largely undeveloped, would welcome disarmament, because you may remember that, although the quarrel was not ours, we willingly and gladly came into the war with our own little bit.

But, even assuming that general disarmament on a considerable scale was undertaken, it is very doubtful how far India will come in for a great share of it, for her troubles, unfortunately, come from Afghanistan and from Russia, and to some extent from Turkey also, all three of them Powers which to-day stand outside the League, but which, we hope, on some near date, will come within our League and partake of its spirit of conciliation and pacification. The attitude of India towards this League is well illustrated by the measures that our Government have so far taken to carry out the resolutions and proceedings of the Washington Conference on Labour. That great Conference was attended by the usual quota of Indian representatives. As soon as they came back they reported to us, and the result is that, almost alone amongst the Great Powers, India has not only ratified the Convention which she was bound to ratify, but she has also put on her Statute Book a law dealing with the various aspects of the labour problem dealt with at that Conference. And we have another measure, now in contemplation, and we shall proceed with the task and complete it before our next session is over.

I wish it were possible to claim for many other nations that they have also ratified and undertaken legislation in pursuance of the resolutions of the Washington Labour Conference. Nevertheless, when it comes to giving us some representation on the Bureau of the International Labour Conference, we are told that we are not amongst the great industrial Powers of the world, and we are put aside. I hope that, when the next occasion comes round for considering this matter, the claims of India as a great industrial Power, determined to be loyal to the resolutions of the Labour Conference, will be treated with greater consideration.

Then, I have two grievances to bring before you. Without grievances we cannot live, as most of you know. One of these grievances is easily remediable. The other grievance I will not say is irremediable, but it is less susceptible of a remedy.

The first grievance relates to our representation in the Secretariat of the League. I will not go into figures. I am anxious to keep on the right side with the Secretariat, and I will not antagonise them by going into any vast array of figures. But I wish to say one thing. When we are taxed for the expenses of the League, we are ranked very high indeed. We come in the first or the second class. Last time we paid about 4·8 per cent. of the expenses, and, under the new scheme, we are told we must go up to about 6 per cent. or a little over. I will mention only one or two things in this connection. Of about 351 Members of the Establishment, 138 are British, 73 are French, 16 are Swiss, and the Americans, who are not yet Members of the League—I do not grudge their share—come in for 13. Where does India stand? She has one solitary representative. I do not ask for an increase in our representation as any reward for our virtue; but I offer this suggestion to the League with every confidence: that our men, taken from the disciplined ranks of our public services, will be found not inferior to any in the world with whom they may be brought into competition, either for efficiency or for industry, or for devotion to their work, and, as a highly evolved system of administration, which has justly received the encomiums of competent critics throughout the world, I can assure the Secretariat that they will receive much valuable assistance from the Members of our Services, if only they will be good enough to take them in.

Now, for the grievance which is somewhat less remediable, and I would ask the Assembly to listen to me with some indulgence, for this is a somewhat delicate question. I refer to Mandates. Lord Robert Cecil, whose services to the League, whose zeal for her cause, and attachment to her ideals are beyond praise, has already tabled a resolution on this subject, and the President has admonished us that it would be wise to defer detailed criticism on this question until the Committee to which it is entrusted has reported on the subject. Now, I abide by that ruling; but my question is concerned not with the "A" and "B" Mandates with which that Committee is concerned, but with the "C" Mandates, which the Assembly, I understand, accepted last year and passed for operation. The "C" Mandates are entrusted to certain Powers whose territories lie near the mandated areas. I will read from the Article the part which deals with the point that I wish to bring before you. It says that the Mandatories ought to administer the Mandated Territories under their own laws as integral portions of their territories—"under their own laws."

Brother and sister delegates, some of these Powers that have received the "C" Mandate have laws and regulations, and habits of administration derived from those laws and regulations, which, in effect, introduce a colour bar, make invidious distinctions between white and coloured races, and in general do not hesitate to subject coloured populations within their areas to certain hardships and, I am sorry to add, even indignities. It will be in their power to apply such laws and regulations and habits of administration, under the Mandates, to those areas.

Let us remember, in the first place, that in those areas (I am referring in particular to German West Africa) the Germans did not make a colour bar or introduce these invidious distinctions; and, furthermore, these Powers receive Mandates and execute them on behalf of the League. To use language used in another part of the Covenant, they are to regard the liberties of their subjects as a sacred trust of civilisation. Nothing has, so far, been done to occasion any complaint on my part. I am anxious, however, to take time by the forelock, and to request these Mandatory Powers to use their wide powers with discretion, and with a due regard to the sacred character of the trust that they have undertaken. In other words, to behave worthily of the great and noble objects of the League of Nations, and not merely to be content to act in conformity with their own imperial ideas. I appeal, in particular, to my friends, Lord Robert Cecil and his worthy and distinguished colleagues in the representation of South Africa in this League, so to use their undoubted moral authority and influence that neither I nor my successor in the representation of India, nor Japan, the permanently represented Power in the Council, which has also had occasion to protest against the terms of this Mandate, will find it necessary to come on this platform and tell the Assembly that we are worse off under the trustees of the League than we were under the Germans. Either rectify matters, or put us back where we were. It would be a matter of the profoundest regret for any of us to come and speak in that fashion in the Assembly. I have no doubt that it would cause you great pain and grief to hear such a thing. I venture to think that it will also be to the Council, who have issued these Mandates, a matter of great uneasiness and searching of heart.

ANNEX 2.—Action by Sir William Meyer on the Subject of the Organisation of the Secretariat.

A.—RESOLUTION PROPOSED IN COMMITTEE IV.

"That the national composition of the Secretariat of the League and the International Labour Bureau, as set forth in the appended statements which are compiled from statistics supplied by these two offices, is eminently unsatisfactory, some States having a representation out of all proportion to their population or their contributions to the League, while others are most inadequately represented, or not represented at all.

"To remedy this state of things, it should be laid down that hereafter no country shall have a higher percentage of the staff of the Secretariat or of the International Labour Bureau than would amount to double the percentage it subscribes to the League expenses, and that where this proportion is now materially exceeded, no further recruitment shall be made from the countries in question.

"Also, that where the excess staff consists in some degree of people under purely temporary engagements, steps should be taken as soon as possible to terminate these engagements in favour of nationals of other States who have not obtained their proper representation in the offices in question."

B.—SPEECH DELIVERED BY SIR WILLIAM MEYER IN THE ASSEMBLY ON THE 1ST OCTOBER.

We have had a very full and interesting Report before us, explained in his own delightful way by my colleague, M. Georges Noblemaire. His speech has been a real intellectual treat, but we have not yet before us any Resolution on the subject, and I have come forward to fill the gap and propose one. The Resolution I have the honour of laying before you is this:—

"The Assembly, having taken note of the Report of No. 4 Committee, approves the views there set forth, and expresses its gratitude to M. Noblemaire and his colleagues of the Expert Committee for their arduous and most useful labours."

I present this Resolution with the greater pleasure in that during the very long discussion we had on M. Noblemaire's report in Committee No. 4—for I can assure you we took nothing for granted, but discussed it paragraph by paragraph and almost line by line—that in those discussions it fell to me, as an arduous and persistent advocate of economy, occasionally to suggest that M. Noblemaire's proposals had not gone far enough. On one occasion, I remember, when I was discussing the inadequate representation of India in the Secretariat, M. Noblemaire replied that India had a very large share of the critical faculty. But these are differences in points of detail, differences on which various people may legitimately hold various views: they do not in the least affect my admiration, which I am sure is shared by all of you, for the very arduous labours, the results of which have been put before you to-day. M. Noblemaire has been far too modest to speak in detail of all the preliminary work which he and his Committee of Experts had to go through, but I can assure you it was a very great burden, and I am sure their labours will bear great fruit, and that next year, and still more in the years afterwards, we shall find a very great improvement, both in our methods of work and in the cost.

I also hope that as years go by there will be real recognition of that recommendation which M. Noblemaire put before you, that in filling up the Secretariat appointments (and of course those in the Labour Bureau also) regard should be shown to the desirability, I might almost say the equitable necessity, of giving full consideration to the claims of diverse nationalities.

I have spoken about the Secretariat, and I would like to say (though, again, I was a critic every now and then) that we in Committee No. 4 were much indebted to the Secretariat for their ready assistance, and I would also add individually to the tribute which M. Noblemaire has paid to the work of M. Thomas, the illustrious apostle of Labour. M. Thomas came before the Committee, and on any occasion when the temperature happened to be cold, he at once raised it by the warmth and fervour of his speeches. He in some cases convinced us of the soundness of his views; in others we were perhaps more doubtful, but we were all impressed by his great ability and ardent zeal.

Ladies and Gentlemen, I will not detain you longer, but will move my Resolution, which to make it quite clear, I will read out again :—

"The Assembly, having taken note of the Report of No. 4 Committee, approves the views there set forth, and expresses its gratitude to M. Noblemaire and his colleagues of the Expert Committee for their arduous and most useful labours."

ANNEX 3.—Memorandum by Sir William Meyer, with Resolutions moved in Committee No. IV, on the subject of the Allocation of the Expenses of the League.

MEMORANDUM.

The Reveillaud Committee's scheme is faulty in the following respects :—

(a) It brings into account population as a separate factor, although a State whose population is poor but large gets population taken into account in the consideration of its revenues.

(b) The population and revenue figures of the colonial possessions of Great Britain, France, Belgium, and Holland have not been taken into account, and yet these obtained the benefit of the League's peace, and so on.

(c) The factor of "capacity to pay" is a most difficult one to arrive at. In every country there are disputes as to the capacity to pay between various categories of taxpayers, and this is not a question which can be solved by the consideration of revenue figures going back to the year 1913, when, moreover, the limits of certain States were materially different from what they are now.

(d) As regards Federal States, the revenues of the Central Government have only, as a rule, been taken into account, which is obviously not fair to unitary States. India is specially interested in this matter seeing that her finances are now on a federal system (they were not in 1913), the revenues of the Central and Provincial Governments being now quite distinct.

If the Provincial revenues of India are taken into consideration, so should those of the Provinces or States of other Federal countries.

(e) States cannot be simply assessed on their revenue capacity, and allowance must be made for the benefits all derive from the League. The Special Committee profess to have weighted the figures resulting from revenue and population tests with this object, but this has been done arbitrarily and inadequately, seeing that some of the States will only pay about $\frac{1}{100}$th part of the total League Budget and the next lowest class about ½ per cent.

(f) Nor again has account been taken of the special benefits derived by States permanently represented on the Council of the League and those, for the time being, represented on the Governing Body of the International Labour Organisation. India, on the other hand, gets very small benefit from the League.

(g) Taking as a round figure for purposes of illustration a total Budget of 25,000,000 gold francs, India would, under the present Postal Union scheme, pay 1,225,000 gold francs; under the intermediate scheme suggested in the Reveillaud Committee's Report she would pay about the same, viz., 1,256,000 gold francs; but under the final scheme she would pay about 1,655,000 gold francs.

India would have no objection to a material increase in her subscription if it were arrived at on a scientific basis, but the final scheme of the Reveillaud Committee does not afford any such criterion, and consequently my Government is entirely opposed to the final scheme, but would, for the present, fall in with the intermediate scheme.

RESOLUTION I.

While paying due homage to the zealous efforts of the Special Committee, Committee IV cannot accept their final scheme as an equitable and scientific adjustment of future contributions to the League's expenses. It contains many defects by reason of the at present inevitable use of out-of-date statistics and otherwise, and as a purely provisional allocation, the intermediate scheme suggested by the Special Committee itself at the close of the Report appears to be more suitable. It is, therefore, desirable in the interests of unanimity, that this intermediate scheme should be accepted for the present, with effect from 1921, and that its replacement by really scientific methods of adjustment should be deferred till better indices as to capacity to pay, etc., are available.

RESOLUTION II.

In the event of Committee IV deciding to adopt, by a majority, the Special Committee's final scheme, the delegate for India will move the following amendments :—

(1) That greater stress be laid on the factor that abstract relative capacity to pay should be modified with reference to the benefits accruing to all Members of the League and to certain States in particular. Consequently :—

(a) All States represented as of right on the Council of the League should be placed in Class I, as was proposed at Brussels.

(b) All States which have been admitted to the Governing Body of the International Labour Organisation in the capacity of great industrial Powers should, if not already in Class I or Class II, be placed in Class II.

(c) The subscriptions in the lower categories of the scheme should be raised, so that States in Class VII shall be assessed to contributions at not less than 3 units, States in Class VI at not less than 6 units, and States in Class V at not less than 12 units.

GENERAL RESOLUTION.

The Committee pays homage to the work done, under most difficult circumstances, by the Committee of Experts.

Considering, however, that their labours were based on ancient statistics, and time did not permit them to give full examination to factors which are essential in evolving any definite allocation among the States of the League, e.g., the financial position of Federal Governments, the colonies of certain Powers, the special benefits that particular States may derive from the League, and so on :

Considering also the absolute necessity for States, which are asked to pay more than at present, being able to recognise the justice of this demand :

Committee IV proposes that the Special Committee of Experts should resume its labours, and should study the problem before it with reference to more recent statistics, and to other requisite factors.

It is hoped that in this way the Special Committee will be able to arrive at a scheme which will evoke general acquiescence, and which could hold the field for a period of, say, five years.

This course is facilitated by the fact that no change in the existing allocation, which is based on the Universal Postal Union, can be carried out without amendment of the Covenant, and that such amendment must necessarily take time.

Meanwhile, it is proposed that allocations shall continue to be on the existing basis, which is sanctified by the Covenant as it stands, and has received the adhesion of all the States Members of the League.

ANNEX 4.—Speech delivered by Sir William Meyer in the Assembly on the 3rd October, on the subject of the Financial Administration of the League.

I desire to pay the warmest tribute in my power to my friend M. van Eysinga for the very clear and lucid report which he has submitted to us. It was not at all an easy matter. As he has indicated, our discussions in Committee No. IV were lengthy and ranged over many topics. They were a bit confused, because every now and then our thoughts were switched off some matter to which we were devoting attention by an urgent call to vote funds for something which the Assembly had passed that morning. We also on occasion—very rarely, I must say—exercised the privilege of changing our own minds. I was filled with admiration that out of this chaotic mass, so to speak, of decisions which we had come to, and resulting figures, M. van Eysinga has been able to produce the very clear succinct account which we have before us in the shape of his report.

I also warmly associate myself with his tribute to Sir Herbert Ames, who must have felt, sitting on our Committee, rather a weariness of the flesh, but who nobly dissembled his feelings; he was always ready to give us the information that we wanted, sometimes more than we wanted, and his accounts were presented in a very clear form. In fact, looking back, the only thing that I had not noticed on the very full statement of establishments which he presented to us was the Secretariat watch-dog! I understand that that estimable but somewhat soporific animal is on the establishment of the League and gets an allowance of 30 francs a month in consideration of the high cost of living in Geneva.

M. Thomas was very helpful to us. Last year in No. 4 Committee we were quite infants, so to speak, and I think M. Thomas considered that too much knowledge might not be good for us, so he only gave us globular estimates. We have got older and wiser this year, and M. Thomas has met all our desires for information and submitted very clear and lucid accounts.

I should also like to say that Committee No. 4 might have been sitting yet, and possibly a bit longer, if it had not been for the very excellent way in which our Chairman, M. Edwards, controlled us. He was an admirable Chairman, full of knowledge and impartiality, but also most anxious to get along, even at the cost of late night sittings.

If my friend, M. Edwards, should ever be out of a job I would recommend him to seek employment under Lord Northcliffe as a champion hustler. We had very long discussions on these estimates, as M. van Eysinga has told you, and we have been able to make considerable economies. Last year's budget amounted to 21,250,000 gold francs; that for this year, including the eleventh-hour estimate for Albania, amounts to 20,859,000 gold francs, after providing for supplementary estimates. But I want you to bear in mind that a large part of this economy is not of a permanent character. That is brought out on page 6 of the Report, where it is stated that it has been possible to deduct from the Budget of the International Labour Office an item amounting to 1,364,039 gold francs, representing the savings obtained or expected by the Labour Office up to the end of 1921. It was quite right under present circumstances to take that amount as an abatement, but it is obviously a windfall which cannot recur, whereas most of our charges will do so. Without that windfall our Budget for 1922 would have been a little more than for 1921 instead of less.

India was much to the fore in criticisms of the Budget last year, both in the Fourth Committee and in the Assembly, and I think we may say that those criticisms have resulted in a material improvement. I would specially note the fact that the outside Committee of Control which we suggested last year, but at that time fruitlessly, has now come to birth, and is going, I believe, to produce most excellent results. Remember that the sun rises in the east, and the light only comes to the west a little later. I and some others would have preferred economies this year which go beyond those that have been adopted, but I am not going to condemn the Budget because the proposals for these economies have not found acceptance. I do hope, however, that what may be deemed our folly to-day will be accepted as the wisdom of to-morrow. I entirely associate myself with what has been said in the report and by M. van Eysinga concerning the difficulties we have had with regard to fresh claims which constantly make their appearance, some of which have been passed by the Assembly on the independent report of other Committees. I am very glad that the Fourth Committee agreed unanimously to recommend the procedure that is set forth in the report, and its adoption, I am sure, will materially facilitate the regular control, and, I may add, lighten the burdens of the Secretariat. Take, as an instance, the matter of which M. van Eysinga has spoken and which was brought to our notice this morning—that of the estimate for the Albanian Enquiry. M. van Eysinga has spoken of it in a very restrained manner, considering the trouble it has caused After all the Budget figures were tabulated and printed, we had a resolution proposed by Lord Robert Cecil—ex Africa semper aliquid novi—involving an addition of 100,000 francs in respect of this Committee of Enquiry in Albania. I should like in passing to pay a tribute to the universal genius of the noble Lord who represents South Africa. He is a citizen of the world, and although his country is far distant, he takes the most acute interest in the affairs of Europe and the Far East, including such lands as Albania and Armenia, and Lithuania and Russia; he busies himself in the prevention of poison gas, blockade, and other matters of international concern; but I do most respectfully wish to say, while paying homage to these manifold activities, that one can generally predict of them that in one way or another they will mean an increase in expenditure. On the other hand, in the Second Committee, I found that the senior representative of South Africa there was quite an austere economist on occasion and most laudably anxious that the League in general, and his country in particular, should not have its expenditure increased. I entirely agree with M. van Eysinga as to the absolute necessity for economies, especially in the matters connected with our technical organisations. It is an ungrateful task, as I said in the Fourth Committee, to take this line, but, after all, it is in the best interests of the League. We have to remember two great points. One of these is, as my friend M. Hanotaux told us in the Second Committee, that we must take very great care in respect to these international organisations not to foster the idea that the League aspires to be a super-State, and to meddle with the interior affairs of other countries. The other is that additions to the Budget are very closely scrutinised when the time comes to pay for them by the Parliaments of the world, and especially by these very distant lands, who—I exclude South Africa, of course—take perhaps a very moderate interest in the affairs of the League and are not conscious of deriving any great benefit from its activities. It is most essential that we should not give a handle to those who attack the League on the ground of increasing extravagances, that we should be free from this reproach and should show them that we are thoroughly desirous of keeping down expenses as far as may be, and that we are going to try and combine economy with efficiency. I will not take up your time longer. Last year I had to be a severe critic; this year, speaking on behalf of India, I give a hearty welcome to the Budget as presented, and to the reforms that have been effected, and express the confidence that these reforms will, as time goes on, be extended still further.

It failed however to advance across northern India. The second depression entered northwest India on the 13th, and gave on the 14th widespread rain and snow in the North-West Frontier Province, Kashmir and the Punjab hills, with local falls in north Baluchistan and the Kumaon hills, and a few falls in the north Punjab plains. It is much more marked than its predecessor and rainfall is likely to extend today in the plains of the Punjab and of the west United Provinces. Outside northwest India the only regions where rain fell during the past week were Tenasserim, the Bay Islands and south Madras; fairly widespread rain fell in south Madras between the 12th and 14th.

Assam.—The weather is seasonable. Plucking of cotton has been nearly finished. Harvesting of pulses and mustard, pressing of sugarcane, transplanting of spring rice, ploughing for jute and for autumn and winter rice and preparation of land for jhumming continue. The outturn of cotton is below normal and the outturn and prospects of other crops are fair. Cattle disease is reported from two districts. The price of common rice is practically stationary.

Bengal.—Scattered showers fell in many parts of the Province. More rain is needed for the growth of standing crops and for the preparation of lands for jute and other autumn crops. Harvesting of oilseeds, potatoes and pulses continues. The average price of common rice has fallen by 0·2 per cent.

Bihar and Orissa.—Light rain fell in most districts of Bihar but no rain was received in Orissa and Chota Nagpur except in parts of Ranchi. Pressing of sugarcane and threshing of paddy continue. Standing crops are doing well. The price of common rice has risen in six districts, fallen in one and remained stationary in the remainder. The average price of local common rice at headquarters (excluding Angul) was 7·27 seers against 7·41 seers in the preceding week and that of maize was 10·05 seers against 10·07 seers in the preceding week. The condition and prospects of wheat and other spring crops are generally normal to above normal. Sowings of extra spring crops are in progress. Cattle are healthy. Green fodder is sufficient. Water for drinking and irrigation purposes is sufficient. Stocks of food grains are generally insufficient. Prices are generally stationary and above scarcity rates. Distress is now showing signs in Loralai where people have come in asking for relief. 204 persons were employed on relief works in the Chagai district. Elsewhere relief works were stopped partly for want of funds and partly owing to severe winter. Atta is still being issued from the cheap atta shop at Chaman. The condition of live stock is good. Fodder is sufficient except in Chaman and Pishin.

No Government servant may accept an honorarium or fee without such sanction.

Amount. 10. The amount of an honorarium or fee must be fixed with due regard to the value of the service in return for which it is given.

Conditions of sanction. 11. When the service rendered falls within the scope of the ordinary duties of the Government servant performing it, the test of exceptional merit prescribed in fundamental rule 46 must be very strictly applied.

12. Sanction must not be given to the acceptance of an honorarium or fee from a source other than general revenues unless the work for which it is offered has been undertaken with the knowledge and sanction of a competent authority, who must certify that its performance will involve no detriment to the official duties of the Government servant performing it.

13. DIVISION VI.

Travelling allowances.

(Rules made by the Governor-General in Council under fundamental rule 44.)

CHAPTER I.—GRADES OF GOVERNMENT SERVANTS.

Section I.—Distribution into grades.

17. For the purpose of calculating travelling allowance, Government servants are divided into four grades, as follows :— General rule.

(a) The first grade includes all Government servants in receipt of pay exceeding Rs. 500.

(b) The second grade includes all Government servants in receipt of pay exceeding Rs. 100 but not exceeding Rs. 500.

(c) The third grade includes all Government servants in superior service, except police constables and forest guards, in receipt of pay not exceeding Rs. 100.

(d) The fourth grade includes police constables, forest guards and all Government servants in inferior service.

NOTE.—Any individual Government servant who held, prior to the introduction of these rules, a post on progressive pay and was included, in view of the maximum pay of such post, in a grade higher than that to which he is entitled under this rule, shall not be reduced in grade unless he is reduced or reverted to a lower post.

18. A competent authority may, for special reasons which should be recorded, order that any Government servant or class of Government servants shall be included in a grade higher or lower than that prescribed in rule 17. Special concessions.

19. A Government servant in transit from one post to another ranks in the grade to which the lower of the two posts would entitle him. Government servants in transit from one post to another.

Part-time Government servants, etc. 20. A Government servant whose whole time is not retained for the public service, or who is remunerated wholly or partly by fees, ranks in such grade as a competent authority may, with due regard to the Government servant's status, declare.

CHAPTER II.—THE DIFFERENT KINDS OF TRAVELLING ALLOWANCE.

Section II.—General.

General rule. 21. The following are the different kinds of travelling allowances which may be drawn in different circumstances by Government servants :—

(a) Permanent travelling allowance.

(b) Conveyance or horse allowance.

(c) Mileage allowance.

(e) The actual cost of travelling.

The rules in this chapter explain the nature of these allowances and the method of calculating them. The circumstances in which they may be drawn for particular journeys are described in Chapters III to V.

Section III.—Permanent travelling allowance.

Conditions of grant. 22. A permanent monthly travelling allowance may be granted by a competent authority to any Government servant whose duties require him to travel extensively. Such an allowance is granted in lieu of all other forms of travelling allowance for journeys within the Government servant's sphere of duty and is drawn all the year round, whether the Government servant is absent from his headquarters or not.

When inadmissible. 23. A permanent travelling allowance cannot be drawn during joining time or, unless in any case it be otherwise expressly provided in these rules, during any period for which travelling allowance of any other kind is drawn. Its drawal during leave is governed by rule 6.

Combination of posts. 24. When a Government servant holds, either substantively or in an officiating capacity, two or more posts to each of which a permanent travelling allowance is attached, he may be granted such permanent travelling allowance, not exceeding the total of all the allowances, as a competent authority may consider to be necessary in order to cover the travelling expenses which he has to incur.

Section IV.—Conveyance and horse allowance.

Conditions of grant. 25. A competent authority may grant, on such conditions as it thinks fit to impose, a monthly conveyance or horse allowance to any Government servant who is required to travel extensively at or within a short distance from his headquarters under conditions which do not render him eligible for daily allowance.

When drawn. 26. Except as otherwise provided in these rules and unless the authority sanctioning it otherwise direct, a conveyance or horse allowance is drawn all the year round, is not forfeited during absence from headquarters and may be drawn in addition to any other travelling allowance admissible under these rules; provided that a Government servant, who is in receipt of a conveyance allowance specifically granted for the up-keep of a motor-car or motor-cycle, shall not draw mileage or daily allowance for a journey by the motor-car or motor-cycle except on such conditions as the authority which sanctions the conveyance allowance may prescribe.

During leave and joining time. 27. A conveyance or horse allowance may not be drawn during joining time. Its drawal during leave is governed by rule 6.

Railway subordinates. 28. An Agent of a State Railway may grant a conveyance or horse allowance to a subordinate on an open line of railway in cases where the use of a trolly is, in his opinion, a source of danger or inconvenience, whether with reference to the physical features of the line or to the passage of public trains. The allowance, which should not exceed Rs. 50 for a Government servant who ranks with upper subordinates and Rs. 30 for a Government servant who ranks with lower subordinates, should be given on condition that the Government servant shall on no account be allowed the use of a trolly on the length of railway in question and shall draw no other travelling allowance while in receipt of the conveyance or horse allowance.

Section V.—Mileage allowance.

Sub-section (i)—General.

Definition. 29. A mileage allowance is an allowance calculated on the distance travelled which is given to meet the cost of a particular journey.

Principles of calculation.

30. (a) For the purpose of calculating mileage allowance, a journey between two places is held to have been performed by the shortest of two or more practicable routes or by the cheapest of such routes as may be equally short; provided that, when there are alternative railway routes and the difference between them in point of time and cost is not great, mileage allowance should be calculated on the route actually used.

(b) The shortest route is that by which the traveller can most speedily reach his destination by the ordinary modes of travelling. In case of doubt, a competent authority may decide which shall be regarded as the shortest of two or more routes.

(c) If a Government servant travels by a route which is not the shortest but is cheaper than the shortest, his mileage allowance should be calculated on the route actually used.

Special concessions.

31. A competent authority may, for special reasons which should be recorded, permit mileage allowance to be calculated on a route other than the shortest or cheapest, provided that the journey is actually performed by such route.

Point of commencement and end of journey.

32. The point in any station at which a journey is held to commence or end is the chief public office or such other point as may be fixed for the purpose by a competent authority.

Different rates for different classes of journey.

33. Mileage allowance is differently calculated, as shown in the following rules, according as the journey is, or could be, made by railway, by sea or river steamer or by road.

Sub-section (ii)—Mileage allowances for journeys by railway.

Classes of accommodation for which Government servants are considered to be eligible.

34. For the purpose of calculating mileage allowance, Government servants when travelling by railway are considered to be entitled to class accommodation according to the following scale:—

(a) A Government servant of the first grade.—Accommodation of the highest class, by whatever name it may be called, provided on the railway by which he travels.

(b) A Government servant of the second grade.—Second or, if the line by which he travels provides no second class accommodation on any train, highest class.

(c) A Government servant of the third grade.—

(i) If travelling on the Darjeeling-Himalayan Railway except the Siliguri-Kissenganj extension; third class.

(ii) If travelling on any other railway which provides no intermediate class accommodation on any of the trains which stop at the stations to and from which he is travelling, including the Siliguri-Kissenganj extension:—

(1) where there are two classes only, lower class, and

(2) where there are three classes, second class, if his pay is not less than Rs. 50 and third class if it is less than Rs. 50.

(iii) If travelling on any railway which provides intermediate class accommodation on trains which stop at the stations to and from which he is travelling: intermediate class.

(d) A Government servant of the fourth grade.—The lowest class, whether it be called lower, third or fourth.

Special concessions.

35. A competent authority may, for special reasons which should be recorded, declare any particular Government servant or class of Government servants to be entitled to accommodation of a higher class than that prescribed for his grade in clause (b), (c) or (d) of rule 34.

Rate of mileage allowance.

36. The mileage allowance admissible to a Government servant of the first, second or third grade is double the fare of the class in which he is entitled to accommodation. The mileage allowance admissible to a Government servant of the fourth grade is the fare of the lowest class.

Where the class to which the Government servant is entitled is not provided on the train.

37. If a Government servant of the second or third grade actually travels by a train which does not provide the class of accommodation to which he is entitled under rule 34, he may be allowed to draw the mileage allowance of the next higher class, provided that the controlling officer attaches to his travelling allowance bill a certificate that it was necessary in the public interest that he should travel by that train. This concession does not apply to a Government servant of the third grade whose pay is less than Rs. 50 and who travels on a line which provides intermediate class accommodation on one or more of its trains but not on the particular train on which he travels, if there be third class accommodation on that train. Such a Government servant is restricted to mileage allowance calculated for intermediate class accommodation.

Through booking.

38. When through booking involves the payment, for part of a journey, of rates for accommodation of a class higher than that to which the Government servant concerned is entitled, the Government servant may draw mileage allowance based on the higher rates for that part of the journey.

Special rates.

39. A special rate of mileage allowance is fixed by rule 84 for certain Government servants of the State Railway and Telegraph Departments when travelling on an unopened line of railway by trolly, material train or engine.

Sub-section (iii)—Mileage allowances for journeys by sea or by river steamer.

Classes of accommodation to which Government servants are considered to be entitled.

40. For the purpose of calculating mileage allowance, Government servants are considered to be entitled to class accommodation according to the following scale :—

(a) A Government servant of the first grade —Highest class ;

(b) A Government servant of the second grade.—If there be two classes only on the steamer, the higher class ; and if there be more than two classes, middle or second class.

(c) A Government servant of the third grade.—If there be two classes only on the steamer, the lower class ;

if there be three classes, middle or second class ;

if there be four classes, third class :

Provided that a competent authority may direct that any Government servant whose pay does not exceed Rs. 30 is entitled, for journeys generally or for particular journeys, to accommodation in the lowest class only.

(d) A Government servant of the fourth grade.—Lowest class.

Rates of mileage allowance.

41. The mileage allowance admissible to a Government servant of the first, second or third grade is double the fare of the class in which he is entitled to accommodation. The mileage allowance admissible to a Government servant of the fourth grade is the fare of the lowest class.

In cases where the steamer company has two rates of fare, one inclusive and one exclusive of diet, the word 'fare' in this rule should be held to mean fare exclusive of diet.

Special concessions.

42. In cases of doubt or in which, owing to the arrangement of classes on a steamer, the provisions of rule 40 if strictly construed involve hardship, a competent authority may decide, for journeys generally or for particular journeys, to what class of accommodation a Government servant is entitled; and whether, if a concession is sanctioned, he should be granted the full allowance admissible for the higher class in which he is permitted to travel.

Crossing a river or arm of the sea.

43. The rules in this sub-section apply to Government servants who cross a river or arm of the sea by steamer in the course of a journey, unless such crossing occurs during a railway journey and the charge for it is included in the railway fare. In the latter case, the crossing is treated as part of the railway journey.

Travelling by Government steamer.

44. If suitable accommodation on a Government vessel is offered to a Government servant, he is entitled to travelling allowance under rule 180 and not to mileage allowance. It is not open to him to refuse to accept such accommodation and to draw mileage allowance.

Sub-section (iv)—Mileage allowance for journeys by road.

Definition of travelling by road.

45. For the purpose of these rules, travelling by road includes travelling by sea or river in a steam launch or in any vessel other than a steamer and travelling by canal.

Ordinary mileage rates.

46. (a) For journeys by road, mileage allowance is calculated at the following rates for each mile travelled :—

A Government servant of the first grade—8 annas ;

A Government servant of the second grade—4 annas ;

A Government servant of the third grade —2 annas ; and

A Government servant of the fourth grade—1 anna.

(b) When a Government servant travels within the territories administered by a local Government which has fixed special rates for Government servants under its administrative control, he must draw mileage allowance at the rate so fixed for his grade.

Special concessions. 47. A competent authority may, for special reasons to be recorded, allow to a particular Government servant or class of Government servants mileage allowance at a higher rate than is prescribed in rule 46.

Treatment of fractions of a mile. 48. In calculating mileage allowance for journeys by road, fractions of a mile should be omitted from the total of a bill for any one journey but not from the various items which make up the bill.

Section VI.—Daily allowance.

Definition. 49. A daily allowance is a uniform allowance for each day of absence from headquarters, which is intended to cover the ordinary daily charges incurred by a Government servant in consequence of such absence.

General rule as to drawing of daily allowance. 50. Unless in any case it be otherwise expressly provided in these rules, a daily allowance may be drawn while on tour by every Government servant whose duties require that he should travel, and may not be drawn except while on tour.

Rates of daily allowance. 51. (a) Daily allowances are drawn on the following scale :—

(i) A Government servant of the first grade.—Rs. 5.

(ii) A Government servant of the second grade —As. 4 for every Rs. 25 or fraction of Rs. 25 of his pay, subject to a maximum of Rs. 3.

(iii) A Government servant of the third grade.—As. 2 for every Rs. 12½ or fraction of Rs. 12½ of his pay, subject to a minimum of As. 6 when travelling in the Bombay Presidency and of As. 4 elsewhere.

(iv) A Government servant of the fourth grade.—As 3 if he travels in more than one province and As. 2 if he travels in one province only.

(b) When a Government servant travels within the territories administered by a local Government which has fixed special rates of daily allowance for Government servants under its administrative control, he must draw daily allowance at the rate so fixed for his grade.

NOTE.—Any individual Government servant who held, prior to the introduction of these rules, a post on progressive pay and was entitled to calculate his daily allowance on the maximum pay of such post, shall retain this privilege unless he is reduced or reverted to a lower post.

Exceptions. 52. A competent authority may, for reasons which should be recorded and on such conditions as it may think fit to impose, sanction for any Government servant or class of Government servants a daily allowance higher or lower than that prescribed in rule 15, if it considers that the allowance so prescribed is inadequate or excessive.

Section VII.—Actual expenses.

Actual expenses not admissible except under specific rule. 53. Unless in any case it be otherwise expressly provided in these rules, no Government servant is entitled to be provided with means of conveyance by or at the expense of Government, or to draw as travelling allowance the actual cost or part of the actual cost of travelling.

CHAPTER III.—TRAVELLING ALLOWANCE ADMISSIBLE FOR DIFFERENT CLASSES OF JOURNEY.

Section VIII.—General.

Travelling allowance calculated with reference to the purpose of the journey. 54. The travelling allowance admissible to a Government servant for any journey is calculated with reference to the purpose of the journey in accordance with the rules laid down in Sections IX to XX.

Recovery of cost of transporting personal luggage, etc. 55. Unless in any case it be otherwise expressly provided in these rules, a Government servant making a journey for any purpose is not entitled to recover from Government the cost of transporting his family or his personal luggage, conveyances, tents and camp equipage.

Higher rates for journeys in expensive localities. 56. A competent authority may, by general or special order, direct that the ordinary rates of daily allowance or mileage allowance or both shall be increased either in a definite ratio or in any other suitable manner for any or all Government servants travelling in any specified locality in which travelling is unusually expensive.

Journeys by special conveyance. 57. When a Government servant of a grade lower than the first grade is required by the order of a superior authority to travel by special means of conveyance, the cost of which exceeds the amount of the daily allowance or mileage allowance admissible to him under the ordinary rules, he may draw the actual cost of travelling in lieu of such daily or mileage allowance. The bill for the actual cost must be supported by a certificate, signed by the superior authority and countersigned by the controlling officer, stating that the use of the special means of conveyance was absolutely necessary and specifying the circumstances which rendered it necessary.

A Government servant of the fourth grade travelling by steamer.

58. A Government servant of the fourth grade, when travelling by sea or river steamer, may draw, in addition to mileage allowance, daily allowance at double the rate ordinarily admissible to him; provided that, whatever be the nature of other journeys which may be combined with the steamer journey, no further daily allowance may be drawn for any day for which this double allowance is drawn.

Section IX.—Journey on Tour.

Sub-section (i)–General Rules.

Definition of headquarters.

59. The headquarters of a Government servant shall be in such place as a competent authority may prescribe.

Limits of sphere of duty.

60. A competent authority may define the limits of the sphere of duty of any Government servant.

Definition of tour.

61. A Government servant is on tour when absent on duty from his headquarters either within or, with proper sanction, beyond his sphere of duty. For the purposes of this section, a journey to a hill station is not treated as a journey on tour.

NOTE.—A District or Assistant Superintendent of Police is not held to be on tour when he visits a police station unless—

(a) he travels not less than twenty miles in one day, or

(b) he is absent from his headquarters for two or more consecutive nights and visits two or more police stations or posts.

62. In case of doubt a competent authority may decide whether a particular absence is absence on duty for the purpose of rule 61.

Restrictions on the duration and frequency of tours.

63. A competent authority may impose such restrictions as it may think fit upon the frequency and duration of journeys to be made on tour by any Government servant or class of Government servants.

Government servants who are not entitled to travelling allowance for journeys on tour.

64. If a competent authority declares that the pay of a particular Government servant or class of Government servants has been so fixed as to compensate for the cost of all journeys, other than journeys by rail or steamer, within the Government servant's sphere of duty, such a Government servant may draw no travelling allowance for such journeys, though he may draw mileage allowance or, if he be in inferior service, travelling allowance under rule 78, for journeys by rail or steamer. When travelling on duty, with proper sanction, beyond his sphere of duty, he may draw travelling allowance calculated under the ordinary rules for the entire journey, including such part of it as is within his sphere of duty.

General principles on which travelling allowance is drawn for journeys on tour.

65. The travelling allowance drawn by a Government servant on tour ordinarily takes the shape of either permanent travelling allowance or daily allowance, if either of these is admissible to him. Permanent travelling allowance and daily allowance may, however, in certain circumstances be exchanged for mileage allowance or for the whole or part of the actual cost of travelling. In certain other circumstances actual cost may be drawn in addition to daily allowance or for journeys for which no daily allowance is admissible.

Carriage of tents supplied by Government.

66. (a) A competent authority may prescribe the scale of Government tents to be supplied to any Government servant or class of Government servants for office or, if it think fit, for personal use.

(b) When such tents are used by a Government servant on tour for office purposes only, they may be carried at Government expense. When used partly for office and partly for private purposes, the Government servant must, except as provided in rule 81, pay half the cost of carriage. When used wholly for private purposes, the Government servant must, except as provided in rule 81, pay the entire cost of carriage.

Sub-section (ii)--Government servants in receipt of permanent travelling allowance.

Actual expenses in addition to or in exchange for permanent travelling allowance.

67. A permanent travelling allowance is intended to cover the cost of all journeys within the sphere of duty of the Government servant who draws it, and such Government servant may not draw any other travelling allowance in place of or in addition to permanent travelling allowance for such journeys; provided that:—

(1) A Government servant of the fourth grade and any other class of Government servants to which a competent authority may extend this concession may draw, in addition to permanent travelling allowance, single fare for a journey by rail, and

(2) a competent authority may, by general or special order, permit a Government servant whose sphere of duty extends beyond the limits of a single district to draw, in addition to permanent travelling allowance, whenever his actual travelling expenses for a duly authorised journey by public conveyance exceed double the amount of his permanent travelling allowance for the period occupied in such journey, the difference between such double permanent travelling allowance and the mileage allowance calculated for the journey.

Mileage allowance in exchange for permanent travelling allowance.

68. When a Government servant in receipt of permanent travelling allowance travels on duty, with proper sanction, beyond his sphere of duty, he may draw mileage allowance for the entire journey, including such part of it as is within his sphere of duty, and may draw, in addition, permanent travelling allowance for any day of his absence for which he does not draw mileage allowance. This rule does not apply to a Government servant who travels beyond his sphere of duty in the course of a journey from one place within that sphere to another such place, or to a Government servant who makes, by road alone, a journey not exceeding 20 miles.

Sub-section (iii)—Government servants not in receipt of permanent travelling allowance.

Sub-division (i).—Daily allowance.

General rule.

69. Except where otherwise expressly provided in these rules, a Government servant not in receipt of permanent travelling allowance draws travelling allowance for journeys on tour in the shape of daily allowance.

Drawn during absence from headquarters on duty.

70. Daily allowance may not be drawn except during absence from headquarters on duty. A period of absence from headquarters begins when a Government servant actually leaves his headquarters and ends when he actually returns to the place in which his headquarters are situated, whether he halts there or not.

Distance to be travelled before daily allowance is admissible.

71. Daily allowance may not be drawn for any day on which a Government servant does not reach a point outside a radius of five miles from his headquarters or return to his headquarters from a similar point.

Halts on tour.

72. Subject to the conditions laid down in rules 73 and 74, daily allowance may be drawn during a halt ont our or on a holiday occurring during a tour.

73. Daily allowance may not be drawn for a continuous halt of more than ten days at any one place; provided that a competent authority may grant general or individual exemptions from the operation of this rule, on such conditions as it thinks fit, if it is satisfied—

(a) that prolonged halts are necessary in the interests of the public service, and

(b) that such halts necessitate the maintenance of camp equipage or, where no camp equipage is maintained, continue, after the first ten days, to entail extra expense upon the halting Government servant.

74. For the purposes of rules 71, 72 and 73:—

(a) After a continuous halt of ten days' duration, the halting place shall be regarded as the Government servant's temporary headquarters.

(b) A halt is continuous unless terminated by an absence on duty at a distance from the halting place exceeding five miles for a period including not less than three nights.

(c) In calculating the duration of a halt, any day on which the Government servant travels or halts at a distance from the halting place exceeding five miles shall be excluded. On such a day the Government servant may draw daily allowance or exchange it for mileage allowance if admissible.

Sub-division (ii).—Mileage allowance and actual expenses in place of or in addition to daily allowance.

Exchange of daily allowance for mileage allowance during the whole period of a tour.

75. A competent authority may, by general or special order and on such conditions as it thinks fit to impose, permit any Government servant or class of Government servants to draw mileage allowance instead of daily allowance for the whole period of any absence from headquarters, if it considers that the nature of the Government servant's duty is such that daily allowance is not sufficient to cover his travelling expenses.

Exchange of daily allowance for mileage allowance on particular journeys.

76. (a) Subject to any conditions which a competent authority may by general or special order impose, a Government servant in superior service may exchange his daily allowance for mileage allowance on any day on which—

(i) he travels by railway or steamer or both, or

(ii) he travels more than 20 miles by road;

provided that, if a continuous journey extend over more than one day, the exchange must be made for all such days and not for a part only of them.

NOTE.—Short journeys within a radius of five miles from headquarters may not be added to other journeys, when calculating the distance travelled by road or the amount of mileage allowance admissible for road journeys.

(b) When a journey by road is combined with a journey by railway or steamer under clause (a) (i) of this rule:—

(i) Mileage allowance may be drawn on account of such journey by road, but such mileage is limited to the amount of daily allowance unless the journey by road exceeds twenty miles, and

(ii) unless such journey by road be a journey to or from the Government servant's headquarters, mileage allowance shall be calculated on the distance actually travelled, without regard to the points fixed by or under rule 32.

77. Subject to any conditions which a competent authority may by general or special order impose, a non-gazetted ministerial or menial Government servant may, for any day on which he travels by public or hired conveyance under a certificate from the head of his office that he is required to do so, exchange daily allowance for mileage allowance.

Travelling allowance admissible to a Government servant in inferior service.

78. The following conditions are applicable to a Government servant in inferior service:—

(a) For a journey by railway, he may draw mileage allowance in addition to daily allowance.

(b) For a journey by sea or river steamer, he may draw travelling allowance under rule 58.

(c) For a journey by road, he may exchange daily allowance for mileage allowance if the journey exceeds 20 miles or the condition of rule 77 is fulfilled.

(d) For a journey by road combined with a journey by railway or by sea or river steamer, he may draw mileage allowance, limited as in rule 76 (b) (i) except as provided in rule 77, for the road journey, in addition to the allowances admissible under clause (a) or (b) of this rule.

Actual expenses maintaining camp during a sudden journey away from it.

79. A competent authority may permit any Government servant, who is compelled by a sudden emergency to leave his camp and travel rapidly on duty to a place more than twenty miles distant, to draw, in addition to mileage allowance, the actual cost of maintaining his camp, whether the camp be moved or not; provided that the amount of actual cost drawn shall not exceed the daily allowance of his grade.

Actual expenses on first and last journey of an extensive tour.

80. A Government servant entitled to daily allowance, whose sphere of duty extends over a whole province, may, when making a journey of more than one hundred miles to the first or from the last camp of an extensive tour, recover, in lieu of the daily allowance admissible for the days occupied by such journey, the whole necessary cost of the journey, including the cost of transportation of camp equipment and of servants, horses, motor-cars, motor-cycles, bicycles and private baggage on such scale as a competent authority may prescribe.

Actual expenses of conveying camp equipment, etc.

81. (a) When a competent authority is satisfied that it is in the interests of the public service that a particular Government servant on tour should send his horses, camels, motor-cars, motor-cycles, bicycles or camp equipment by railway or steamer, or by country craft when no steamer service exists capable of conveying the goods or animals or when such means of carriage is cheaper or more expeditious, it may, by special order in each case, permit him to recover, in addition to mileage allowance or daily allowance or both, the actual cost or part of the actual cost of transporting them.

NOTE 1.—In the case of a motor-car, the cost of transporting a chauffeur or cleaner, and for each horse the cost of transporting one syce and one grass-cutter may be drawn.

NOTE 2.—The term motor-cycle in this rule includes a side-car.

(b) A competent authority may by general or special order prescribe limitations on the weight of camp equipment and the number of conveyances and animals to be carried at Government expense under clause (a) of this rule by a particular Government servant or class of Government servants.

Government servants whose duties require them to travel constantly by railway.

82. (a) The following provisions are applicable to—

(i) officers and men of railway police;

(ii) Government servants, other than train staff or running establishment, attached to open lines of state railways, including medical subordinates;

(iii) Government examiners of railway accounts and their establishments;

(iv) Government inspectors of railways and their establishments;

(v) permanent way inspectors temporarily transferred from open lines to unopened construction lines, to whom the Railway Board may declare them to be applicable; and

(vi) any other Government servant or class of Government servants, whose duties involve constant travelling by railway, to whom a competent authority may declare them to be applicable.

(b) When such a Government servant makes a journey by railway on tour:—

(i) He is entitled either to a free pass under the free pass rules of the railway or to the fares for himself and the servants and baggage accompanying him which a free pass would cover.

(ii) He may draw daily allowance for any day on which he is absent from his headquarters for more than eight consecutive hours.

(iii) He may not exchange for mileage allowance the allowances admissible under sub-clauses (i) and (ii) of this clause.

(iv) If he combines with a railway journey a journey by steamer or road, he may, if he travels to a place distant at least five miles from the point where he leaves the railway or returns to the railway from a place similarly distant, draw mileage allowance for the journey by steamer or road, in addition to daily allowance, if any, admissible under this rule or under rule 58; provided that the time spent on the journey by steamer or road shall be deducted in calculating the duration of his absence from his headquarters.

Inspectors of maintenance on state railways.

83. The provisions of rule 82 apply to inspectors of maintenance on state railways; provided that, in their case, the period of absence from headquarters by which daily allowance may be earned is a period of more than four hours between 9 P.M. and 5 A.M. Before daily allowance can be drawn, the head of the department must certify that the inspector was so absent in special circumstances.

Railway and Telegraph servants travelling on unopened line of railway.

84. (a) A Government servant of the Telegraph Department or of a state railway, unless he be a member of the Government Inspectors' department or attached to an open line of railway, when travelling on an unopened line by trolly, material train or engine, draws, in addition to the actual cost of haulage, if any, the following special mileage allowance for each mile travelled:—

(i) If a Government servant of the first grade—1½ annas.

(ii) If a Government servant of the second grade—9 pies.

(iii) If a Government servant of the third or fourth grade—3 pies.

(b) The allowances prescribed in clause (a) of this rule are intended to meet the entire cost of travelling, and no other allowance may be drawn in lieu of or in addition to them except in the following cases:—

(i) When the Government servant travels more than twenty miles, partly by road and partly by trolly, etc., he may draw mileage allowance under clause (b) of rule 76, rule 77 or rule 78 for the journey by road in addition to the special mileage allowance for the journey by rail.

(ii) When he travels not more than twenty miles, partly by road and partly by trolly, etc., he must draw daily allowance for the whole journey in lieu of the special mileage allowance; provided that:—

(1) If the special mileage allowance admissible exceeds his daily allowance, he may draw the special mileage allowance.

(2) If the conditions of rule 77 are fulfilled, he may draw mileage allowance under that rule for the journey by road in addition to special mileage allowance.

(iii) When he remains absent from his headquarters for a night, he may, at his option, draw daily allowance in lieu of any mileage allowance that is admissible under clause (a) of this rule.

(iv) When the conditions of rule 79 are fulfilled, he may draw actual cost under that rule in addition to any other allowance that is admissible under this rule.

Postal officials.

85. The following provisions apply to Deputy Postmasters General, Superintendents and Inspectors of the Railway Mail Service, when they travel on duty by railway within the limits of the lines to which they are attached:—

(a) For a journey by railway, they are entitled to free conveyance. An Inspector may draw in addition a single fare of the lowest class for a servant, if actually paid.

(b) For a continuous absence from headquarters of not less than six hours, they may draw daily allowance in addition; provided that, when the six hours fall partly in one and partly in another calendar day, they may earn further daily allowance by another journey for one only of the two days.

(c) For a journey by road combined with a journey by railway they may draw mileage allowance, irrespective of the distance travelled; provided that the time spent on such journey shall be deducted in calculating the duration of absence from headquarters.

86. An Inspector of Post Offices may not exchange daily allowance for mileage allowance on journeys by road. When travelling by railway, by sea or by river steamer, he may draw, in addition to his daily allowance, a single fare of the class to which his grade entitles him and a single fare of the lowest class for one servant, if actually paid. Daily allowance is, however, not admissible when an inspector avails himself of board provided on a steamer, the cost of which is included in the cost of the fare.

Survey of India Department.

87. (a) Except as provided in clauses (b) and (c) of this rule, a Government servant of the Survey of India Department may not exchange daily allowance for mileage allowance for a journey in the field.

(b) With the sanction in each case of the Surveyor General or administrative superintendent, a Government servant in the Survey of India Department may be granted the following concessions:—

(i) He may exchange his daily allowance for mileage allowance under rule 76 for a journey in the field if he is required to travel by public or hired conveyance or if he is employed on special duty.

(ii) Whenever his actual travelling expenses for a journey to or from the field, or for any other journey on which he has to travel with camp equipment, exceed the mileage allowance calculated for the journey under the ordinary rules, he may draw such actual expenses in place of daily allowance. In calculating actual expenses, he may include the cost of transporting, whether by public or hired conveyance or otherwise, both himself and such scale of servants, baggage and camp equipment as the Governor-General in Council may prescribe; provided that—

(1) in applying this rule a journey must be treated as a whole, and a Government servant may not draw actual expenses for a part of a journey and mileage allowance for the remainder; and

(2) actual expenses may not be drawn under this rule for a journey in the field by road only unless the conditions of sub-clause (i) of this clause are fulfilled.

(iii) Whenever, for such part of a month as he spends in the field, the actual cost of carrying camp equipment and baggage on the scale prescribed under sub-clause (ii) above exceeds half the amount of daily allowance admissible for the month, he may retain half of his daily allowance and exchange the other half for such actual cost.

(c) Actual expenses under clause (b) of this rule must be drawn on a bill prepared in detail and countersigned by the sanctioning authority.

Geological Survey of India.

88. With the sanction in each case of the Director of the Geological Survey, a Government servant in the Geological Survey of India Department may be granted the concessions specified in rule 87 (b) (ii) on the condition prescribed in clause (c) of that rule. The second proviso under clause (b) (ii) is not applicable to such a case.

Sub-division (iii).—Travelling allowance admissible for journeys and halts within five miles of headquarters.

Conveyance hire.

89. A competent authority may, by general or special order, permit any Government servant or class of Government servants to draw the actual cost of hiring a conveyance on a journey for which no travelling allowance is admissible under these rules.

Ferry charges, tolls and railway fare.

90. A Government servant travelling on duty within five miles of his headquarters is entitled to recover the actual amounts which he may spend in payment of ferry and other tolls and fares for journeys by railway or other public conveyance.

Actual expenses of maintaining camp equipage during a halt at headquarters.

91. On the following conditions and any other conditions which it may think fit to impose, a competent authority may, by general or special order, permit any Government servant or class of Government servants to recover the actual cost of maintaining camp equipage during a halt at headquarters or within five miles of headquarters or during the interval between the Government servant's departure from or arrival at headquarters and that of his camp equipage:—

(a) The amount drawn, together with any amounts recovered under rule 90, should not exceed the daily allowance of his grade.

(b) The period of the halt or interval for which it is granted should not exceed twenty-one days in Sind or Rajputana or ten days elsewhere. An absence on duty from the halting place for less than three nights should not be treated as interrupting the halt or interval.

(c) The Government servant must certify that he has maintained the whole or part of his camp equipage during the halt or interval and that the expense of maintenance has not been less than the amount drawn. In the case of a non-gazetted or menial servant, the head of the office must certify that such maintenance was necessary.

Sub-section (iv)—Special rules for high officials.

High officials travelling by reserved railway accommodation.

92. When a Government servant for whom special railway accommodation is provided or who is entitled, under these rules, to reserve railway accommodation by requisition, travels in such reserved accommodation on tour:—

(a) The entire cost of haulage is borne by Government.

(b) Unless it be otherwise expressly provided in this sub-section—

(i) the Government servant must pay the usual fares for any persons travelling with him in the reserved accommodation and, if Government pays full tariff rates for the reserved accommodation, such fares must be credited to Government;

(ii) if the Government servant desires additional accommodation for his staff or luggage, he must make arrangements with the railway administration for the provision of such accommodation, the haulage and other charges being met at his expense or, in the case of His Excellency the Viceroy and Governor-General, from his contract allowance;

(iii) the Government servant is entitled to draw no travelling allowance for the journey unless he be entitled to permanent travelling allowance.

93. Clause (b) (i) of Rule 92 does not apply to His Excellency the Viceroy and Governor-General.

Members of the executive council of the Governor-General.

94. If it is impossible for a member of the executive council of the Governor-General, when travelling by railway on duty, to arrange to travel by a train which is not a mail train, and if the railway authorities are unable to attach his reserved carriage to a mail train, he is entitled to order a special train at the expense of Government.

95. (a) A member of the executive council of the Governor-General, when travelling by railway on duty, is entitled, without payment, to—

(i) accommodation for personal servants up to a maximum number of ten, and

(ii) free carriage of all luggage for which he vouches as his personal luggage, including stores carried for consumption on tour, whether carried in the luggage van of the train to which his reserved carriage is attached or sent by any other train.

(b) Freight charges for goods and for stores other than those covered by clause (a) of this rule must be met by the member himself.

96. A member of the executive council of the Governor-General, when travelling on tour, may recover the cost of carrying a motor-car under the conditions specified in rule 81; provided that the Governor-General in Council is satisfied that the car has been employed, for all practical purposes, only as a means of performing, in the public interest, a journey off the line of railway. In cases where the presence of his car with the member has, apart from the advantages to Government of the particular tour or journey, saved him expense in hiring a conveyance or served his personal convenience to an appreciable extent, he must pay one-fifth of the cost of carriage.

114. Travelling allowance may not be drawn under this section by a Government servant on transfer from one station to another unless he is transferred for the public convenience and is entitled to pay during the period occupied by the journey. A transfer at his own request or in consequence of misconduct should not be treated as a transfer for the public convenience unless the authority sanctioning the transfer, for special reasons which should be recorded, otherwise direct.

115. A Government servant may draw mileage allowance for a journey on transfer, including transfer from military to civil employ.

Special concessions to Government servants in superior service.

116. (a) Unless in any case it be otherwise expressly provided in these rules or in rules made under other sections of the Act, a Government servant in superior service is entitled, for a journey on transfer, to the following concessions in addition to that prescribed by rule 115:—

I.—For journeys by rail or steamer.

(i) He may draw one extra fare of the class to which his grade entitles him.

(ii) He may draw one extra fare for each adult member of his family who accompanies him and for whom full fare is actually paid and one half fare for each child for whom such fare is actually paid.

(iii) He may draw the actual cost of transporting by goods train, steamer or other craft personal effects up to the following maxima:—

Grade of Government servant.	MAUNDS. If travelling alone.	If accompanied by family.
First . . .	40	60
Second . . .	20	30
Third . . .	12	15

Provided that a competent authority may prescribe lower maxima in the case of any specified class of Government servants.

NOTE.—If a Government servant carries his personal effects by passenger, instead of by goods train, he may draw the actual cost of carriage up to a limit of the amount which would have been admissible had he taken the maximum number of maunds by goods train.

(iv) Provided that—

(1) the distance travelled exceeds 80 miles;

(2) the Government servant is travelling to join a post in which the possession of a conveyance or horse is advantageous from the point of view of his efficiency; and

(3) conveyances or horses are actually carried by rail, steamer or other craft;—

he may draw the actual cost of transporting at owner's risk conveyances and horses on the following scale:—

Grade of Government servant.	Scale allowed.
First . . .	Two horses, and a carriage or motor-car or motor-cycle.
Second . . .	One horse, and a carriage or motor-cycle.
Third . . .	One horse or a motor-cycle or ordinary cycle.

NOTE.—In the case of a motor-car, the cost of transporting a chauffeur or cleaner, and for each horse the cost of transporting one syce and one grass-cutter may be drawn.

He is entitled to free transport of himself, his family, servants and their boná fide personal effects, and of conveyances and horses subject to the limits prescribed in sub-clause (iv); and may draw in addition the daily allowance of his grade.

II.—For a journey by road.

(i) He may draw one extra mileage allowance at the rate to which his grade entitles him.

(ii) He may draw a second extra mileage allowance if two members of his family accompany him and a third if more than two members accompany him.

(iii) For the transportation of personal effects within the limits prescribed in sub-clause I (iii) of this clause, he may draw mileage allowance at a rate to be fixed by a competent authority. This rate will be calculated on the average cost of conveying goods by the cheapest method of conveyance.

(b) The following explanations are given of terms employed in clause (a) of this rule:—

(i) The term "personal effects" is not subject to definition, but the controlling officer must satisfy himself that a claim to reimbursement on account of their transportation is reasonable.

(ii) The term "motor-cycle" includes a side-car.

(iii) A member of a Government servant's family who follows him within six months from the date of his transfer or precedes him by not more than one month may be treated as accompanying him. If such member travels to the new station from a place other than the Government servant's old station, the Government servant may draw either the actual fare for the journey made or the fare admissible for the journey from the old to the new station, whichever is less.

(c) Tents supplied by Government are transported at the expense of Government. Tents purchased and maintained by a Government servant himself may be transported at the expense of Government; provided that they do not exceed a scale to be prescribed in this behalf by a competent authority as suitable to a particular Government servant or class of Government servants. If they exceed this scale, the excess may be treated as a part of personal effects.

(d) A Government servant who claims higher travelling allowance on the ground that members of his family accompanied him on transfer must support his claim by a certificate showing the numbers and relationship of the said members.

(e) A Government servant claiming the cost of transporting personal effects, a conveyance or a horse, must support his claim by a certificate that the actual expense incurred was not less than the sum claimed. Such a certificate must give details of the conveyances or horses transported.

(b) The charge for haulage of the reserved accommodation will be paid by Government.

(c) The Government servant must pay to Government the fare which he would have paid if no accommodation had been reserved, and must, in addition, pay in cash to the station master of the station from which the journey commences the fares for any members of his family accompanying him, whether they share his reserved accommodation or not. When Government pays full tariff rates for the accommodation, all such fares will be credited to Government.

118. The provisions of rule 117 apply to a political resident of the first class when transferred from one residency to another. If he avails himself of the concession given by that rule, he may recover the actual cost of transporting servants and luggage up to the limits prescribed in rule 100 for a journey outside his sphere of duty.

Procedure of requisition.

172. The procedure to be followed in submitting a requisition for reserved accommodation shall be such as may be prescribed by the Railway Board.

Effect of requisition of a carriage.

173. When a Government servant travels in a carriage reserved by requisition, the carriage is entirely at his disposal and may be detached and detained at any railway station at his request.

Free passes.

174. The issue of free passes for journeys by railway is regulated by rules made in this behalf by the Railway Board.

Section XXII.—Travelling allowance admissible when the whole or part of the means of conveyance is supplied without charge.

Sub-section (i).—Journeys by railway.

Journeys made by railway in accommodation reserved by requisition.

175. The travelling allowance admissible to a Government servant who makes a journey by railway in accommodation reserved by requisition is prescribed in sub-section (ii) of section IX and elsewhere in these rules.

Free transit by railway otherwise than in accommodation reserved by requisition.

176. When a Government servant is entitled to or is allowed free transit by railway otherwise than in accommodation reserved by requisition, whether on a free pass or otherwise, the mileage allowance which he draws for the journey must, except in cases covered by rule 82, 83, 84 or 85, be reduced by the amount of the fare which, but for such free transit, he would have paid. This rule applies to cases in which a free pass is issued on any railway, whether worked by Government or not. The reduction made must include the full number of fares covered by the pass, unless the Government servant certifies that he did not use the pass in respect of any fare or fares for which no reduction is made.

Government servant in receipt of permanent travelling allowance.

177. When a Government servant in receipt of permanent travelling allowance uses a free pass on a railway within his sphere of duty, he must deduct from his permanent travelling allowance for the month the amount of the railway fares which he would have paid if he had not travelled on a pass.

Government servant entitled to travel in a higher class on payment of a lower fare.

178. When a Government servant is permitted to travel by railway in a higher class on payment of a lower fare, his mileage allowance must be reduced by the amount by which the fare of the class in which he travels exceeds the fare actually paid.

Government servant travelling with a free pass on an unopened line of railway.

179. Except as provided in rule 84, a Government servant travelling with a free pass on an unopened line of railway is entitled to the travelling allowance prescribed in rule 182 as limited by rule 184.

Sub-section (ii).—Journeys by sea or river steamer.

Journey by Government vessel.

180. When a Government servant travels by sea or river, otherwise than on payment of passage money, in a steamer the cost of which is paid by Government or by a local fund, he may draw no travelling allowance except the daily allowance of his grade; provided that, when his servants and luggage are not conveyed on the vessel but are sent separately at his expense, he may draw in addition the actual cost of transporting them.

Journey by other than Government vessel.

181. When a Government servant is allowed free transit by sea or river steamer, otherwise than in a Government vessel, the mileage allowance which he draws for the journey must be reduced by the amount of the fare which, but for such free transit, he would have paid. If he travels on a free pass, the reduction made must include the full number of fares covered by the pass, unless the Government servant certifies that he did not use the pass in respect of any fare or fares for which no reduction is made. This rule does not apply to cases in which a Government servant is allowed a free pass by a steamship company without cost to Government; unless the free pass is issued in connection with his official status or duties or as part of a regular arrangement with Government for the conveyance of mails, etc.

Sub-section (iii).—Other journeys.

Free transit by boat, road, etc. 182. Except where otherwise expressly provided in these rules, when, on a journey other than a journey by railway or by sea or river steamer, a Government servant uses a means of locomotion provided at the expense of Government, a local fund or an Indian State, and does not pay the cost of its use or propulsion, he is entitled to travelling allowance as follows:—

(a) If he has not to provide separate conveyance at his own expense for his servants or luggage, he may draw the daily allowance of his grade and may not exchange it for mileage allowance. If, however, part of the journey is made by other means of locomotion, he may at his option draw in lieu of daily allowance the mileage allowance admissible for that part.

(b) If he has to provide separate conveyance at his own expense for his servants or luggage, he may, if the conditions of rule 76 or 77 are fulfilled, exchange his daily allowance for half the mileage allowance calculated for the journey and draw in addition the mileage allowance admissible for any part of the journey made by other means of locomotion.

When the Government servant pays the cost of propulsion. 183. When a Government servant is provided with means of locomotion as in rule 182, but pays all the cost of its use or propulsion, he may draw travelling allowance under the ordinary rules, subject to the deduction of such fixed hire or charge as a competent authority may fix.

Exceptions. 184. The provisions of rules 182 and 183 do not apply to a Government servant of the fourth grade or to any other Government servant or class of Government servants to whom a competent authority may declare them to be inapplicable.

Journeys by Government motor-car. 185. A Government servant, who travels by a motor-car which has been supplied to him at the expense of Government on the condition that he himself bears the ordinary cost of maintenance, may draw travelling allowance as for a journey on tour, but the amount of the mileage allowance which he may draw is limited by the following conditions:—

(a) If he travels by the motor-car more than 20 miles in one day, he may draw for the first 20 miles the mileage allowance of his grade and for the remainder of the journey three-fourths of such mileage allowance.

(b) If he combines with a journey by the motor-car a road journey by other conveyance, he may draw the mileage allowance admissible for the first 20 miles or for the journey by other conveyance, whichever is greater, and for the remainder of the journey three-fourths of such mileage allowance.

(c) If he combines with a journey by road, whether made wholly or partly in the motor-car, a journey by railway or steamer, he may draw mileage allowance for the journey by railway or steamer in addition to the allowances admissible under clauses (a) and (b) of this rule for the journey by road.

Chauffeurs of Government motor-cars. 186. The chauffeur of a motor-car supplied at the expense of Government, when making a journey by road on the motor-car in his charge, may draw travelling allowance under the provisions of rule 182 (a) if the journey involves an absence of at least one night from his headquarters. For a journey which does not involve such an absence he is entitled to no travelling allowance.

CHAPTER V.—GRANT OF TRAVELLING ALLOWANCE TO PERSONS WHO ARE NOT IN THE CIVIL SERVICE OF THE CROWN.

Section XXIII.—Government servants in military employ.

General rule. 187. Except as provided in rule 188, the travelling allowance admissible to Government servants in military employ is governed by military regulations.

Military officers invited to attend a darbar or levée.

188. When a commissioned Indian military officer of the regular forces, the military police or the militia, whether on the active or the retired list, is invited to attend a darbar or levée at a place other than that at which he is stationed or has his residence, a competent authority may grant him travelling allowance for the journey subject to the following limits:—

(a) For the journey from his station or place of residence to the place at which the darbar or levée is held and thence back to his starting point, single railway and steamer fares actually paid, and actual travelling expenses for journeys by road subject to the maximum admissible to a Government servant of the first grade.

(b) For halts at the place at which the darbar or levée is held, a daily allowance of Rs. 4½.

Section XXIV.—Other persons.

Honorary magistrates.

189. An honorary magistrate, not being a Government servant, may, when employed on Government work under the orders of a district magistrate or sub-divisional officer at a distance exceeding five miles from his headquarters, or when the bench which he attends is situated at a similar distance from his residence, draw for journeys by railway double second class fare and for journeys by road annas four for each mile travelled. During halts when similarly employed, he may draw daily allowance of Rs. 4½ subject to the conditions applicable to halts of Government servants on tour.

Persons attending commissions of inquiry, etc.

190. (a) When any person, not being a Government servant, is required to attend any meeting of a commission of inquiry or of a board, conference, committee or departmental inquiry convened under proper authority, or is required to perform any public duties in an honorary capacity, a competent authority may grant him travelling allowance for the journey calculated under the ordinary rules for the journey of a Government servant on tour, and for this purpose may, with due regard to such person's position in life, declare, by general or special order, the grade to which he shall be considered to belong.

(b) In a case of the kind contemplated by clause (a) of this rule, a competent authority may, in its discretion, grant to the person concerned his actual travelling, hotel and carriage expenses instead of travelling allowance under that clause, if it considers that such allowance would be inadequate.

(c) A competent authority may delegate the power conferred upon it by clause (a) of this rule to the Government servant presiding over the meeting of the commission or other body which the person concerned is required to attend.

CHAPTER VI.—CONTROLLING OFFICERS.

Section XXV.—Signature on travelling allowance bills.

Controlling officer to be declared by competent authority.

191. A competent authority shall declare what authority shall be the controlling officer, for travelling allowance purposes, of each Government servant or class of Government servants. It may, if it thinks fit, declare that any particular Government servant shall be his own controlling officer.

Signature of controlling officer necessary to a travelling allowance bill.

192. Except as provided in rule 193, no bill for travelling allowance, other than permanent travelling allowance, shall be paid unless it be signed or countersigned by the controlling officer of the Government servant who presents it.

Exceptions.

193. The following classes of Government servants may present bills for travelling allowance without the countersignature of the controlling officer:—

(a) Chaplains; provided that the bill is accompanied by the order, authorising the journey, of—

(i) the Bishop or Commissary of the diocese, in the case of a chaplain of the Church of England, or

(ii) the Presidency Senior Chaplain, in the case of a chaplain of the Church of Scotland.

(b) Deputy Auditors General, the Examiner of Government Press Accounts and the Auditor of the Custom House Accounts in India; provided that duplicate bills are at the same time forwarded to the Auditor General for countersignature and transmission to the audit officer.

(c) Non-gazetted Government servants; provided that detailed and countersigned bills are subsequently submitted to the audit officer for adjustment.

Delegation of duty of countersignature.

194. Except where expressly permitted by a competent authority, a controlling officer may not delegate to a subordinate his duty of countersignature.

Section XXVI.—Duties and powers.

195. It is the duty of a controlling officer, before signing or countersigning a travelling allowance bill;—

(a) to scrutinise the necessity, frequency and duration of journeys and halts for which travelling allowance is claimed, and to disallow the whole or any part of the travelling allowance claimed for any journey or halt if he considers that a journey was unnecessary or unduly protracted or that a halt was of excessive duration;

(b) to scrutinise carefully the distances entered in travelling allowance bills;

(c) to satisfy himself that, where the actual cost of transporting servants, personal effects, etc., is claimed under these rules, the scale on which such servants, effects, etc., were transported was reasonable; and to disallow any claim which, in his opinion, does not fulfil that condition;

(d) to check any tendency to abuse the option of exchanging daily allowance for mileage allowance; and

(e) to observe any subsidiary rules which a competent authority may make for his guidance.

PART III.—RECORDS OF SERVICE.

DIVISION VII.

[Rules made by the Governor-General in Council under fundamental rule 74(d).]

Gazetted Government servants.

196. A record of the services of a gazetted Government servant will be kept by such audit officer and in such form as the Auditor General may prescribe.

Non-gazetted Government servants.

Service books. 197. A service book in such form as the Auditor General may prescribe must be maintained for every non-gazetted Government servant holding a substantive post on a permanent establishment, with the following exceptions:—

(a) Government servants the particulars of whose service are recorded in a history of services or a service register maintained by an audit officer.

(b) Policemen of rank not higher than that of head constable.

(c) Postmen and village postmen.

(d) Permanent subordinate non-pensionable servants in state railways, for whom a special form of record has been prescribed.

(e) Inferior servants of all sorts.

198. In all cases in which a service book is necessary under rule 197, such a book must be supplied for a Government servant, at his own cost, on his first appointment to Government service. It must be kept in the custody of the head of the office in which he is serving and transferred with him from office to office. It may be given up to the Government servant if he resigns or is discharged from the service without fault, an entry to this effect being first made in the service book.

199. Every step in a Government servant's official life must be recorded in his service book, and each entry must be attested by the head of his office or, if he himself is the head of an office, by his immediate superior. The head of the office must see that all entries are duly made and attested, and that the book contains no erasure or over-writing, all corrections being neatly made and properly attested.

200. Every period of suspension from employment and every other interruption of service must be noted, with full details of its duration, in an entry made across the page of the service book and must be attested by the attesting officer. It is the duty of the attesting officer to see that such entries are promptly made.

201. Personal certificates of character must not, unless the head of the department so direct, be entered in a service book but, if a Government servant is reduced to a lower substantive post, the reason of the reduction must be briefly shown.

202. It is the duty of every Government servant to see that his service book is properly maintained as prescribed in rule 199, in order that there may be no difficulty in verifying his service for pension. The head of the office should therefore permit a Government servant to examine his service book should he at any time desire to do so.

203. If a Government servant is transferred to foreign service, the head of his office or department must send his service book to the audit officer. The audit officer will return it after noting in it, under his signature, the order sanctioning the transfer, the effect of the transfer in regard to leave admissible during foreign service and any other particulars which he may consider to be necessary. On the Government servant's re-transfer to Government service, his service book must again be sent to the audit officer, who will then note in it, over his signature, all necessary particulars connected with the foreign service. No entry relating to the time spent in foreign service may be attested by any authority other than the audit officer.

Service rolls. 204. In the case of policemen of rank not higher than that of head constable, there must be maintained for each district by the District Superintendent of Police a service roll in English, in which the following particulars should be recorded for each man holding substantively a permanent post in the constabulary :—

(a) The date of his enrolment.

(b) His caste, tribe, village, age, height and marks of identification when enrolled.

(c) The rank which he from to time time holds, his promotions, and his reductions or other punishments.

(d) His absences from duty, with or without leave.

(e) Interruptions in his service.

(f) Every other incident in his service which may involve forfeiture of a portion of it or may affect the amount of his pension.

The roll must be checked by the vernacular roll and order book and the punishment register and every entry in it must be signed by the District Superintendent.

205. A service roll as described in rule 204 must be maintained for every other class of non-gazetted Government servant for whom no service book is necessary, except runners, boatmen and coolies in the Post Office Department and the Government servants mentioned in exceptions (a) and (d) under rule 197.

PART IV.—LEAVE.

DIVISION VIII.

Authorities empowered to grant leave.

(Rules made by the Governor-General in Council under fundamental rule 66.)

206. Any leave, other than special disability leave, admissible under the fundamental rules may be granted to a non-gazetted Government servant by the authority whose duty it would be to fill up his post if it were vacant. Non-gazetted Government servants.

207. No leave may be granted to a gazetted Government servant until a report as to the admissibility of the leave has been obtained from the audit officer. Gazetted Government servants.

208. On the receipt of such a report, any leave, other than special disability leave, admissible under the fundamental rules may be granted to a gazetted Government servant by a competent authority.

DIVISION IX.

Combination of holidays with leave and joining time.

(Rules made by the Governor-General in Council under fundamental rule 68.)

209. When the day immediately preceding the day on which a Government servant's leave begins or immediately following the day on which his leave or joining time expires is a holiday or one of a series of holidays, the Government servant may leave his station at the close of the day before, or return to it on the day following, such holiday or series of holidays ; provided that— General rule.

(a) his transfer or assumption of charge does not involve the handing or taking over of securities or of moneys other than a permanent advance ;

(b) his early departure does not entail a correspondingly early transfer from another station of a Government servant to perform his duties, and

(c) the delay in his return does not involve a corresponding delay in the transfer to another station of the Government servant who was performing his duties during his absence or in the discharge from Government service of a person temporarily appointed to it.

H

Exception.

210. On condition that the departing Government servant remains responsible for the moneys in his charge, a competent authority may declare that proviso (a) under rule 209 is not applicable to any particular case.

Effect upon pay and allowances.

211. Unless the competent authority in any case otherwise direct—

(a) if holidays are prefixed to leave, the leave and any consequent rearrangement of pay and allowances take effect from the first day after the holidays, and

(b) if holidays are affixed to leave or joining time, the leave or joining time is treated as having terminated on, and any consequent rearrangement of pay and allowances takes effect from, the day on which the leave or joining time would have ended if holidays had not been affixed.

DIVISION X.

Form of medical certificate of fitness to return to duty.

(Rules made by the Governor-General in Council under fundamental rule 71.)

Form of certificate.

212. A Government servant who has taken leave in Asia on medical certificate may not return to duty until he has produced a medical certificate of fitness in the following form:—

"I, A. B., ... do hereby certify that I have examined C. D. of the .... Department and that I consider him fit to resume his duties in Government service."

By whom signed.

213. If the Government servant on leave is a gazetted officer, such certificate should be signed by a commissioned medical officer or a medical officer in charge of a civil station. If the Government servant on leave is not a gazetted officer, the competent authority may, in its discretion, accept a certificate signed by any registered medical practitioner.

DIVISION XI.

Leave procedure in the case of Government servants in India.

[Rules made by the Governor-General in Council under fundamental rule 74 (a) (i) and (ii).]

Section I.—Leave Accounts.

214. The leave account required by fundamental rule 76 shall be maintained in such form as the Auditor General may prescribe.

By whom maintained.

215. (a) The leave account of a gazetted Government servant shall be maintained by, or under the direction of, the principal auditor responsible for the audit of his pay.

(b) The leave account of a non-gazetted Government servant shall be maintained by the head of the office in which he is employed.

Section II.—Application for leave.

216. Except as provided in rules 217 and 218, an application for leave or for an extension of leave must be made to the authority competent to grant such leave or extension.

To whom application should be made.

217. An application for leave by a chaplain must be forwarded, through the proper channel, to the Bishop of the Diocese; whether such Bishop is or is not competent to grant the desired leave.

218. An application by a commissioned medical officer in permanent or temporary civil employ for leave exceeding four months, other than leave on medical certificate, or for an extension of such leave, must be submitted to the local administrative medical officer, by whom it will be forwarded to the Director-General, Indian Medical Service. The Director-General will countersign the application if the state of the public service admits of the grant of the leave; otherwise, he will abstain from countersigning it. In either case, he will forward the application for disposal to the authority competent to grant the leave.

219. A Government servant transferred to foreign service must, before taking up his duties in foreign service, make himself acquainted with the rules or arrangements which will regulate his leave during such service.

Section III.—Medical certificates.

General rules. 220. Medical officers must not recommend the grant of leave in any case in which there appears to be no reasonable prospect that the Government servant concerned will ever be fit to resume his duties. In such cases, the opinion that the Government servant is permanently unfit for Government service should be recorded in the medical certificate.

221. Every certificate of a medical committee or a medical officer recommending the grant of leave to a Government servant must contain a proviso that no recommendation contained in it shall be evidence of a claim to any leave not admissible to the Government servant under the terms of his contract or of the rules to which he is subject.

Procedure in the case of gazetted Government servants. 222. Before a gazetted Government servant can be granted leave, or an extension of leave, on medical certificate, he must obtain a certificate in the following form or as nearly in that form as the circumstances permit:—

"I, A. B., Surgeon at (or of).........do hereby certify that C. D., of the......... service (or Department), is in a bad state of health, and I solemnly and sincerely declare that, according to the best of my judgment, a change of air is essentially necessary to his recovery, and do therefore recommend that he may be permitted to proceed to.."

This certificate should be accompanied by a statement of the Government servant's case in such form as the local Government of the province in which he is serving may prescribe.

223. Having secured such a certificate the Government servant must, except in cases covered by rule 226, obtain the permission of the head of his office or, if he himself is the head of an office, of the head of his department to appear before a medical committee. He should then present himself with two copies of the statement of his case before such a committee. The committee will be assembled under the orders of the Administrative Medical Officer of the province in which the Government servant is serving, who will, where practicable, preside over it. The committee will be assembled either at the headquarters of the province or at such other place as the local Government may appoint.

224. Before the required leave or extension of leave can be granted the Government servant must obtain from the committee a certificate to the following effect:—

"We do hereby certify that, according to the best of our professional judgment, after careful personal examination of the case, we consider the health of C. D. to be such as to render leave of absence for a period of .... months absolutely necessary for his recovery."

225. Before deciding whether to grant or refuse the certificate, the committee may, in a doubtful case, detain the applicant under professional observation for a period not exceeding fourteen days. In that case it should grant to him a certificate to the following effect:—

"C. D. having applied to us for a medical certificate recommending the grant to him of leave, we consider it expedient, before granting or refusing such a certificate, to detain C. D. under professional observation for.........days."

226. If the state of the applicant's health is certified by a commissioned medical officer of Government or by a medical officer in charge of a civil station to be such as to make it inconvenient for him to present himself at any place in which a committee can be assembled, the authority competent to grant the leave may accept, in lieu of the certificate prescribed in rule 224, either—

(a) a certificate signed by any two medical officers, being commissioned medical officers or medical officers in charge of civil stations, in whatsoever province they may be serving; or

(b) if the authority considers it unnecessary to require the production of two medical opinions, a certificate signed by an officer in medical charge of a civil station and countersigned by the collector of the district or the commissioner of the division.

227. The grant of a certificate under rule 224 or 226 does not in itself confer upon the Government servant concerned any right to leave. The certificate should be forwarded to the authority competent to grant the leave, and the orders of that authority should be awaited.

Procedure in the case of non-gazetted Government servants, in superior service.

228. An application by a non-gazetted Government servant in superior service for leave, or for an extension of leave, on medical certificate, must be accompanied by a certificate from the applicant's medical attendant. Such certificate should distinctly state the nature of the illness, its symptoms, probable causes and duration, and the period of absence from duty considered to be absolutely necessary for the restoration of the applicant's health. It should be countersigned by a Presidency Surgeon, if the applicant is in a Presidency town; otherwise, by the officer in chief medical charge of the district in which the applicant resides. The authority competent to grant the leave may, however, in its discretion accept a certificate from the applicant's medical attendant without such countersignature; or, if the applicant be a female, may either dispense with countersignature or accept the countersignature of any female medical practitioner. The possession of a certificate such as is prescribed in this rule does not in itself confer upon the Government servant concerned any right to leave.

229. No certificate should be submitted for countersignature without the cognisance of the head of the office in which the applicant is serving.

230. The countersigning officer may, in his discretion, require the applicant to appear before him, unless it appears from the certificate of his medical attendant that he is too ill to bear the journey. In the latter case, the officer may, after careful investigation of the case, either countersign the certificate or refuse to do so, as he thinks fit.

Procedure in the case of non-gazetted Government servants in inferior service.

231. In support of an application for leave, or for an extension of leave, on medical certificate from a non-gazetted Government servant in inferior service, the authority competent to grant the leave may accept such certificate as it may deem sufficient.

Section IV.—Grant of leave.

Priority of claims to leave.

232. In cases where all applications for leave cannot, in the interests of the public service, be granted, an authority competent to grant leave should, in deciding which application should be granted, take into account the following considerations :—

(a) The Government servants who can, for the time being, best be spared.

(b) The amount of leave due to the various applicants.

(c) The amount and character of the service rendered by each applicant since he last returned from leave.

(d) The fact that any such applicant was compulsorily recalled from his last leave.

(e) The fact that any such applicant has been refused leave in the public interests.

Grant of leave to a Government servant who is unlikely to be fit to return to duty.

233. When a medical committee in India has reported that there is no reasonable prospect that a particular Government servant will ever be fit to return to duty, leave should not necessarily be refused to such Government servant. It may be granted, if due, by a competent authority on the following conditions :—

(a) If the medical committee is unable to say with certainty that the Government servant will never again be fit for service in India, leave not exceeding twelve months in all may be granted. Such leave should not be extended without further reference to a medical committee.

(b) If the medical committee declares the Government servant to be completely and permanently incapacitated for further service in India, the Government servant should, except as provided in clause (c) below, be invalided from the service, either on the expiration of the leave already granted to him, if he is on leave when examined by the committee, or, if he is not on leave, from the date of the committee's report.

(c) A Government servant declared by a committee to be completely and permanently incapacitated may, in special cases, be granted leave, or an extension of leave, not exceeding six months as debited against the leave account, if such leave be due to him. Special circumstances justifying such treatment may be held to exist when the Government servant's breakdown in health has been caused in and by Government service, or when the Government servant has taken a comparatively small amount of leave during his service or will complete at an early date an additional year's service for pension.

Grant of leave to a Government servant who ought to be dismissed.

234. Leave should not be granted to a Government servant who ought at once to be dismissed or removed from Government service for misconduct or general incapacity.

Procedure when a Government servant is not allowed to return to duty after leave.

235. If, in a case not covered by rule 234, an authority competent to remove a Government servant from service decides, before such Government servant departs from India on leave, that he will not be permitted to return to duty in India, it must inform him to that effect before he leaves India.

236. If, when a Government servant is about to depart from India on leave, it is necessary to consider the propriety of removing him for incapacity, whether mental or physical, which is of such a nature that it is impossible to decide, before he leaves India, whether it will be permanent or temporary; or if for any reason it is considered inexpedient that a Government servant on leave should return to India; a full report of the circumstances must be made by the Governor-General in Council to the India Office in time to enable the Secretary of State in Council to take any necessary measures before the Government servant would in the ordinary course be permitted to return to duty. The report should in any case reach the India Office at latest three months before the end of the Government servant's leave. Local administrations must communicate the facts to the Governor-General in Council in time to permit of the punctual submission of such report.

Cases in which a copy of the medical statement of a case must be forwarded to the High Commissioner.

237. When leave on medical certificate has been granted to a Government servant or, in the case of a military officer in civil employ, when the grant of such leave has appeared in orders, if such Government servant or military officer proposes to spend his leave in Europe, North Africa, America or the West Indies, the Governor-General in Council or the local administration, as the case may be, must without delay forward a copy of the medical statement of the case to the High Commissioner for India.

Section V.—Departure on leave.

Procedure when departing on leave out of India.

238. Every Government servant proceeding on leave out of India should procure from the audit officer and take with him a copy of the memorandum of information issued for the guidance of Government servants proceeding on leave out of India. If the leave has been granted on a medical certificate, he must take a copy of the medical statement of his case also.

239. A Government servant taking leave out of India must, if so required by the audit officer, report his embarkation through that officer to the authority which granted his leave, in such form as the Auditor General may prescribe.

Section VI.—Return from leave.

Report of return.

240. A gazetted Government servant, on return from leave, must report his return to the Government under which he is serving. A chaplain must report his return to the Bishop of his diocese also.

241. A Government servant returning from leave is not entitled, in the absence of specific orders to that effect, to resume as a matter of course the post which he held before going on leave. He must report his return to duty and await orders.

DIVISION XII.

Leave procedure in the case of a Government servant on leave out of India.

[Rules made by the Governor-General in Council under fundamental rule 74 (b).]

Report of arrival in the United Kingdom.

242. A Government servant taking leave in the United Kingdom must report his arrival in that country to the High Commissioner for India.

Payment of Leave-salary.

Payment at the Home Treasury.

243. No Government servant can begin to draw leave-salary from the Home Treasury until he has presented to the High Commissioner a leave-salary certificate in such form as the Auditor General may prescribe.

244. Leave-salary is issued from the Home Treasury monthly in arrear on the first day of each calendar month.

245. Payment will be made, at the option of the Government servant drawing leave-salary, by any of the following methods:—

(a) To the Government servant himself on his personal application.

(b) To his banker or other agent, duly authorised under power-of-attorney, on production of a life certificate duly filled up and executed. In cases where the banker has guaranteed the Secretary of State or the High Commissioner against loss consequent upon dispensation with proof of existence, a life certificate is unnecessary.

NOTE.—A supply of life certificate forms may be obtained from the High Commissioner.

(c) To the presenter of a payment form, comprising a receipt and a life certificate, both duly completed by the Government servant.

NOTE.—If the Government servant intimates to the High Commissioner the election of this method, he will be regularly supplied with the requisite payment form as the due date of issue approaches.

Payment in a Colony.

246. No Government servant can begin to draw leave-salary from a Colonial treasury until a warrant in form I has been issued in his favour. Such warrants will be issued in triplicate. The original, bearing the Government servant's signature, will be forwarded by the issuing authority to the Colonial authority concerned; the duplicate to the High Commissioner; and the triplicate will be retained by the Government servant. Payment of leave-salary will not be made unless the Colonial authority is in possession of the original and the Government servant of the triplicate of the warrant.

247. Each payment of leave-salary must be endorsed upon the back of both the original warrant and the triplicate, and an acknowledgment of receipt must be endorsed by the Government servant upon the back of both copies.

248. When no space for the entry of endorsements of payment remains upon the back of a warrant, or when a warrant is lost or destroyed, a fresh warrant will be issued by the original issuing authority on the application of the Government servant submitted through the Colonial disbursing officer.

249. If the transfer from one Colony to another of payment of the leave-salary of a Government servant is sanctioned by the Colonial authorities, such transfer must be reported by the Government servant to the Governor-General in Council and to the High Commissioner.

(c) A transfer sanctioned under clause (a) or (b) of this rule must be reported by the Government servant to the Governor-General in Council.

Extension of leave.

General rule.

251. A Government servant absent from India on leave who desires an extension of his leave must make application for such extension not less than three months before the expiry of his leave. An application made within three months from such expiry will not be considered unless special reasons for consideration exist.

Applications by Government servants on leave in Europe, North Africa, America or the West Indies.

252. An application for extension of leave by a Government servant on leave in Europe, North Africa, America or the West Indies must be made to the High Commissioner. Unless the extension is desired on medical grounds or is for a period of not more than fourteen days, the application must be accompanied by evidence that the Government on whose cadre the Government servant is borne has been consulted and has no objection to the extension. It is in exceptional cases only that the High Commissioner will grant an extension without the production of such evidence, and then for such period only as may be necessary to obtain the orders of the Government concerned, which will be sought by telegraph at the applicant's expense.

253. If a Government servant on leave in any of the localities named in rule 252 desires, on medical grounds, an extension for a longer period than fourteen days, he must satisfy the Medical Board at the India Office of the necessity for the extension. In order to do so, he must, as a general rule, appear at the India Office for examination by the Board; but in special cases, and particularly if he be residing at a distance of more than sixty miles from London, a certificate in a form to be obtained from the High Commissioner may be accepted if signed by two medical practitioners. A certificate obtained outside the United Kingdom and signed by foreigners must be attested by consular or other authority as bearing the signatures of qualified medical practitioners.

254. If a Government servant on leave in any of the localities named in rule 252 desires, on grounds other than medical, an extension of leave granted on medical certificate, he must satisfy the Medical Board at the India Office, by the procedure described in rule 253, that he has recovered his health.

Application by Government servants on leave elsewhere out of India.

255. An application for extension of leave by a Government servant on leave out of India elsewhere than in the localities named in rule 252 must be made to the authority which granted the leave.

256. If an application made under rule 255 is for an extension of leave on medical certificate, it must be accompanied by a certificate from two medical practitioners in the following form:—

"We hereby certify that we have carefully examined C. D. of the .... who is suffering from..............................and we declare upon our honour that, according to the best of our judgment and belief, he is at present unfit for duty in India, and that it is absolutely necessary for the recovery of his health that his present leave, which will expire in India on................, shall be extended by................ months/weeks."

Date..........................

Place..........................

The certificate must describe in full detail the nature of the disease and the present condition of the Government servant. If it be signed by foreigners, it must be attested by consular or other authority as bearing the signatures of qualified medical practitioners.

Certificate of leave necessary before extension can be granted to Government servant to whom a leave-salary certificate has not been issued.

257. An extension of leave will not be granted by the High Commissioner to a Government servant to whom no leave-salary certificate has been issued, or who has exchanged his leave-salary certificate for a warrant before leaving India, unless he produces a certificate of leave in form II.

Return from leave.

Permission to return.

258. A Government servant who is required, by or under fundamental rule 71, to produce a medical certificate of fitness before returning to duty, must obtain permission to return to duty before so returning.

259. If the Government servant desiring to return is on leave in any of the localities named in rule 252, his application must be made to the High Commissioner and he must satisfy the Medical Board at the India Office of his fitness to return at least two months before the expiry of his leave. In order to do so, he must follow the procedure prescribed in rule 253. When the Medical Board has been satisfied, the High Commissioner will grant permission to return.

260. If the Government servant desiring to return is on leave out of India elsewhere than in the localities named in rule 252, his application must be made to the authority which granted his leave and must be accompanied by a certificate of fitness in the prescribed form.

261. Permission to return cannot be granted to a Government servant to whom no leave-salary certificate has been issued, or who has exchanged his leave-salary certificate for a warrant before leaving India, until he produces a certificate of leave in form II.

Last pay certificate.

262. Before returning to duty, a Government servant on leave in Europe must obtain a last-pay certificate from the High Commissioner. A last-pay certificate cannot be granted to a Government servant to whom no leave-salary certificate has been issued unless he produces a certificate of leave in form II. A Government servant who has drawn his leave-salary on a warrant must, on return to India, deliver to the audit officer his copy of the warrant, which will serve as a last-pay certificate.

266. A Government servant serving in a vacation department shall be considered to have availed himself of a vacation or a portion of a vacation unless he has been required, by general or special order of a higher authority, to perform duty of any kind during such vacation or portion of a vacation; provided that, if he has been prevented by such an order from enjoying more than fifteen days of the vacation, he shall be considered to have availed himself of no portion of the vacation.

Extent of leave.

271. Except as provided in rule 272, the amount of hospital leave which may be granted to a Government servant is limited to three months on average pay in any period of three years. Hospital leave on half average pay counts, for the purpose of this limit, as half the amount of leave on average pay.

272. The amount of hospital leave which may be granted by the Railway Board to railway subordinates injured while on duty is unlimited, and the Board may delegate to Agents of State Railways such powers in this connection as it may think fit.

Combination with other leave.

(b) It may be granted during the recess by the head of the party or office to which the Government servant belongs: provided, in the case of a menial, that the officer granting the leave considers it desirable to re-employ the menial in the ensuing season.

(c) It may be granted at times other than the recess, for not more than six months at a time, by Superintendents in charge of circles or the Superintendent of the Trigonometrical Survey, provided that the leave is granted in the interests of Government and not at the Government servant's own request; and leave so granted may in special cases be extended by the Surveyor General up to a maximum of one year in all. If, however, a Government servant dies while on departmental leave, his leave-salary up to the date of his death will be paid to his heirs. Amount of leave-salary.

280. Departmental leave does not count as duty and will be debited to the leave account as though it were leave on half average pay. Effect on leave account.

283. When a Government servant subject to these rules holds a post in which the Surveyor General considers that he is unlikely to be eligible for departmental leave in future, the Surveyor General may, by special order in writing, declare that, with effect from such date, not being earlier than the Government servant's last return from departmental leave, as the Surveyor General may fix, any balance of leave at debit in the Government servant's leave account shall be cancelled. All leave earned after such date will be credited as due in the Government servant's leave account, and all leave taken after such date, including departmental leave, if any, will be debited in it. Leave taken under rule 285 is not an interruption of duty for the purpose of this rule.

DIVISION XIX.

Amount of joining time admissible.

(Rules made by the Governor-General in Council under fundamental rule 106.)

294. In cases involving a necessary change of station, the joining time allowed to a Government servant is subject to a maximum of 30 days. Six days are allowed for preparation and, in addition, a period to cover the actual journey calculated as follows:—

(d) Travel by road not exceeding five miles to or from a railway station at the beginning or end of a journey does not count for joining time.

(e) A Government servant whose pay does not exceed Rs. 100 is not ordinarily expected to travel by motor-car or horse-drawn conveyance plying for public hire, and his joining time is calculated accordingly.

(f) A Sunday does not count as a day for the purpose of the calculations in this rule, but Sundays are included in the maximum period of 30 days.

299. If a Government servant takes leave while in transit from one post to another, the period which has elapsed since he handed over charge of his old post must be included in his leave, unless the leave is taken on medical certificate. In the latter case, the period may be treated as joining time.

300. If a Government servant is appointed to a new post while on leave of less than four months' duration, his joining time will be calculated from his old station or from the place in which he received the order of appointment, whichever calculation will entitle him to the less joining time.

301. A competent authority may in any case extend the joining time admissible under these rules, provided that the general spirit of the rules is observed.

Special concessions.

302. Within the prescribed maximum of 30 days, a competent authority may, on such conditions as it thinks fit, grant to a Government servant a longer period of joining time than is admissible under the rules in the following circumstances;—

(a) when the Government servant has been unable to use the ordinary mode of travelling or, notwithstanding due diligence on his part, has spent more time on the journey than is allowed by the rules; or

(d) when such extension is considered necessary for the public convenience or for the saving of such public expenditure as is caused by unnecessary or purely formal transfers; or

(e) when the rules have in any particular case operated harshly; as, for example, when a Government servant has through no fault on his part missed a steamer or fallen sick on the journey.

The concession prescribed by rule 303 is not admissible to a non-gazetted Government servant in superior service in Persia or the Persian Gulf on pay not exceeding Rs. 400, if his departure on leave necessitates the importation of a substitute from India to fill a vacancy extending over less than three months exclusive of the joining time calculated under rule 304.

(c) For convenience of reference, cases in which the Finance Department has declared, under fundamental rule 7, that its consent may be presumed to have been given to the exercise by a Department of the Government of India of powers conferred by the fundamental rules upon a local Government have been included as delegations in both appendices.

(b) The nature of each power delegated is shown in column 3 of the appendices. The delegation extends to the power so specified only, and not to any other power conferred by the rule quoted in column 2.

(c) If any power conferred upon a local Government or a competent authority by the fundamental or the supplementary rules, as the case may be, is not shown in the appendices, it is to be understood that such power is not delegated to any authority subordinate to the Governor General in Council.

(d) Any power delegated by either appendix to a head of a department may be exercised by a Chief Commissioner, a political resident of the first class, a Department of the Government of India or the Railway Board.

(e) Nothing contained in appendices II and III will operate to restrict powers conferred upon any authority by other rules made under the Act.

(f) The Finance Department has declared, under fundamental rule 7, that its consent may be presumed to have been given to the exercise by the Railway Department of any power under the fundamental rules which is shown as conceded to that department in the schedule of the powers of the Government of India in the Railway Department in railway matters, whether or not such power is scheduled in appendices II and III.

APPENDIX I.

(Orders issued by the Governor-General in Council under fundamental rule 114.)

The Governor-General in Council is pleased to issue, under fundamental rule 114, the following orders regulating the amount of remuneration which may be sanctioned by a local Government for a Government servant transferred to foreign service in an Indian State :—

1. When the transfer of a Government servant to foreign service in an Indian State is sanctioned, the pay which he shall receive in such service must be precisely specified in the order sanctioning the transfer. If it is intended that he shall receive any remuneration, or enjoy any concession of pecuniary value, in addition to his pay proper, the exact nature of such remuneration or concession must be similarly specified. No Government servant will be permitted to receive any remuneration or enjoy any concession which is not so specified ; and if the order is silent as to any particular remuneration or concession, it must be assumed that the intention is that it shall not be enjoyed.

2. No order of transfer to foreign service shall be issued by a local Government, without previous consultation, with its Finance Department. It shall be open to that department to prescribe, by general or special order, cases in which its consent may be presumed to have been given.

3. The following two general principles must be observed by local Governments in sanctioning the conditions of transfer :—

(a) The terms granted to the Government servant must not be such as to impose an unnecessarily heavy burden on the Indian State which employs him.

(b) The terms granted must not be so greatly in excess of the remuneration which the Government servant would receive in Government service as to render foreign service appreciably more attractive than Government service.

4. Provided that the two principles laid down in paragraph 3 above are observed, a local Government may sanction the grant of the following concessions by the foreign employer. Such concessions must not be sanctioned, as a matter of course, but in those cases only in which the local Government considers that circumstances justify their grant :—

(a) The payment of contributions toward leave-salary and pension under the ordinary rules regulating such contributions.

(b) The grant of travelling allowance under the ordinary travelling allowance rules of the local Government or under the local rules of the Darbar, and of permanent travelling allowance, conveyance allowance and horse allowance.

(c) The use of State tents, boats and transport on tour; provided that this is accompanied by a corresponding reduction in the amount of travelling allowance admissible.

(d) The grant of free residential accommodation, which may be furnished, in cases in which the local Government considers this to be desirable, on such scale as may seem proper to the local Government.

(e) The use of State motors, carriages and animals.

5. The grant of any concession not specified in paragraph 4 above requires the sanction of the Governor-General in Council.

Memorandum explanatory of each rule contained in the Supplementary Rules.

Rule 1.—This sets forth the extent of application of the rules, and calls for little explanation. It may be mentioned, however, that Government servants who are under the administrative control of a Governor-in Council acting as the agent of the Governor-General in Council will be bound by such supplementary rules as the Governor in Council may make under the fundamental rules. They will be regarded as under his administrative control for the purposes of fundamental rule 4.

Rule 2.—

Clause (1).—The definition in this clause is taken without change, other than verbal, from article 13 of the Civil Service Regulations.

Clause (2).—This is a new definition, introduced for the purpose of rule 292.

Clause (3).—This new definition replaces that of article 15, Civil Service Regulations, in view of the more definite responsibility for audit placed upon the Auditor General by the rules made under section 96-D of the Government of India Act.

Clause (4).—The definition of "camp equipage" is taken unchanged from article 19, Civil Service Regulations.

Clause (5).—This definition also is taken without change, other than verbal, from article 19, Civil Service Regulations.

Clause (6).—This is a new definition, inserted for drafting purposes to facilitate the indication, in the body of the rules, of powers which may possibly be delegated.

Clause (7).—The only respect in which this definition differs from that contained in article 23, Civil Service Regulations, is its inclusion of the words "for all purposes." These have been inserted to make it quite plain that the definition is applicable to the word "day" as used in all rules, including such rules as 61, 74(c), 82(b) (ii) and 185(a).

Clause (8).—The definition of "family" is taken from article 25, as modified by rule 4 under article 1094(A), Civil Service Regulations. The limitation to one wife follows an existing ruling of the Government of India.

Clause (9)—The definition of "Finance Department" is included for drafting purposes only.

Clause (10).—This definition replaces the cumbrous wording of article 29-A, Civil Service Regulations, and leaves it to the Government of India to prescribe a new list of heads of departments.

Clause (11).—This is a new definition, required for the purposes of rules 61 and 127-129.

Clause (12).—This also is a new definition, inserted for the purpose of such rules as those contained in Division IX of the rules.

Clause (13).—This definition replaces that contained in article 396, Civil Service Regulations. With the new wording, a list on the lines of part I of appendix 7-A to the Civil Service Regulations will still be necessary; but part II of the appendix will, it is hoped, become unnecessary.

Clause (14).—This is a new definition, inserted for the purposes of rules 236-237.

Clause (15).—This is a new definition, inserted for the purpose of rule 291.

Clause (16)—is the definition of article 44, Civil Service Regulations, with the omission of the examples contained in that article.

Clause (17).—See note on clause (13) above.

Clause (18).—This is a new definition. It may be noted that the "change of headquarters" contemplated by sub-clause (b) of the clause is a real change. Movement with the headquarters of a Government from a plains to a hill station is not a transfer.

Rule 3.—This repeats, with slight changes in wording, the certificate now contained in article 49, Civil Service Regulations.

Rule 4.—The main portion of this rule follows article 49, Civil Service Regulations, in prescribing particular officers who may sign a medical certificate. Proviso (1) is taken from the note under article 50, and proviso (2) follows the principle laid down in the second part of that article.

Rule 5.—This repeats the principle which now appears in article 62(c) (i) of the Civil Service Regulations.

Rule 6—This rule replaces the rather complicated rules which are now scattered over articles 62, 267 and 268 of the Civil Service Regulations. The regulations have been somewhat liberalised.

Rule 7.—The portion of this rule which governs drawal on leave is taken unchanged from article 268(a), Civil Service Regulations. The portion governing drawal during temporary transfer is an extension of the concession made by article 62(b).

Rule 8—reproduces the substance of a portion of note 3 under article 62, Civil Service Regulations.

Rule 9—is an introductory rule only.

Rule 10—sets forth a general principle which underlies the existing rules on the subject.

Rule 11—contains the general principle underlying article 72(c), Civil Service Regulations.

Rule 12—contains the substance of provisos (1) and (2) of article 74(a), Civil Service Regulations.

Rule 13—contains the substance of article 74(b), Civil Service Regulations.

Rule 14—repeats the principle of note 1 to article 74, Civil Service Regulations.

Rules 15 and 16—apply to all classes of Government servants the general principles underlying paragraph 156 of the Public Works Department Code.

Rule 17.—This is a re-draft of article 1002 of the Civil Service Regulations. The following changes require special mention :—

(a) The word "grade" has been substituted for "class" in order to avoid the existing confusion between a class of railway or steamer accommodation and a class of officer.

(b) The reference to maximum pay has been omitted, as it has already been held not to apply to Government servants on time-scales of pay, while progressive pay ceased to exist with the introduction of the fundamental rules. The note under the rule safeguards the interests of present holders of posts on progressive pay.

(c) All special classifications on grounds other than those based on pay and all special concessions have been omitted from the rule and left to be treated as orders issued under rule 18.

Rule 18.—This rule has been inserted to cover the special classifications now made in article 1002 and appendix 18 of the Civil Service Regulations. The condition at the end of the rule is necessary in order to make delegations legitimate under fundamental rule 6 read with fundamental rule 44.

Rule 19—contains the substance of article 1007, Civil Service Regulations, with changes in wording to suit the wording of the fundamental rules.

Rule 20—contains the substance of article 1005, with "competent authority" substituted for "local Government," and the proviso omitted because it states an obvious fact. The insertion of the condition, that the grade should be fixed with due regard to the Government servant's status, is necessary for the reason stated in the note on rule 18.

Rule 21.—The first part states a fact which is not explicitly set forth in the Civil Service Regulations. The second part is taken from the note under the heading of Chapter LII, Civil Service Regulations.

Rule 22.—The second part of this rule is taken from the first part of article 1044, Civil Service Regulations. The first part provides for a definite power to grant permanent travelling allowances in certain circumstances.

Rule 23—is taken from the the first part of article 1047, Civil Service Regulations, with an addition to provide for the new conditions introduced by supplementary rule 6.

Rule 24—contains the substance of that part of article 1009, Civil Service Regulations, which concerns permanent travelling allowance.

Rule 25—contains the substance of article 1074, Civil Service Regulations, with the addition of a definite provision for the power of sanctioning conveyance allowances.

Rule 26.—The substantive portion of this rule is taken from article 1076(a), Civil Service Regulations. The proviso is intended to cover the restrictions which are ordinarily imposed upon Government servants drawing motor-car allowances.

Rule 27.—The first of this rule is taken from article 1076(b), Civil Service Regulations. The second part provides for the new conditions introduced by supplementary rule 6.

Rule 28—reproduces the substance of article 1078, Civil Service Regulations, with an increase in the maximum rates of allowance admissible to suit changed conditions of travelling.

Rule 29—contains a definition which is not actually laid down in the Civil Service Regulations.

Rule 30—is reproduced from article 996, Civil Service Regulations.

Rule 31—contains the substance of article 997, Civil Service Regulations, with "competent authority" substituted for the authorities to whom power is actually delegated by that article.

Rule 32—follows the lines of article 998, Civil Service Regulations.

Rule 33—is a new rule, introductory to the following sub-sections of the rules.

Rule 34—contains the substance of article 1011, Civil Service Regulations, re-arranged and re-worded in places, with notes 1 and 4 under that article.

Rule 35—is a general rule which will cover all the exceptions and concessions under article 1011, Civil Service Regulations.

Rule 36—is reproduced from article 1012, Civil Service Regulations.

Rule 37—contains the substance of note 2 under article 1011, Civil Service Regulations.

Rule 38—contains the substance of note 3 under article 1011, Civil Service Regulations.

Rule 39—contains a saving reference to rule 84.

Rule 40—is article 1016, Civil Service Regulations, re-arranged.

Rule 41—is taken from article 1017, Civil Service Regulations, with the omission of the double daily allowance given to a Government servant of the fourth grade, which is taken to its proper place, as a daily allowance, in rule 58. The second paragraph of the rule incorporates a recent ruling of the Government of India.

Rule 42—contains the substance of article 1020, Civil Service Regulations.

Rule 43—is taken from article 1031, Civil Service Regulations.

Rule 44—is an expanded version of article 1028, Civil Service Regulations.

Rule 45—is article 1033, Civil Service Regulations, re-worded.

Rule 46.—Clause (a) is reproduced from article 1034, Civil Service Regulations. Clause (b) contains the substance of a recent order of the Government of India.

Rule 47—is intended to cover exceptions such as those set forth in article 1036, Civil Service Regulations.

Rule 48—is reproduced from article 1035, Civil Service Regulations.

Rule 49—is a new definition, based mainly upon the wording of article 1052 (a), Civil Service Regulations.

Rule 50—states a general principle underlying article 1052, Civil Service Regulations.

Rule 51.—Clause (a) of this rule repeats the substance of article 1063, Civil Service Regulations, and the note under the rule safeguards the interests of present holders of posts on progressive pay. Clause (b) contains the substance of a recent order of the Government of India.

Rule 52—covers the exceptions under articles 1063 and 1064, Civil Service Regulations. The condition is inserted for the reason stated in the note on rule 18.

Rule 53—is a new rule which makes plain an existing fact which is not specifically stated in the Civil Service Regulations.

Rule 54—also is a new rule which requires no explanation.

Rule 55—embodies the principle underlying article 1021, as well as part of article 995, Civil Service Regulations.

Rule 56—contains the substance of articles 1139 and 1140, Civil Service Regulations. The conditions on which concessions may be given are not specified in the rule. They will be specified in the orders of delegation in case any delegation is made.

Rule 57—is reproduced from article 1037 (a), Civil Service Regulations.

Rule 58.—The main portion of this rule has been taken out of article 1017, Civil Service Regulations, in which the double daily allowance was incorrectly classed as mileage allowance. The rule has been amplified to make it clear that more than double daily allowance may not in any circumstances be drawn. This point was left in uncertainty by the wording of the Civil Service Regulations.

Rule 59—contains the substance of article 1160, Civil Service Regulations.

Rule 60—replaces the first part of article 1041, Civil Service Regulations, with the substitution of "sphere of duty" for "limits of ordinary jurisdiction", which was hardly appropriate in a rule which deals with menials as well as higher classes of Government servants.

Rule 61—This definition of "tour" is based upon article 1038 of the Civil Service Regulations. The note under the rule is taken from exception 1 under article 1055.

Rule 62—is a new rule, which calls for no explanation.

Rule 63—is based upon the second part of article 1041, Civil Service Regulations.

Rule 64—contains the substance of article 1039, Civil Service Regulations. Appendix 20 will be replaced by lists of Government servants in whose case declarations have been made under this rule, which will be maintained by audit officers.

Rule 65—sets forth, rather more fully, a statement of fact which is now contained in article 1038, Civil Service Regulations.

Rule 66—contains the substance of article 1042, Civil Service Regulations.

Rule 67—is taken from articles 1044 and 1045, Civil Service Regulations.

Rule 68—is article 1046, Civil Service Regulations, as altered by a recent decision of the Government of India.

Rule 69—is a new rule, which states a principle which underlies the rules in the Civil Service Regulations.

Rule 70—reproduces part of article 1052, Civil Service Regulations, and the whole of article 1053. The last part of the rule settles a vexed point in the light of actual practice. The question is whether, when a Government servant travels from his headquarters, A, to a point B, and thence passes by railway back through A to another point C, the journey from the original departure from A until the final return to A from C is all one journey. Under the new rule, one journey will end and another begin when the Government servant passes through A on his way to C.

Rule 71—contains the substance of the first part of article 1055, Civil Service Regulations.

Rule 72—is taken from article 1052 (a), Civil Service Regulations.

Rule 73—reproduces the substance of article 1056, Civil Service Regulations. It is not considered necessary to reproduce in the rule the example contained in the last paragraph of the article, which is covered by the general provision "on such conditions as it thinks fit".

Rule 74—reproduces the substance of article 1057, Civil Service Regulations.

Rule 75—contains the substance of article 1066, Civil Service Regulations. The limitation to the case of Government servants whose pay does not exceed Rs. 200 is reproduced as a condition of delegation in appendix III.

Rule 76.—Clause (a) of this rule contains the substance of article 1065 (i) and (ii), Civil Service Regulations, and of rule 2 under them, with the omission of the reference to a non-gazetted ministerial or menial servant, which is taken into rule 77.

The proviso and note under the clause incorporate the substance of certain rulings of the Government of India which now appear in provincial supplements only.

Clause (b) contains the substance of article 1065 (iii) (1), Civil Service Regulations, and of the note under it. The proviso in the note is not repeated, as it is considered that a road journey cannot be said to be "combined" with a rail or steamer journey unless it is made in direct continuation of it.

Rule 77—repeats part of article 1065 (ii), Civil Service Regulations, and rule 1 under that article.

Rule 78.—In this rule are collected the various provisions relating to the travelling allowance drawn on tour by Government servants in inferior service.

Clause (a) of the rule is taken from article 1073, Civil Service Regulations.

Clause (b) makes a reference to the concessions allowed by rule 58.

Rule 83—is a re-arrangement of rule 1 under article 1067, Civil Service Regulations.

Rule 84.—This is article 1015, Civil Service Regulations, re-arranged and re-worded in places. The "Consulting Engineer's Department" is changed to "Government Inspectors' Department" in view of a change of nomenclature. Exception (i) under clause (b) of the rule is taken from the foot-note on page 290 of the Civil Service Regulations. Exception (ii) reproduces clause (c) (i) of article 1015, with the addition of two provisos designed to remove existing anomalies. Exception (iii) is clause (c) (ii) and exception (iv) clause (c) (iii) of the article.

Rule 85—reproduces the substance of articles 1068 and 1069, with a change of titles to represent existing nomenclature.

Rule 86—contains the substance of article 1072 (a), Civil Service Regulations.

Rule 87—is a re-arrangement of article 1070 (a), Civil Service Regulations. The table in that article is not reproduced in the rule, but will be treated as prescribed by the Governor-General in Council under the rule.

Rule 88—repeats the substance of article 1071, Civil Service Regulations.

Rule 89—provides for the cases now shown in appendix 27 of the Civil Service Regulations. The entries in that schedule which concern Government servants subordinate to the Governor-General in Council will be treated as covered by orders made by the Governor-General in Council, as a competent authority, under this rule.

Rule 90—repeats the provisions of the latter part of article 1055, with an obviously equitable extension to cover the cost of journeys by all kinds of public conveyance.

Rule 91—combines the provisions of articles 1054 and 1059, Civil Service Regulations.

Rules 92 and 93—are taken from article 1158 and a recent re-draft of appendix 30 to the Civil Service Regulations.

Rule 100—is reproduced from rule 1 (a) of part II of appendix 30 to the Civil Service Regulations.

Rule 101.—Part III of appendix 30 contains varying rules for different officers who are entitled to reserve compartments. This rule replaces these varying conditions by one uniform condition, based upon that now applicable, among others, to Secretaries to the Government of India.

Rule 102.—This is a new rule, but it sets forth an existing concession.

Rule 103—covers a concession now given by rule 1 (d) of part III of appendix 30 to the Civil Service Regulations.

Rule 104—is a new rule which embodies an existing practice.

Rules 105 and 106—embody the principles underlying article 1083, Civil Service Regulations.

Rule 107—is reproduced from article 1084, Civil Service Regulations.

Rule 108—is taken from article 1085, Civil Service Regulations, with an addition to make it clear that the rule applies to journeys in Indian waters only.

Rule 109—contains the relevant portion of article 1086, Civil Service Regulations.

Rule 110—is taken from rule 8 of part I of appendix 30 to the Civil Service Regulations.

Rule 111—sets forth, in simpler terms, the real principle underlying article 1093, Civil Service Regulations.

Rule 112—sets forth specifically a condition which underlies the existing rules, though it is not expressly stated in the Civil Service Regulations.

Rule 113—applies to cases of first appointment generally a principle which is specifically laid down for one case in article 1083, Civil Service Regulations.

Rule 114—contains the substance of the first part of article 1094 and of article 1100 of the Civil Service Regulations. An extension has been made to allow, in special cases, the grant of travelling allowance to a Government servant transferred at his own request.

Rule 115—combines part of article 1094 with article 1101, Civil Service Regulations.

Rule 116—contains a re-arrangement of the main provisions of article 1094, Civil Service Regulations. The second part of clause (b) (iii) of the rule embodies a recent decision of the Government of India.

Rule 117—is taken from rule 8 of part I of appendix 30 to the Civil Service Regulations.

Rule 118—is taken from rule 1 (ii) of part II of appendix 30, as interpreted by the Government of India.

Rule 119—is reproduced from article 1095, read with article 1097, Civil Service Regulations, with an addition to cover an existing concession to families.

Rule 120—is reproduced from article 1096, Civil Service Regulations.

Rule 121—contains the relevant portion of article 1098 A., Civil Service Regulations.

Rule 122—is reproduced from article 1094 (F), Civil Service Regulations.

Rule 123—is article 1103, Civil Service Regulations, re-worded.

Rule 124—takes the place of article 1104, Civil Service Regulations. It is intended to cover three different cases:—

(a) Where short leave is sanctioned for a Government servant after he has received orders of transfer, but before he has left his old station.

(b) Where short leave is sanctioned for a Government servant while he is actually in transit from the old station to the new.

(c) Where a Government servant is transferred while he is actually on short leave.

In all these cases he will be permitted, as at present, to draw full travelling allowance under this section of the rules

Rule 125—This rule is taken from article 1106, Civil Service Regulations, with an extension to all kinds of leave of a concession allowed by the article in the case of leave on medical certificate only. This rule will allow a Government servant travelling allowance for himself and family for the part of the journey already accomplished. Under rule 126 he will recover the cost of transporting his kit also to the new station.

Rule 126—is reproduced from article 1107, Civil Service Regulations.

Rule 127—is article 1110, Civil Service Regulations.

Rule 128—combines the provisions, other than audit instructions, which are contained in articles 1114 and 1115, Civil Service Regulations.

Rule 129—is article 1112, with the important difference that it omits the reference to the establishment accompanying an officer to a hill station. It has been decided to treat such establishments in future, for the purposes of rule 128, as required to travel to the hill station on duty.

Rule 130—combines, with some changes of wording to meet changed conditions, the relevant part of articles 1116, 1117 and 1118, Civil Service Regulations.

Rule 131—is reproduced from article 1119, Civil Service Regulations.

Rule 132—covers the note under article 1116, with an extension to cover the case of any non-compulsory examination.

Rule 142.—Clause (a) is reproduced from article 1127, Civil Service Regulations, with the omission of the reference to free passages, for which provision has been made in the fundamental rules themselves. Clause (b) has been inserted to bar a double claim to travelling allowance under two different rules for the same journey.

Rule 143—is taken from rule 2 under article 1127, Civil Service Regulations. As a result of a recent revision, rule 2 has been inadvertently so worded as to extend the privilege in question to Government servants other than the non-gazetted servants to whom the old article 1098 (now cancelled) applied; but this was not the intention, and the new rule has therefore been so drafted as to restore the old restriction.

Rule 144—is taken from appendix 6-A of the Civil Service Regulations.

Rule 145—is taken from paragraph 3 of the same appendix.

Rules 146 and 147—reproduce the substance of article 1121, Civil Service Regulations, with the usual substitution of "competent authority" for "Government of India" and "provincial Government".

Rule 157—is taken from the note under article 1136, Civil Service Regulations.

Rule 158—contains the substance of article 1137, Civil Service Regulations, with the substitution of "controlling officer" for the vague term "superior authority", and the omission of the administrative instructions in the latter part of the article.

Rule 159—is article 1137 B, Civil Service Regulations.

Rule 167—states a general sanction given by the Governor-General in Council under the principle stated in rule 168.

Rule 168.—With the revision of the main audit resolution, the Governor-General in Council has now full power to grant to any Government servant the right to reserve by requisition any available class of railway accommodation. This rule states this fact in connection with inspection carriages, and enumerates the cases in which the right to reserve such a carriage has been conceded.

Rule 169.—This rule similarly enumerates the cases in which the right to reserve a first class carriage of two compartments has been conceded.

Rule 170.—This rule brings up to date part III of appendix 30 to the Civil Service Regulations Several officers have been added; nomenclature has been corrected in several cases; and the general restriction based on the time or duration of the journey, which is at present applicable to the Educational and Sanitary Commissioners only, has been extended to all the officers concerned. It may be mentioned here, though not strictly relevant to the question of journeys by railway, that the concession of a reserved cabin to Secretaries to the Government of India travelling by steamer, which now figures in paragraph 1 (b) (ii) of part III of the appendix, has been intentionally omitted.

Rule 171.—extends to all officers enumerated in rules 168 and 169 a condition which at present applies to the Director, Intelligence Bureau, only.

Rule 172—leaves to be prescribed by the Railway Board the procedure to be followed in requisitioning accommodation, which is now laid down in part I of appendix 30 to the Civil Service Regulations.

Rule 173—is taken from rule 2 of part I of appendix 30, Civil Service Regulations.

Rule 175—is a new rule, which requires no explanation.

Rule 176—reproduces the substance of article 1013, Civil Service Regulations, and the notes under it.

Rule 177—is taken out of article 1044, Civil Service Regulations.

Rule 178—is reproduced from article 1014, Civil Service Regulations.

Rule 179—repeats a ruling of the Government of India, which has not yet been incorporated in the Civil Service Regulations.

Rule 180—reproduces the substance of article 1029, Civil Service Regulations.

Rule 181—reproduces the substance of article 1017A, Civil Service Regulations, with the addition of a ruling of the Government of India which has not been incorporated in the Regulations.

Rule 182—reproduces the substance of article 999 (1) of the Civil Service Regulations.

Rule 183—is clause (2) of article 999, Civil Service Regulations, with the usual substitution of "competent authority" for "local Government" and "head of an imperial department.

Rule 184—covers the exceptions now set forth in clauses (b), (d) and (e) of article 999-A, Civil Service Regulation. Those exceptions will be treated as made by declaration of the Governor-General in Council under this rule.

Rule 185—contains the substance of clause (a) of article 999-A, Civil Service Regulations.

Rule 186—is taken from the note under article 999 (1), Civil Service Regulations. The reference to a motor-car supplied by a local fund has been intentionally omitted.

Rule 187—is a new rule which requires no explanation.

Rule 188—contains the substance of article 1138 B (1), Civil Service Regulations, with an increase of daily allowance from Rs. 2 to Rs. 4½.

Rule 189—contains the substance of article 1003, Civil Service Regulations, re-worded in places, with an increase of daily allowance from Rs. 3 to Rs. 4½.

Rule 190—is reproduced from article 1004, Civil Service Regulations.

Rule 191—is taken from the second part of article 1159, Civil Service Regulations, with an amplification to cover an existing practice.

Rule 192—is taken from the first part of article 1159, Civil Service Regulations, with an extension of the principle involved to cover travelling allowances on all classes of journey and not on tour only.

Rule 193—reproduces article 1160, Civil Service Regulations.

Rule 194—is taken from article 1162, Civil Service Regulations. The exceptions in the article will be covered by rules of delegation.

Rule 195—is article 1161 of the Civil Service Regulations, somewhat amplified.

Rule 196.—This replaces article 815, Civil Service Regulations. Audit best knows what particulars are required, and has therefore been left to prescribe them.

Rule 197—reproduces the greater part of article 816, Civil Service Regulations, though a small portion of the article has been taken into rule 199. The form of service book has been left to be settled by audit, as the record is required almost entirely for pension purposes.

Of the exceptions under article 816, numbers (2), (3 A), (5) and (6) have been omitted from the rule, as they refer to establishments under provincial control.

Rule 198—contains the greater part of article 818, Civil Service Regulations, with the omission of its last sentence, which has been taken into rule 199.

Rule 199—contains the substance of part of article 816 and part of article 818, Civil Service Regulations.

Rule 200—repeats the substance of article 821, Civil Service Regulations.

Rule 201—repeats the substance of article 820, Civil Service Regulations, with a delegation to heads of departments of the power conferred by the article upon Local Governments.

Rule 202—contains the necessary part of article 819, Civil Service Regulations.

Rule 203—is re-drafted from article 822, Civil Service Regulations. Rule 2 under the article is not reproduced, in view of the fact that rule 2 (3) leaves it to the Auditor General to prescribe the "audit officers" who will make the necessary entries. The distinction between foreign service of the first and second kinds is also dropped, since the fundamental rules contemplate one kind only of foreign service.

Rule 204—is article 823, Civil Service Regulations, re-arranged.

Rule 205—contains the substance of article 817, Civil Service Regulations. The last sentence of that article, as also the whole of article 824, has been omitted, and will eventually be taken to its proper place in the pension rules.

Rule 206—reproduces clause (b) of article 841, of the Civil Service Regulations, with an addition to cover the case of special disability leave, the grant of which is reserved to the Governor-General in Council, as a local Government, under fundamental rules 6 (b) and 83.

Rule 207—is taken from article 841 (a) and (d), Civil Service Regulations.

Rule 208—covers the power of delegation given by article 841 (c), Civil Service Regulations.

Rule 209—is a re-arrangement of the latter part of the first paragraph of article 220, Civil Service Regulations. The re-draft includes the result of a number of decisions and rulings of the Government of India on points which are left doubtful by the wording of the old rule.

Rule 210—contains the substance of the exception in proviso (ii) to the first paragraph of article 220, with "competent authority" substituted, as usual, for "local Government."

Rule 211—contains the substance of the second and third paragraphs of article 220; the general exception at the beginning of the rule taking the place of the third paragraph.

Rule 212—prescribes a simple form of medical certificate of fitness to return to duty.

Rule 213—is based on the general principles underlying articles 831 and 833, Civil Service Regulations.

Rule 214.—This is a new rule. The form of leave account has been prescribed in the Auditor General's leave procedure rules.

Rule 215.—A new rule, laying down the responsibility for maintaining leave accounts.

Rule 216—is slightly altered from the wording of article 825, Civil Service Regulations. Appendix II to these rules defines the term "competent authority" for the purpose of fundamental rule 66 and thus specifies the authorities who may grant leave. These are clearly the authorities to whom applications for leave should be made.

Rule 217—contains the general rule underlying article 849, Civil Service Regulations.

Rule 218—contains the substance of clause (a) of article 861, Civil Service Regulations.

Rule 219—is taken from article 781, Civil Service Regulations.

Rule 220—repeats the substance of article 827 A, Civil Service Regulations.

Rule 221—repeats the substance of article 827 B, Civil Service Regulations.

Rule 222—is taken from article 828, Civil Service Regulations. The provision that the certificate must accompany the application, which appears in that article, has been omitted. It is not really required for this purpose. The original certificate is merely a preliminary to examination by a medical board, and it is the certificate of the board which actually qualifies the applicant for leave. An addition has been made to the rule to indicate that the statement of the case, to which the new rule refers, must be prepared by the officer granting the original certificate; and that the local Government, whose medical board will sit on the case, will prescribe the form of the statement.

Rule 223—is the first part of article 829, Civil Service Regulations, with some changes in wording. The only material change is the substitution for "the seat of the Government under which he is serving" of "the headquarters of the province in which the Government servant is serving." From the old wording it would literally follow that an employé of the Post Office Department serving in the Bombay Presidency would appear before a medical board in Delhi or Simla and not in Bombay; and this is not intended.

Rule 224—contains the second portion of article 829, Civil Service Regulations.

Rule 225—is taken from article 830, Civil Service Regulations, with the addition of the form of certificate from article 325.

Rule 226—is article 831, Civil Service Regulations, with unimportant changes of wording.

Rule 227—contains the substance of article 832, Civil Service Regulations.

Rule 228—contains the substance of article 833, Civil Service Regulations, with an addition at the end on the lines of article 832.

Rule 229—is the latter part of article 834, Civil Service Regulations.

Rule 230—is the former part of article 834, Civil Service Regulations.

Rule 231—is a new rule, laying down what is the actual practice at present, though it is not now prescribed in any rule of the Civil Service Regulations.

Rule 232—is taken from article 303, Civil Service Regulations, as revised in connection with the simplification of the leave rules.

Rule 233—contains the substance of the note under article 827 A, Civil Service Regulations. The only point in the re-draft calling for special notice is the classification of the leave which may be granted under clause (c) of the rule as leave not exceeding six months "as debited against the leave account." Under the old rules, a Government servant could be given privilege leave plus commuted furlough, if these were due to him, up to a total of six months, and this was equivalent to "leave for six months as debited against the leave account." If, however, he had nothing but ordinary furlough due to him, he could get six months only of such furlough. The revised wording involves, therefore, in certain cases an enhanced concession.

Rule 234—reproduces article 218, Civil Service Regulations.

Rule 235—contains the relevant part of article 216, Civil Service Regulations.

Rule 236—contains the substance of article 217, Civil Service Regulations.

Rule 237—contains the substance of articles 837 and 857 (a), Civil Service Regulations, with "High Commissioner" substituted for "Under Secretary of State."

Rule 238—is taken from articles 836 and 892, Civil Service Regulations.

Rule 239—is taken from article 222, Civil Service Regulations. A report of date of sailing will, however, be necessary in very few cases in future, as it will no longer be the rule that leave begins from the date of embarkation. The necessary form has been prescribed by the Auditor General in his leave procedure rules

Rule 240—contains the substance of articles 228 and 852, Civil Service Regulations. The latter part of the former article is obsolete.

Rule 241—contains the substance of article 226, Civil Service Regulations.

Rule 242—is taken from article 222, Civil Service Regulations, with the substitution of the High Commissioner for the Secretary of State.

Rule 243.—This is taken from articles 867 and 874, Civil Service Regulations, and covers the first part of article 836 also. The High Commissioner has been substituted for the Secretary of State, as he will in future pay leave-salary on behalf of the Government of India.

Rule 244—replaces the first part of article 869, Civil Service Regulations The old arrangements of quarterly calculations and rounded instalments will not be maintained in future.

Rule 245—replaces the second part of article 869, Civil Service Regulations. At the suggestion of the High Commissioner, the procedure has been modified in some respects.

Rule 246—contains the substance of the first part of article 889, Civil Service Regulations.

Rule 247—is the second part of article 889, Civil Service Regulations, amplified in accordance with existing practice.

Rule 248—contains the substance of the last part of article 889, Civil Service Regulations.

Rule 249—contains the relevant part of article 891, Civil Service Regulations, with the High Commissioner substituted for the Under Secretary of State.

Rule 250—provides for certain cases for which the old rules make no specific provision. It is considered unnecessary in this connection to provide for article 871 (b), Civil Service Regulations, as the procedure thereby prescribed follows necessarily from rules 243 and 246.

Rule 251—contains a regulation previously embodied in articles 299 (a) and 300, Civil Service Regulations.

Rule 252—contains the substance of the first paragraph of article 299 (a), Civil Service Regulations, and of article 299 (b), with the substitution of the High Commissioner for the Secretary of State. The rule makes no mention of commutation of leave, which ceased to exist, under that name, when the fundamental rules came into force. It is considered unnecessary to repeat in these rules the provision that the Government servant on leave must pay the cost of telegrams. The High Commissioner will see to this, and the fact will be mentioned in the memorandum of instructions to officers proceeding on leave. The note under article 299 (b) has been omitted for similar reasons.

Rule 253—contains the substance of the second paragraph of article 299 (a), Civil Service Regulations, read with article 838 (a).

Rule 254—contains the substance of the first part of the third paragraph of article 299 (a), Civil Service Regulations. The second part of that paragraph is omitted as it is considered to be unsuitable under the new leave rules.

Rule 255—is taken from the first part of article 300, Civil Service Regulations.

Rule 256—is article 838 (b), Civil Service Regulations, re-worded in places.

Rule 257—is taken from articles 872 and 873, Civil Service Regulations.

Rule 258.—The fact stated in this rule is nowhere in the Civil Service Regulations laid down as a general rule, but it follows as a matter of course from the provision in fundamental rule 71 for the production of a medical certificate.

Rule 259—contains the substance of the relevant portion of article 224, Civil Service Regulations, with the substitution of the High Commissioner for the India Office.

Rule 260—also follows as a matter of course from fundamental rule 71. Appendix II delegates the power of extending leave to the authority which granted it.

Rule 261—is taken from articles 872 and 873, Civil Service Regulations.

Rule 262.—"Leave-salary certificate" is the new title adopted by the Auditor-General in his leave procedure rules. The requirement of such a certificate is taken from article 886, Civil Service Regulations; that of a certificate of leave is obviously necessary before a last-pay certificate can be granted; and the delivery of a warrant is taken from article 890, Civil Service Regulations.

Rule 263.—The definition in this article is taken from article 271, Civil Service Regulations.

Rule 264—is the nearest approach to a comprehensive list of vacation departments which seems to be possible. The form of clause (a) of fundamental rule 82 makes some such list necessary.

Rule 265—provides for a decision in a case of doubt.

Rule 266—contains the general principles underlying articles 272 and 273, Civil Service Regulations, rather simplified in language. As there will, in future, be no specific application for privilege leave, the provision for certificates has been omitted. In practice, however, Government servants who do not take a vacation will have to prove the fact by some sort of certificate.

Rules 267 and 268—are a liberalisation of the rule in article 268 A, Civil Service Regulations, to meet the requirements of the International Labour Conference.

Rule 269—brings together in one rule the various classes of Government servants who are at present granted hospital leave under various articles of the Civil Service Regulations.

Clauses (a) and (b)—are taken from article 288, with the pay limit altered to a limit of rank.

Clause (c)—is taken from the same article, as revised in 1920. In this case, no suitable rank limit can be devised.

Clause (d)—comes from articles 287 and 288.

Clauses (e) and (f)—are taken from article 287.

Clause (g)—is taken from article 665.

Clause (h)—is taken from article 291, with an addition to bring out a fact which is only implied in the present rules.

Clauses (i) and (j)—are new additions to the list.

Clause (k)—comes from article 287.

Clause (l)—is taken from article 291.

In the following rules, uniform concessions are prescribed for all these classes of Government servant, with a single exception to cover the case of railway subordinates injured while on duty. The concessions are based upon those previously admissible to the majority of the Government servants concerned. In certain cases, this involves a reduction of existing privileges; but this is considered to be not inequitable, in view of the fact that any Government servant can in future take the leave which takes the place of "commuted furlough", if his application is supported by a medical certificate.

Rule 270—lays down a general rule as to the amount of leave-salary on hospital leave.

Rule 271—fixes a general maximum limit of hospital leave. See the note on rule 269.

Rule 272—is the one exception to the general rule that hospital leave will in future be granted on uniform terms to all classes of Government servant. It reproduces the provisions of item 242 in the schedule of powers of the Railway Department.

Rule 273.—The previous rules contained no specific provisions for combination of hospital leave with other leave. Such combination is necessary, in view of the arguments quoted in the note on rule 269, on which the standardisation of the hospital leave rules is based.

Rule 274—contains the substance of article 289, Civil Service Regulations. The reference to officers of the Marine Department has not been reproduced in the rule, since their pay is not debitable to civil estimates and the fundamental rules are therefore not applicable to them.

Rule 275—reproduces the substance of article 290, Civil Service Regulations, with the substitution of "full pay" for the now meaningless phrase "pay at harbour rates".

Rule 276—contains the substance of clauses (i) and (ii) and rule 2 of article 295, Civil Service Regulations. The clauses have been re-worded in rather more general terms.

Rule 277—read with rules 280 and 281, introduces a new principle with reference to departmental leave. It will in future be debited to the leave account as though it were leave on half average pay, though it will be given, if necessary, when no leave is due. Certain hard cases, which might result from the application of this new principle, will be obviated by rule 283.

Rule 278.—Clause (a) of this rule reproduces a principle underlying article 295, Civil Service Regulations. Clause (b) is taken from clause (ii) of that article. Clause (c) is taken from rule 1 under the article.

Rule 279—contains two principles extracted from clause (ii) of article 295 and the proviso under that article. The latter part of the rule confirms an existing practice.

Rule 280—states the new principle of classification of departmental leave to which reference is made in the note on rule 277.

Rule 281—is drafted in recognition of the fact that a Government servant to whom departmental leave is regularly granted will exhaust during his service far more leave than he is ever likely to earn.

Rule 282—reverses a prohibition which is at present laid down in the Survey Hand Book. As already stated in the note on rule 281, a Government servant who has regularly taken departmental leave will rarely have any leave at his credit ; but, in case he has a balance of leave due, it will frequently be convenient to allow him to take it in combination with departmental leave.

Rule 283—is designed to meet a hard case in which a subordinate, who has taken departmental leave regularly and has therefore a big debit balance in his leave account, is transferred to a post in which he is not likely to be given departmental leave in future. Such a Government servant must clearly be permitted to begin to earn leave without working off his debit balance.

Rule 284—is taken from paragraph 113 of the Public Works Department Code, with the addition of provision for temporary engineers of the Railway Department.

Rule 285.—

Clause (a)—is taken from article 242 (a), Civil Service Regulations.

Clauses (b) and (c)—are reproduced from article 320 (b), Civil Service Regulations.

Rule 286—repeats the substance of article 242 (b), Civil Service Regulations.

Rules 287 and 288—contain the relevant portions of article 655, Civil Service Regulations. There are no changes in substance, except that combination of leave is now permitted.

Rule 289—is reproduced from article 656, Civil Service Regulations.

Rule 290—is reproduced from article 666, Civil Service Regulations.

Rule 291—applies to all probationers the rule set forth in article 202 (a), Civil Service Regulations.

Rule 292—is a new rule, intended to apply to all classes of apprentices, except those who can claim leave under division XVIII of these rules.

Rule 293—is taken from article 180 (old article 176), Civil Service Regulations. The only change made is the substitution of " holiday " for " Sunday ". The Civil Service Regulations lay down no procedure in cases where a holiday, other than a Sunday, immediately supervenes upon a change of office in the same station. Under the rule, it will be clear that the Government servants concerned must make arrangements to transfer charge within a limit of twenty-four hours.

Rule 294—contains the substance of article 176 (old article 177), Civil Service Regulations. There are changes in wording, but no changes in substance.

Rule 295—expresses the real intention of a sentence in article 175, Civil Service Regulations, as recently interpreted by the Government of India.

Rule 296—is taken from article 177 (old article 178), Civil Service Regulations.

Rule 297—contains the substance of article 181 (old article 179), Civil Service Regulations.

Rule 298—is taken from article 184, Civil Service Regulations.

Rule 299—expresses the intention of article 183, Civil Service Regulations, as recently interpreted.

Rule 300—covers the latter part of article 182, Civil Service Regulations.

Rules 301 and 302—contain the substance of article 180, Civil Service Regulations. As will be seen from appendix III, the term " competent authority " is differently interpreted for the purpose of each of these two rules.

Rule 303—is re-written from portions of paragraphs 1, 2 and 3 of appendix 6 A to the Civil Service Regulations. Alternative routes by the Russian Railway have been omitted as that route is no longer available. Nushki, as an alternative to Quetta, has been omitted as unnecessary. The restriction of the concessions to those Government servants of the Khorasan Agency who are subordinates and natives of India has been omitted. The additional leave allowed by the appendix is treated, according to fundamental rule 105 (d), as joining time.

Rule 304—is taken from the same three paragraphs of appendix 6 A. The periods in the table have been brought up to date and one or two new journeys added to the list.

Rule 305—contains the substance of note 3 under paragraph 1 of appendix 6 A to the Civil Service Regulations.

Rule 306—is taken from paragraph 3 of appendix 6A.

Rule 307—is taken from article 776, Civil Service Regulations.

Rule 308—calls for no explanation.

Rule 309—sets forth a general declaration made by the Finance Department in order to obviate a reference to that department of every case in which the authorities named in appendices II and III exercise the powers conferred upon them by those appendices,

Rule 310—explains certain of the principles on which appendices II and III have ben drafted. Clause (c) of the rule is intended to protect such powers as those which, for example, the Auditor General exercises under the rules made under section 96-D of the Government of India Act.

GOVERNMENT OF INDIA.

DEPARTMENT OF REVENUE AND AGRICULTURE.

Rainfall summary for the seven days ending at 8 hours on Wednesday, the 22nd February 1922, based on the Indian Daily Weather Reports of the period.

1. The western depression which entered northwest India on the 13th continued to give rain and snow in Kashmir with a few falls in the North-West Frontier Province up to the 16th, but it failed to cause any rain in the plains. Its disappearance synchronised with the setting in of disturbed conditions in the central parts of the country, which occasioned between the 16th and 18th fairly widespread rain in the region from Poona to Lucknow. Another depression from the west passed into northwest India on the 18th, but it has as yet given only local rain and snow in Kashmir and the North-West Frontier Province.

2. Burma.—The week was rainless.

Northeast India, including Orissa.—The only rain reported was a moderate fall at Dibrugarh.

The United Provinces, Central India and the Central Provinces.—Rainfall was nearly general in the Kumaon hills and the west of the Central Provinces on the 18th; it occurred locally or at a few stations on one other day in the former area and on two other days in the latter. There was local rain in the east of the United Provinces and of Central India on the 18th. Over the rest of the division weather was dry except for a light fall at Dehra Dun.

FINANCE DEPARTMENT.

SPEECH OF THE FINANCE MEMBER INTRODUCING THE BUDGET FOR 1922-23.

Speech of the Finance Member

INTRODUCING THE BUDGET FOR 1922-23.

INTRODUCTORY.

It was my duty last year to place before this Assembly a budget which exhibited a heavy deficit. I had to confront the House, at the very inception of its career, with one of the most difficult problems which can fall to the lot of a representative Assembly. The responsibility was heavy, for the world was watching to see how this, the youngest of Parliaments, would meet a test which might have strained the capacity of many an older institution. But those of us to whom the success of the reformed constitution had become an article of faith had no apprehensions; and we were justified of our confidence. The House took up its burden in a spirit which in the common judgment of every serious critic at once sealed its position among the representative institutions of the world. It would have indeed been a welcome task if I could have come before you to-day with the confident assurance that your courage had met with the success it deserved; if we could have told you that the steps you took last year had rehabilitated our finances and closed the gap between the income and the expenditure of the nation. But Providence has seen otherwise, and this Assembly again has to face the heavy responsibility of dealing with a situation of great financial difficulty. It is no secret that the incomings of the current year have fallen far below our expectations; and as the House has probably already anticipated, the estimates for the coming year disclose a heavy excess of expenditure over revenue.

2. Let me from the first make one point clear. I shall have no such apologies to make—as may have to be offered by the Finance Ministers of other countries—regarding increase of expenditure due to causes which could be held to be within our own control or due to our own volition. You will not have cause to complain that we have, in circumstances of exceptional stringency, embarked on fresh avenues of expenditure, or engaged in enterprises which should have been deferred until our finances were in a position to afford them. The details I shall subsequently give you will make this abundantly clear. Our difficulties are due to a falling exchange, to the continued depression in world trade, to reduced returns from our commercial services and increased running expenditure incidental to their maintenance. I can claim—and the figures I present will justify my claim—that the most exacting control has been exercised in preventing any excess over our estimates of standing and established charges, and that every possible avenue of fresh expenditure has been stopped and barred. So much for economy; our critics will however probably go further and urge that in all the circumstances it was not enough merely to have stopped fresh expenditure; we should have entered on the more drastic field of retrenchment. I shall return to this subject again; as the House knows we fully admit the necessity of retrenchment; but I will only say here (and again without fear of challenge) that though retrenchment would improve our position, no measure that we could conceive or could hope to carry through could radically alter the situation in which we find ourselves. I have thought fit to make these points clear from the first. I have to put before the Assembly a position which is full of difficulties for us, for the House and for the country; but I can present it with all the greater confidence and with all the greater frankness, because I am convinced that every fact and figure which I present will only justify and confirm the points I have now made. It is a situation which we have to meet together; the House I know will meet it with that high sense of responsibility with which it encountered the situation of last March; we may differ in detail as to the exact method of dealing with it; but neither as to the causes which have occasioned it, nor as to the main solution to be applied have I any apprehension of difference or dissent.

General characteristics of the year.

3. I come now to the details of our position, and will deal first with the general conditions which have falsified our estimates of revenue for the present year. What were the circumstances in which we budgeted last March? The trade boom which followed the Armistice had definitely passed away and a heavy reaction had set in; but the future outlook was obscure, and it was impossible to say what precise effect it would have on our revenues. We budgeted in an atmosphere of trade depression, and our estimates allowed for a definite retardation in the normal growth which our revenues might otherwise have been expected to exhibit. But it was not possible to foresee that the depression of trade would reach such abysmal depths, nor that its consequences would react so disastrously on our finances. I will take separately the internal and external factors. As to the former, the effects of the poor monsoon of 1920 continued to show themselves throughout the year 1921. Wheat rose to R6 a maund in January and to the almost unexampled figure of R8½ per maund in December; Rangoon rice increased during the same period from R4 to R6½ a maund. Not only did we have to continue the embargo on the export of wheat, but India became a heavy importer. Labour trouble at the collieries curtailed the raising of coal; we could only maintain the service of our railways by purchases of foreign coal at greatly increased expense and again of course with detrimental effect on our balance of trade. Thirdly, the conditions of the country have been such, partly economic and partly political, that there has been a complete stagnation of the ordinary activities of internal trade. I shall not dwell again now on the unfortunate series of events which led to the locking up of many million pounds' worth of imported goods owing to the inability or the failure of importers to take up their contracts. But whether this was due entirely to economic or partly to political causes, the event was typical of much of the history of internal trade throughout the year. Not even an unusually favourable monsoon in the autumn of 1921 has succeeded in solving a position due to the interaction of these double influences. Such were the internal conditions; I need not dwell at length on the external conditions. The prevailing depression in Russia and Central Europe, aggravated by famine conditions in the former country, continued to deprive India of the customers on whom in normal years she is wont to rely. How unstable was the basis on which our exports depended is shown by the history of our reviving trade with Germany. Exports to that country which averaged 1½ crores monthly during the period July-September collapsed with the catastrophic fall of the mark in October and had fallen in December to only half a crore. Our exports, which had reached their height with 31 crores in March 1920, had declined to 18 crores in March 1921 and reached their lowest point in June of last year with 16 crores. It is true that there was a recovery to 21 crores in December, but on the whole, greatly reduced as has been the scale of our imports, there is a total balance against us of 33 crores for the ten months ending January.

REVENUE AND EXPENDITURE OF 1921-22.

Current year's Revenue.

4. Let me proceed at once to give in figures the total result of these unfavourable factors. The budget estimates as finally passed provided for a small surplus of 71 lakhs; the revenue including new taxation being estimated at 1,28½ crores and the expenditure at just over 1,27½ crores. We now estimate that the revenue will be 1,08 crores or 20½ crores less. I will take only the principal items. Under Customs we expected 37¾ crores; we do not now look to realize more than 33½, or a falling off of 4¼ crores. But for a heavy revival of the import of sugar in the autumn our total receipts would be even worse; indeed sugar has come to our assistance to the extent of 6¾ crores out of the 33½. In Taxes on income we shall probably have to pay some heavy refunds, owing to adjustment of provisional assessments made on last year's profits, and taking receipts and refunds together, the income will fall short by 90 lakhs of the budget figure of 18½ crores. Salt will be short by 80 or 90 lakhs of the expected figure of 7 crores, mainly owing to our inability to maintain a full supply of Northern India salt. Opium will be short by 70 lakhs on the expected total of 3,73 lakhs; clearly our customers in the Far East anticipate decreased consumption as the result of international action. I come now to our commercial departments. Naturally enough our Railways reflect the great stagnation of trade throughout the year, and in addition, the returns of the last few weeks have shown the effect of the recent strike. We expected to get gross receipts of 87 crores and shall have to content ourselves with 83. But the mischief does not end here, for far worse than the decline in gross traffic receipts is the increase in working expenses. Owing to short raisings of coal we have had to pay more for the Indian article, and to supplement the home supply by heavy purchases from abroad, and altogether the total excess of working expenses over the budget figure will be 7¼ crores. Allowing further for some falling off in the receipts from the surtax, the total worseness on the railway budget will be no less than 13 crores; and railways, after payment of interest charges, will, for the first time for many years, be working at an actual loss, namely over 2½ crores. Finally, there are the Posts and Telegraphs. The gross revenue is about 1½ crores less than anticipated, of which about 35 lakhs occur in the yield from the new rates approved by the Assembly last year. Here again we have an instance of a large commercial department working at a deficit; the total loss to the general taxpayer on the combined department in the current year will be about 90 lakhs. The combined effect of these items is to produce the falling off of 20 crores to which I have alluded.

5. Then as to expenditure. As I have said, we expected to spend 1,27½ crores. But we shall have to spend 2 crores more on account of the increase in interest charges due to the larger proceeds of the rupee loan realized by us this year and the increased borrowings undertaken in London. Under military expenditure, it will be remembered that we allowed for 62·20 crores of which 3 crores was attributable to Waziristan and one crore to expenditure on demobilization. During the year however operations in Waziristan continued, contrary to our expectations, on the extended scale set up in the concluding months of 1920-21, and altogether our expenditure on operations in that quarter have cost us 6¾ crores. I do not propose to analyse here in detail the remaining figures of military expenditure; they still contain abnormal features such as on the one side arrear claims from the War Office and on the other unexpected recoveries of arrears from the same source. There have also been very heavy increases in the cost of foodstuffs. It will be sufficient to say that on the whole, in spite of the increase due to this factor, and to the heavy excess on Waziristan operations, we have managed by careful control to keep the excess down to 2¾ crores. The total therefore stands at 65 crores against a budget of 62¼. No new permanent liability of any considerable amount has been added to the military charges in India with the exception of an enhanced scale of pensions for the families of Indian soldiers and the expansion of the Territorial force.

Current year's Expenditure.

6. The increases in civil expenditure have been of minor importance and have for the most part been passed already by the Assembly in the form of supplementary grants. But there remains one head of great importance the loss by exchange. As I explained last year, the head is really one of adjustment. In the case of our commercial departments the difference in exchange between 2*s*. (the rate at which our accounts are kept) and the actual rate is adjusted under the departmental head concerned, and that accounts for a certain proportion of the excess expenditure under Railways and Posts and Telegraphs. In the case of all other departments this adjustment for exchange is lumped together under the one head Exchange. I need not perhaps go into the circumstances under which we assumed a rate of 1*s*. 8*d*. last year; it was an accounts assumption, not a prophecy; but I would remark here that in December 1920 (when of course our forecast was drawn up) the actual rate was between 1*s*. 7*d*. and 1*s*. 8*d*. We were twitted at the time with optimism; but I do not remember that our critics were then prepared to back any other figure with conviction. Exchange did indeed during September rise to 1*s*. 5¾*d*.; but it was followed by a rapid decline to below the 1*s*. 4*d*. level, in sympathy with the sudden fall of the German mark. For the rest, the summary which I have already given of our import and export trade is sufficient to indicate the immediate causes at any rate of the weakness of exchange; it only remains to add that the total cost to us under the head "Exchange" of its failure to reach the 1*s*. 8*d*. figure must be taken at 5¾ crores.

7. Altogether then our expenditure is somewhat over 14¼ crores more than we expected; and the total deficit will amount to no less than 34 crores. If you carry your minds back to the history of the last three years, the House will realize that this is now the fourth deficit in succession. In 1918-19 it amounted to 6 crores; in 1919-20, mainly due to the Afghan War, the deficit was 24 crores; our final accounts of 1920-21, swollen by many adjustments of arrear expenditure on the Afghan war and the Great war, showed a deficit of 26 crores. Adding the 34 crores to which I have just referred, the total excess of expenditure over revenue in the four years comes to 90 crores. I am not ready to explain to the House the methods by which we have during the past four years provided the money necessary for carrying on the administration, nor to dwell on the implications, to be drawn from this continued succession of deficits. I have still to deal with the revenue and expenditure of the coming year.

Deficit of current and previous years.

ESTIMATES OF 1922-23.

I.—Revenue.

Outlook for next year.

8. I do not know if there is anyone here who would feel entitled to speak with confidence of the assumptions we should make in estimating for budget purposes the character of the year on which we are about to enter. For myself, I can only indicate the main factors which have guided us. We have had a favourable monsoon and good winter rains; this in itself should bring down the price of food grains and help to rectify the balance of trade. On the other hand, the bazaar trade still has before it all the difficulties involved in the liquidation of the import contracts entered into two years ago, and the spectre of unrest looms before the trader, paralysing industry and benumbing enterprize. As for the outside world, the relative strength of India's position is of course largely due to her share of the world's staple requirements. It is true that overseas stocks of Indian goods are still large, but they have been much reduced during the course of the past year, and foreign consumers have been forced to come to India to a considerable extent for their immediate necessities. Her raw jute and jute manufactures, though the period of boom has definitely passed, should still hold their own; tea and cotton have indeed recovered to an extent that we could hardly have anticipated last year. The total exports of India during December 1921 were higher than those of any month since September 1920. Although therefore stocks of India's commodities in India are high, the signs are not unfavourable. It is probable that the historian of the future, with a clearer perspective, will look on the year 1921 as the logical sequel to 1920. The latter year experienced the full force of the reaction from the feverish and unhealthy trade activity which followed the Armistice. This reaction showed itself in a collapse of the world's purchasing power, an unparalleled slump in prices and congestion of unsold and unsaleable stocks. In 1921 we had the beginning of the painful process of re-adjustment. We have already made some advance in that process, and the conditions of India are such that (if she can only maintain internal peace) she may reasonably expect to take an early share in the revival of trade.

Estimates of revenue for next year.

9. I admit that the factors are obscure in many directions of great importance and they certainly do not encourage optimism. But on the whole we seem justified in framing our budget estimates on the assumption that there will be some slight improvement over the trade conditions which have existed during the current year. I will take the main heads in detail. Under Customs we assume that the imports of piecegoods will be somewhat better than those of the current year, and also that, as a result of the withdrawal of the restrictions on the export of Burma rice, the revenue from that export duty will now become normal. We have also assumed a moderate improvement in the exports of jute; on the other hand, we cannot expect that the imports of sugar will be on any thing like the scale of the current year, though we have felt justified in taking an estimate of 4¼ crores as against the 6¾ crores likely to be received from that source this year. On the whole, we are assuming a net Customs revenue of 36·42 crores, nearly 3 crores in excess of the revenue which we are likely to collect in the current year. Then as regards Taxes on Income, we expect an increase in the net demand in most provinces with the exception of Bengal, but on the other hand the figures of the present year have been swollen by large arrear collections, and in the net, allowing for refunds in respect of collections on provisional assessments, we are assuming a total revenue of 19·87 crores, which is about a crore less than our probable revenue in the current year. Under Salt we have adopted an estimate of slightly over 7 crores, practically the same as that of the current year's budget. Our receipts from the sale of Opium are now mainly derived from the direct supplies we make to foreign and Colonial Governments on the contracts now in force, and, except when new contracts are entered into, do not vary very much from year to year; our revenue from the auction sales is, however, steadily dwindling and we do not expect more than half a crore from this source, making a total revenue, inclusive of the revenue from excise opium, of approximately 3 crores. This is about 60 lakhs less than the current year's budget and about the same as the revenue we expect to get in the current year.

10. In attempting to frame an estimate of net receipts from railways we are met with two difficulties. In the first place it is difficult to say what will be the exact yield from the new goods rates which will be brought into force from April the 1st next, replacing the present surtax. It is also difficult to say what the working expenses will amount to, as the coal market is in an abnormal state and a substantial increase or decrease in the cost of fuel will vitally affect the total. For gross traffic receipts we assume that the new goods rates will not yield less than 6 crores, and we think that an allowance of between 4 and 5 crores for normal growth in revenue is as much as can be justified. We think therefore that a fair estimate of gross receipts next year will be 93½ crores. For working expenses we have taken the high figure of 68½ crores on the assumption that fuel charges will remain high, and after making as much provision as possible for the replacements and renewals which, as everyone knows, are so badly needed on all our railways. On these estimates, the net receipts next year will work out to 24½ crores; after allowing for interest and other indirect charges which will amount to 26 crores, the railways will be working at a loss of over 1 crore. This is not the proper occasion for me to embark upon any discussion of the question how far the administration of our railways should, in any particular year, be carried on with the object of producing a profit to the general taxpayer. It is a matter regarding which one side of the question, and one side only, has been put forward with considerable force in the report of Sir William Acworth's Committee. The House is aware that the proposal made by that Committee to effect a complete separation between the railway and the general budget was duly considered by a committee composed of members of the two Houses of the Legislature, whose report was published last December. That committee decided that, whatever might be the theoretical merits of this question, practical considerations alone made it impossible to effect any such separation for the present. On one point, however, there can, I imagine, be no room for diversity of opinion, namely that the railways must pay their own way. For this reason we propose to take measures to increase the traffic receipts The estimates which I have just given already take account of a substantial increase in goods rates in substitution of the existing surtax. The only remaining course therefore is to effect a material increase in passenger fares. An increase averaging about 25 per cent. will, we estimate, produce an extra 6 crores of revenue. This will of course more than make up the estimated loss on next year's working, but we shall have to continue for many years heavy expenditure, debitable to the revenue account, on replacements and renewals, while our enlarged programme of capital expenditure will involve a cumulative increase of interest charges for some years to come; we therefore consider that we are justified in providing for some margin.

Contemplated increase in passenger fares.

11. The remaining important head on the revenue side is Posts and Telegraphs. I must first of all explain what we have done as regards the separation of capital expenditure from expenditure charged to revenue. The House will remember that this question was examined last March on the initiative of Mr. Samarth, when it was decided to transfer approximately 1 crore from revenue to capital as representing expenditure which was intrinsically of a capital nature. That transfer was made more or less summarily; it was obviously desirable to keep on the right side, and not to debit to loan funds expenditure which was really of the nature of running expenses and would only have to be written back to revenue. We have subsequently made a more careful examination of the various items of expenditure, and as a result we have felt justified, in the revised estimates for the current year, in debiting to capital a total amount of 1,28 lakhs. For the ensuing year, of the total estimated expenditure of 11¼ crores we find that we can justifiably take 1,45 lakhs to capital provisionally, pending of course the reconstitution of the post and telegraph accounts as a result of the investigation which has just been completed by the expert accountants who have been engaged on that work. With this division as between capital and revenue, we estimate that the expenditure chargeable to the revenue account next year will exceed the receipts by about 96 lakhs, after allowing for the debit of interest on the capital charge. This figure, however, does not include the cost of pensions on the one hand, and on the other credits for certain concessional services rendered by the department to Indian States or foreign Governments. If we make adjustments on account of these items, there will be a further credit due to the department of about 17 lakhs, and, allowing for this, it may be said that during the current year the department has been working at a loss of about 90 lakhs, and that next year it will be working at a loss of about 80 lakhs. This has a very definite bearing on certain proposals that I shall shortly mention.

Actual revenue expected.

12. This closes my review of revenue for the coming year. Including the increase on passenger rates, it should amount to 1,16½ crores; without that increase, it would come to 1,10½ crores as against a revised estimate of 1,08 crores for the current year. I come now to the expenditure side.

II.—Expenditure.

Ban on new expenditure.

13. The first point I have to emphasise is that, as was the case a year ago, the demands of the various departments for the inclusion of items of new expenditure have been enormously curtailed; in effect, we have made provision for no new expenditure which cannot be demonstrated to be of imperative necessity or likely to be immediately remunerative. Such items of new expenditure as have passed through the meshes of the Finance Department's net have further had to undergo the fire of the Standing Finance Committee's scrutiny before being embodied in the detailed estimates which are about to be placed in Hon'ble Members' hands. One head where the effect of this policy has been particularly marked is Civil works. The figure entered is 166 lakhs, and I must point out that this is only just sufficient to cover maintenance, repairs and establishment charges and the carrying on of works already in progress, and that it makes practically no provision at all for new construction. I do not think I need refer to the details of the estimates entered for interest on debt, sinking funds, and so forth, for such charges may be regarded as obligatory. Hon'ble Members will notice in the detailed estimates a special expenditure of 60 lakhs under political charges; this is a tentative provision for a scheme for the better solution of political troubles on the frontier. It has not yet crystallised into a form which admits of the exhibition of full details. For the rest, the variations in civil expenditure are not large. There will be a saving from the cessation of census operations, counterbalanced by certain additions to income-tax establishments, and a provision of 16 lakhs for various schemes of improvement at the salt sources in Northern India which are of imperative necessity for the safeguarding of our salt revenue. Apart from the extra political charges and the other variations which I have just referred to, the civil heads show a small increase on the probable expenditure in the current year.

Estimated rate of exchange for next year.

14. As regards exchange, I may say at once that I see no indications, in the present conditions and outlook of our foreign trade, which would justify our assuming an average rate of exchange higher than 1*s.* 4*d.* during next year, and accordingly that is the figure upon which these estimates are based. In mentioning that estimated average rate I must again impress on the House that I am attempting no sort of prophecy regarding the future course of exchange, nor should anything that I say be taken as an indication of policy. It is of course unavoidable, for the purpose of the budget programme, to make some sort of assumption, however rough, as to the level at which exchange is likely to stand, taking the coming year as a whole. I have, as I have said, assumed for budget purposes a rate of 1*s.* 4*d.* The debit that will be necessary in our accounts, which are still maintained on a 2*s.* basis, will on this assumption be about 15½ crores, of which 10 crores will appear under the head "Exchange", the remaining 5½ crores being debited in the estimates of the commercial departments.

No provision for reduction of provincial contributions.

15. Finally, before I come to the military estimates, I must point out that we have made no provision for any reduction in the present contributions payable to us by the Provincial Governments, the amount of which, after allowing for the waiving of the Bengal contribution, is 9,20 lakhs. The House is aware that several provinces, notably, Madras, the United Provinces and the Punjab, have pressed us strongly for some reduction next year in the amount of their contributions. It is also a matter of common knowledge that many of the provinces are finding it difficult, if not impossible, to cover their expenditure, and have had to ask their legislatures to sanction various schemes of new taxation in order to help balance their budgets. I shall have something more to say regarding the position of the provinces before I sit down. For the present, I will only say that we have not provided for any reduction for the simple reason that, with the certainty of a deficit staring us in the face, it was quite impracticable to do so. But I need hardly say that the progressive reduction and extinction of these contributions must be regarded as a first charge upon any betterness that the financial position of the Central Government may show in future years.

16. I now take the final and heaviest figure, namely, Military expenditure. The established charges we estimate at 59·70 crores against 58·20 in the current year's Budget, Waziristan charges at 2·13 against 3·00, and demobilization expenditure at ·35 against 1·00; the total is therefore 62·18 crores or approximately the same as in the Budget for the current year. The increase in established charges does not represent any addition to the strength of the post-war Army as already laid down, except in the case of the Territorial Force, and is largely due to an item which lies entirely outside our own control, namely, the great increase in prices of provisions and other consumable stores. These are estimated to cost nearly 2 crores more than in the current year. Apart from the outlay necessary for the expansion of the Territorial Force and from a relatively small sum of money for the revision of the pay of certain classes of Indian personnel in Army services whose remuneration has not yet been brought up to the standard obtaining in other quarters, no new demands for military outlay have been admitted. Not only so, but it would have been impossible to keep the established charges down to the figure I have given had we not effected retrenchment in a number of directions, notably in Military Works, the purchase of new equipment, and the strength of the reserve, and further by taking credit for an anticipated shortage of British troops. As regards Waziristan, I fear that the figure can be regarded as tentative only, for it is always difficult to forecast the exact effect of military operations of this nature. These operations may as in the present year lead again to an excess in the military budget. The 35 lakhs on demobilization expenditure represents the sum which the Secretary of State has estimated will be required in 1922-23 for the payment of India's share of the compensatory gratuities to officers of the Indian Army who have been found surplus to strength owing to reduction of establishment. Military expenditure.

17. The net result of these figures is that we expect an expenditure of 1,42¼ crores against a revenue, on the basis of existing taxation and including the provincial contributions of 9,20 lakhs, which will amount to 1,10½ crores, i.e., a deficit of 31¾ crores, which would be reduced to 25¾ crores by the contemplated increase in passenger fares mentioned by me. Resultant deficit.

Problem of how to meet the deficit.

18. I now come to the hardest part of my task to-day, namely, to discuss what measures should be taken to meet the grave problem presented by an estimated deficit next year of about 31¾ crores. It is obvious that there are, in theory, three courses which can be adopted, either separately or in combination. First, we can budget for a deficit, either the whole or part of the above amount; second, we can attempt to reduce our expenditure; and third, we can take steps to increase our revenues. The problem is so grave, and the issue at stake so large, being nothing less than the solvency of the country, that I make no apology for examining in some detail each of these three courses. Three possible courses.

Would it be desirable, or would it even be possible, to leave the whole or the major part of this deficit uncovered? Now, so far as I have been able to ascertain, on one occasion only in the past has the Government of this country deliberately budgeted for a deficit. This was in 1915-16, the first budget of the war, when Sir William Meyer budgeted for a deficit of about 4 crores. In introducing that budget, Sir William Meyer carefully explained the reasons which had led him to adopt that course. He emphasised that the Government would not think of proposing to budget for a deficit if the deficiency in revenue promised to be of a more or less abiding (1) Budgeting for a deficit.

character. That, however, he held, was not the case on that occasion; it was then too early in the war to be sure that the excess of expenditure over revenue was anything more than temporary, and unless and until it could be shown that the gap between revenue and expenditure was likely to last for some time, it would not be justifiable to impose increased taxation, especially as the Government's cash balances could at that time be relied on to produce the necessary finance. For the rest, so far as my researches go, the Government of India have always endeavoured to meet the expenditure of each year from the revenues of that year, and although on occasions their estimates have been disturbed and deficits have actually accrued, they have, except on the one occasion mentioned above, never deliberately contemplated that their expenditure should exceed their revenues. I do not think that there can be any doubt that this policy, consistently followed in good years and bad, when the outlook was fair and when it was gloomy, had much to do with the sound financial position in which India found herself at the beginning of the war, and with the excellence of the credit of the State both within the country and abroad.

Deficit not temporary.

19. Now, in considering the extent, if any, to which we should be justified in leaving this estimated deficit uncovered, there are two points of vital importance to which I must invite the careful attention of the House. In the first place, it is necessary to examine briefly the real nature of the current and next year's deficits. Can it be said that the present emergency is similar to that which Sir William Meyer had to face in preparing his budget for 1915-16? I hold that the answer to this must be in the negative. I do not think that it is possible to take up the position that these deficits are due to transient causes, that we can look for better times ahead, and that we should consequently be justified in leaving things as they are, in the hope that before long our revenues will once more have equalled our expenditure. I must say frankly that I see very little prospect of any such equilibrium being attained within a measurable period. In saying this I do not mean to imply that either the probable deficit of 34 crores in the current year or the estimated deficit of $31\frac{3}{4}$ crores next year is necessarily to be taken as a measure of the permanent gap between our expenditure and our revenues. I assume that, with the liquidation of our frontier commitments, that portion of our military charges which are classified as "abnormal" will disappear. I also assume that our revenues would respond to any substantial revival in trade, when the day of that revival dawns, as assuredly dawn it must. But after making every possible assumption of this nature, I do not think it can be said that, if things are left as they are, equilibrium will be attainable within a measurable time. It has, moreover, to be remembered that we have a certain loss of revenue in front of us, in respect of the gradual abolition of the provincial contributions. I have not overlooked the fact that the stabilisation of the rupee at 2*s.* would relieve our revenues to the extent of about 15 crores a year, but the House is in as good a position as I am to judge whether we should be justified in placing any reliance on this consummation. The problem, as I fear we must envisage it, is thus not one of carrying on until we have turned the corner, for the turning is nowhere visible.

How the deficits have been financed.

20. Secondly, it is necessary to examine briefly what a succession of deficits really means, and what are the results which it leads to. I will not embark on any theoretical discussion of financial ethics, but confine myself to actual facts. Including the deficit of the current year, during the past four years our expenditure (in using the word 'expenditure' I mean of course expenditure debitable to revenue, and not capital expenditure on such objects as Railways and Irrigation) has exceeded our revenue by a total amount of 90 crores. Where did this money come from? The short answer is that we have been living on credit. About 37 crores have been obtained by the issue of fiduciary currency notes, namely, notes the only backing of which are our own I.O.U's. A further 47 crores will have been found by incurring floating debt in the shape of treasury bills, while the remaining 6 crores will have been taken from the proceeds of our regular annual borrowings. Our Treasury bills consist of short term bills (mostly for 3, 6 or 9 months) which we have so far managed to renew on maturity. But it is an open fact we have only succeeded in doing this by virtue of the recent stagnation of trade and consequent plethora of bank money; it is very doubtful if on any real revival of trade we should be able to keep "floating" an amount of treasury bills on anything like the present scale. A treasury bill outstanding in the neighbourhood of 60, or even of 40, crores is, as I have more than once pointed out, a matter for great anxiety, seeing that at any time, with the appearance of other demands upon the discount market, such as a revival of trade or an acute monetary position, our sales might not cover our maturities and we should then have no alternative, if we were not to dishonour our bills, but to make a further large fiduciary issue of currency notes. During the past month or two we have, in fact, had a preliminary warning as to the insecurity of our position; a sudden tightening of money in Bombay led for a time to distinct embarrassment; in spite of our giving very much more favourable terms for our treasury bills we found great difficulty in meeting our requirements and were obliged as a temporary measure to re-issue a substantial amount of currency notes which we had cancelled during the preceding months. And of course the dependence of Government upon the money market, to supply it on credit with funds to meet the gap between incomings and outgoings, itself reacts strongly upon the supply of money available for trade, thus setting up a vicious circle. To escape from that circle is one of the most pressing problems before us.

21. What then is the inevitable conclusion to which these considerations lead? Putting aside all theoretical considerations of principle and of sound financial policy, the financing of a further deficit next year of an amount anything like the 31¾ crores estimated is simply not a practicable proposition. I should be much mistaken if we have not already reached the limit of safety. To attempt to increase our floating debt beyond the figure at which it is likely to stand on April 1st next would be to invite not only grave monetary stringency, but possibly even a severe crisis. To raid the Gold Standard Reserve, which has been built up for an entirely different purpose, would be merely putting off the evil day, and would be an expedient which could be adopted only as a last resort and even then purely as a temporary measure. To rely on the proceeds of our annual rupee or sterling loans to finance our deficits would, as I shall show later in my speech, be equally impracticable, seeing that we shall fully need the whole of these for financing our existing capital liabilities and productive expenditure on our railways. The inevitable result, in short, of any attempt to finance a deficit of this size would, in my opinion, be to force us to large issues of unbacked currency notes, and I am sure the House will agree with me that the effect of such inflation upon the general level of prices in this country, and upon our general credit, would be very serious. My conclusion then is, and I state it with perfect confidence, that the problem before us is one that cannot be shelved or left to look after itself. It is a problem which has to be faced, and it is my duty to ask this House and the country, whatever their opinion may be of the particular proposals that we are making, to join with us in facing it.

Not practicable to continue financing deficits on the present scale.

22. How far can we reduce the deficit by cutting down our expenditure? I have already indicated the difficulties which we have encountered in regard to our largest spending department, the army. I have told the House that as regards the civil departments we have cut out all new expenditure which cannot be proved to be of imperative necessity. I do not claim that further reductions are impossible; as the House knows, we are committed to an enquiry into the steps necessary to effect retrenchment, even if that results in curtailing departmental activities. We have agreed to accede to the desire of the Assembly for the appointment of a Committee of retrenchment, and an announcement will shortly be made on the subject. But the field of civil expenditure over which that enquiry can range is small; it does not extend to more than 20 crores; and though retrenchment may and no doubt will be effected, it could have but a minor effect in restoring the balance. In any case a Finance Member must frame his budget not on what he hopes may be effected in the future, but on the basis of the expenditure now actually being incurred.

(2) Reduction in expenditure.

23. I have sometimes heard it asked why we cannot simplify to some extent our financial problem by taking to capital certain of the expenditure which is at present debitable to revenue. Why, it is urged, should the present generation have to pay for expenditure on public works or other objects, which have a permanent or semi-permanent life, such as civil buildings, roads and bridges on the frontier, new barracks, etc., or, again, on stores and material used in our commercial departments, such as the Posts and Telegraphs? This contention is to a large extent met by the facts that the present estimates make practically no provision at all for new civil buildings, that the construction of Delhi and capital expenditure on railways are already met from capital funds, and that we are already providing for the debit to loan funds of expenditure on stores and material for our Telegraphs. It is, however, quite unnecessary to discuss this question at any length, for, in point of fact, whatever may be the division in our accounts as between capital and revenue, we are unfortunately already meeting a large proportion of our annual expenditure from borrowed funds. The figures which I have already given show that we have been doing this on a very large scale, far in excess of what by any stretch of reasoning could be described as real capital expenditure. To reduce our revenue deficit by a mere stroke of the pen would not in any way affect or cover up the actual position.

(3) Increase of revenue.

24. If I have carried the House with me so far, I have established two propositions. The first is a two-fold one, namely, that the country cannot, if it has any regard for its credit or any thought for its future solvency, take refuge in the simple course of leaving the whole or even the greater part of this deficit uncovered, and further, that, quite apart from such considerations, it would not be a practicable proposition to do so, even if we tried. Secondly, however successful our efforts may be in reducing our expenditure, and imperative though it is that we should make the attempt, it is out of the question to expect any relief from this source to be on such a substantial scale as materially to reduce the excess of expenditure over revenues. I submit therefore that there is no escape from the conclusion that it is imperative to take every possible step to increase our revenues. We can do this in two ways: firstly, by ensuring that our commercial departments shall at any rate not be a burden upon the taxpayer, and shall if possible yield a profit; secondly, by increasing taxation. As regards the first method, I have already indicated that we propose to increase the railway receipts to the extent of about 6 crores by an increase in passenger fares. There remains the Post and Telegraph department. It is not possible to increase the telegraph charges, which are already on the high side, and indeed that branch of the department more than pays its way. We are, however, as I have already shown, losing heavily on the combined Post and Telegraph Department. Last year we invited the legislature to agree to certain measures for increasing our postal receipts. The most important of these, namely, the doubling of the postcard rate and the raising of the minimum charge for inland letters from half an anna to one anna, were not accepted. The increases agreed to were by comparison of minor value, and are only expected to produce 35 lakhs in the current year. Hon'ble Members will recollect the circumstances which led, by a compromise, to the adoption of a nine pie rate for letters exceeding half a tola in weight. I understand that the increased revenue from this source has been very small, not more than 10 lakhs; it has also led to many administrative difficulties in the matter of weighing letters and collecting over-charges, so much so that I am told that the collection of over-charges is not worth the revenue obtained, and altogether the inconvenience that has been caused to the public has not been commensurate with the gain to the exchequer. We shall now ask the legislature to reconsider the position which it took up last year. I admit now, as I admitted then, the enormous advantage to a country of a cheap postal service nor do I underestimate in any way the strong sentimental attachment that must exist to the pice postcard. My reply to such considerations, now as then, is financial necessity; with the enormous increase in the cost of working that has occurred in recent years the country cannot afford to maintain a postal service at the present cheap rates. We propose therefore to raise to half an anna the quarter anna postcard, and, secondly, to abolish the half anna and 9 pie rates for letters, making the charges in future one anna for letters not exceeding 2½ tolas in weight, and one anna for every additional 2½ tolas. We estimate that the increased revenue obtainable from these measures will be 1,60 lakhs. I may point out that, even after these changes, we shall still on the whole have the cheapest postal service in the world.

Necessity for increasing postal rates.

These two measures, namely, the increase in railway passenger fares and the increase in postal rates, will represent a total increased revenue of 7,60 lakhs, reducing our estimated deficit from 31 crores 76 lakhs to 24 crores 16 lakhs. I now turn to the further measures which we consider that the financial position of the country renders imperative.

Proposals for additional taxation.

25. The problem of how to raise a large amount of additional revenue through increased taxation, with the minimum of hardship to the taxpayer and the minimum of disturbance to trade and commerce has, I need hardly say, been the subject of anxious consideration for some time. The burden which the country is now invited to shoulder is a heavy one; we have done our best to distribute it as equitably as possible and to see that all classes of the community shall contribute, each according to its capacity. When additional revenues are required, the first head to which one's thought naturally turns is Customs. Here, we are at once confronted with the fact that a Fiscal Commission is now sitting, and if the needs of our revenues were not so urgent, we should have preferred to await the conclusion of that Commission's deliberations before proposing any further alteration of the tariff. Any such postponement is, however, impossible. Whatever opinions may be held on the various important issues that the Fiscal Commission is now considering, and whatever decision may be ultimately arrived at on its report, there is no escaping the conclusion that the pressure of financial necessity must in any case inevitably involve the raising of our customs duties, purely for revenue producing purposes, irrespective of what the effect may be in the case of any particular tariff head in the direction of protection, Imperial preference, or free trade. In framing our proposals, we have, however, endeavoured to preserve to the greatest possible extent the general character of the present tariff and the general relation inter se of the various duties; in other words, we have endeavoured to limit our proposals in such a way as not to involve any important change of principle in the existing fiscal arrangements.

Customs.

No pre-judging Fiscal Commission Report.

26. (i) The vast majority of customs duties necessarily fall upon the consumer, and the general character of the proposals which I am about to mention is, therefore, that of a tax on consumption. We propose to raise to 15 per cent. the import duty on all articles now assessed to 11 per cent. But since one of the most important articles, both of import and of consumption, is piecegoods, we propose that the consumption of piecegoods in this country should be taxed by a further 4 per cent.; that is to say we would raise the cotton excise duty from 3½ to 7½ per cent., The combined effect of these two measures is estimated to bring in an increased revenue of 5,45 lakhs. We have not, of course, overlooked the contentious history of the cotton excise duty, but after the account that I have given this morning of our financial necessities, and after what I have just said regarding the raising of the general ad valorem duty, I do not think that even the most malignant of our critics can accuse us of raising the cotton excise duty for the purpose of counterbalancing the import duty on foreign manufactures.

Details of custom proposals.

(ii) The present import duty on machinery, iron and steel, and railway material, is only 2½ per cent. We propose to raise this to 10 per cent., yielding an extra revenue of 4,05 lakhs.

(iii) We consider that the trade in foreign sugar can, and should, bear an increase of duty, and we propose to raise the present import duty from 15 to 25 per cent., yielding an extra revenue of 2 crores.

(iv) We propose to raise the specific duty of 12 annas per gross boxes of matches to R1-8 per gross boxes, yielding an estimated additional revenue of 95 lakhs.

(v) We propose to impose an excise duty of 1 anna per gallon on kerosene produced in India, with a corresponding increase in the duty on imported petroleum, namely, from 1½ annas to 2½ annas per gallon, the extra revenue from which measures will be 90 lakhs.

(vi) Last March we joined many Hon'ble Members in resisting in this House a proposal to remove yarn from the free list. We feel that the arguments then used must now yield to our financial necessities, and we propose to ask the House to agree to an import duty of 5 per cent. on imported yarn, yielding a revenue of half a crore.

(vii) The imports of articles which are assessed at the highest rate of tariff, namely, 20 per cent., have, during the greater part of this year, been very disappointing. I do not think, however, that this decrease can fairly be attributed to the new duty imposed last March, but rather to the very excessive imports, and consequent over-stocking, of the previous year. More recently, the imports of these articles have sensibly increased. We consider that the rate of duty can now be increased from 20 to 30 per cent., yielding an extra revenue of 75 lakhs.

(viii) As regards alcoholic liquors, the customs returns show that any attempt to increase the import duty on wines would almost certainly result in an actual loss of revenue, but as regards ale and beer, liqueurs and spirits, although we should have preferred to have waited another year before raising the duties further, we cannot afford to neglect any possible increase of revenue in the coming year, however small. Moreover, when we are proposing heavy additional taxation, affecting many necessaries of life, we think it is all the more imperative to take from alcohol the maximum revenue possible. We accordingly propose an increase of approximately 20 per cent. in the duties on all alcoholic liquors, except wines, yielding an extra revenue of 30 lakhs.

The actual increases proposed are as follows :—

	Present rate of duty.	Proposed rate.
Ale, beer, porter, cider and other fermented liquors, per gallon.	6¼ annas.	8 annas.
Perfumed spirits, per gallon	Rs 30 0 0	Rs. 36 0 0
Liqueurs, untested, per gallon . . .	Rs. 25 0 0	Rs. 30 0 0
Liqueurs, tested, per proof gallon . .	Rs. 18 12 0	Rs. 21 14 0
All other spirits, per proof gallon . .	Rs. 18 12 0	Rs. 21 14 0

No change is proposed in the duty on denatured spirits.

As regards tobacco, we do not think that for the present, having regard to the great decrease in consumption, any further increase in duty is possible without actual detriment to the revenue.

The total increased revenue obtainable next year from the increases in customs, which I have now mentioned, is estimated at 14,90 lakhs. Full details will be found in the Schedule to the Finance Bill which I shall ask your permission, Sir, to introduce this morning. The extra revenue during the current month is likely to be 80 lakhs.

Income-tax and super-tax.

27. These measures will still leave an uncovered deficit of about 9¼ crores. We feel it necessary to make a further call on the payers of income-tax and super-tax. We do not propose, however, to effect any alteration in the rate of tax payable by persons whose incomes do not exceed R30,000 a year. Indeed an increase in those rates, even by a substantial amount, would not be likely to produce any large increase in revenue, seeing that most of our income-tax revenue comes from assessments made at the highest rate. We propose to raise the rate on incomes between R30,000 and R40,000 from 14 to 15 pies, and on incomes above R40,000 from 16 to 18 pies. As regards super-tax, we propose to re-grade the higher rates, working up in the manner shown in the Schedule to the Finance Bill to the highest rate of 6 annas as against the existing highest rate of 4 annas. The combined effect of these two measures is estimated to produce an extra revenue of 2¼ crores.

Salt.

28. Finally, we consider that the present emergency is such that there is now no alternative but to increase the salt duty, which has always been regarded as our ultimate reserve. We propose to increase the duty from R1-4 to R2-8 a maund. The present consumption of salt in India works out at about 6. seers per head of population. The increase of R1-4 per maund will, therefore, represent 3 annas per head per annum, or, let us say, 12 annas per annum for each household of four. It cannot surely be maintained that this will be felt appreciably by even the poorest classes. The extra revenue is estimated at 5 crores a year, but in the first year, owing to the existence of the credit system of sales, is not likely to exceed 4,30 lakhs. As in the case of the increased Customs duties the increase in the salt duty will come into force from to-day, and the extra revenue in the current month is estimated at 20 lakhs.

29. The total extra revenue obtainable from the measures which I have mentioned to-day is estimated at slightly over 29 crores next year and at 1 crore in the current year. The uncovered deficit will therefore be 2¾ crores, together with the indeterminate liability to which I have already alluded in regard to Waziristan. Financial considerations by themselves would involve the imposition of a further taxation of at least 3 crores in order that we might fully establish equilibrium. After very careful consideration, however, we do not feel justified in asking the legislature to agree to the imposition of additional taxation beyond that which I have already mentioned. But the existence of any uncovered deficit is in present circumstances, a matter for anxiety; and we can only hope that by a combination of strict economy in every direction, together with an expansion of our revenues by a steady revival in trade, we shall before long arrive at a position of equilibrium, for I must warn the House that unless equilibrium between revenue and expenditure is arrived at in the near future, the financial position and credit of this country will inevitably suffer a rapid deterioration.

WAYS AND MEANS.

30. I have had a good deal to say to the House this morning regarding the state of the ordinary revenues of the country and the expenditure which is debitable to our revenue account. I must now turn to that part of our financial administration generally known as "Ways and Means." I know that some people are inclined to fight a little shy of ways and means matters because of the technicalities which are inseparable from the subject. But on this occasion I must invite Hon'ble Members to give their particular attention to the main facts regarding our ways and means operations in the current and coming years, for there is this year more than the usual connection between our revenue and our ways and means accounts. In the days of many of my more fortunate predecessors the existence of substantial revenue surpluses was frequently relied on to supply funds for financing our capital liabilities. There was much to be said for that cautious and conservative policy, which aimed at limiting strictly the amount of our borrowing and thus undoubtedly helped to place India's financial credit in the high position which it occupied. There was however something to be said on the other side, and there must be many here who remember Mr. Gokhale's trenchant criticisms of continued large surpluses which should, he contended, have been devoted primarily to the relief of taxation. During more recent years, however, we have unfortunately seen the other side of the picture, and I have already portrayed something of the difficulties which my Department has encountered in finding the actual cash to finance a series of revenue deficits. Indeed, it is because we are now obviously approaching the end of our resources as regards financing deficits that we have felt obliged, quite apart from all other considerations, to ask the House to agree to drastic measures in order to attempt to bridge the gulf between our revenue and our expenditure. I have shown that during the past four years we have had to find resources amounting to no less than 90 crores in respect of revenue deficits, including no less than 34 crores in the current year. In speaking of next year's deficit I have already emphasised the grave dangers involved by our attempting to continue to live on our credit in order to meet current expenditure. The facts and figures which I shall now give the House will show how this liability has handicapped us in our ways and means operations, has forced us to borrow large sums at high rates of interest, and has prevented us from reducing the dangerously high amount of our floating debt.

Effect on Ways and Means of revenue deficits.

31. I will first give the House a brief description of the other capital liabilities, besides this deficit, that we have had to meet, and of those which we expect to have to finance during the coming year.

Current year.

32. This shows we have had to meet liabilities of 90 crores in the current year, and that more than one-third thereof has been due to the revenue deficit. The Provincial Governments too have had their difficulties and have had to rely to a large extent (no less than 12¼ crores) on us to finance their deficits and capital expenditure, either by actually borrowing from us or by drawing on what is left of their balances with the Central Government. Altogether then, the financing of deficits, Central and Provincial combined, will account for over 45 crores, or more than half the total capital liabilities of the year. For the rest, 19¼ crores is represented by the discharge of our War Bonds, and the remainder by capital outlay on Railways, Delhi, and Telegraphs. In order to meet these large liabilities we have had, in the first place, sundry assets and receipts, amounting to 15 crores, which I need not specify individually. To meet the remainder we have had to raise rupee and sterling loans to an extent considerably greater than we had budgeted for. It will be seen that in India and London combined we have raised no less than 72¼ crores of rupees in new loans. That of course is a very large sum to raise, and we have only been able to do so partly because of the stagnation of trade in this country, which made Government securities almost the only available means of investment, and partly because of distinctly favourable conditions in the London money market. Finally, as a result of our heavy liabilities to finance deficits, we have been quite unable to effect any reduction in our floating debt; on the contrary, there will, we anticipate, be an increase of about 2¾ crores in the amount of treasury bills outstanding with the public at the end of the year.

Next year's liabilities.

33. As regards next year, we hope that if the House will second our efforts to increase our ordinary revenues we shall not have such a large sum to find in order to finance revenue deficits, though, apart from the Central Government's deficit of 2¾ crores, we have been warned that we may have to find nearly 10 crores, in the shape either of advances to Provincial Governments to enable them to carry on, or of drawings on their balances by such Provinces as will have any balances left. We have to find nearly 8 crores for the repayment of 1922 War Bonds, some 1½ crores in respect of capital outlay on the Telegraph Department and 2 crores for expenditure on the new capital at Delhi, for this House has already decided that, if only in the interests of economy, it is desirable that this work should be completed as soon as possible, and 2 crores is the total amount which the engineers expect to be able to spend in the year. We are also budgeting for a reduction of 4 crores in the outstandings of treasury bills with the public; I have already said sufficient on this matter to indicate the imperative necessity of our not allowing our floating debt to remain at the present dangerously high level. There remains only the provision of 30 crores for capital expenditure on Railways, as against 23 crores that we expect to spend in the current year. My Hon'ble Colleague in charge of the Railway Department will, I understand, bring before the House in the current session the recommendations made by the Committee of the two Houses of the Legislature which met in December last to consider the question of our Railway capital programme. I will not anticipate here the discussion which will no doubt then take place. All I will say is that, great as are the liabilities thrown upon our ways and means resources in other directions, it would in my opinion be a short-sighted policy, and detrimental to the trade and prosperity of the country, if we hesitated to take all possible steps to restore our railway lines to the condition demanded by the travelling public and the country's trade. This 30 crores will be practically all devoted to the improvement of existing lines; there is no provision for any new construction, except a small amount, under 2 crores, for the completion of new lines already in progress.

Railway capital expenditure.

How to be met.

34. Apart from certain miscellaneous receipts, such as savings bank deposits, we must rely entirely upon our borrowings in order to finance this liability. For the purpose of these estimates we have entered a rupee borrowing of R25 crores and a sterling borrowing of £17½ millions, the latter figure being inclusive of about £2 million which will be realised next year out of the sterling loan of £10 millions floated in December last. We thus anticipate next year a total borrowing of 51¼ crores, though we do not of course bind ourselves to distribute our borrowings as between India and England in the particular proportion I have mentioned; this must depend upon market conditions during the year. As the House is probably aware, it is by no means certain that the recent favourable conditions as regards sterling borrowing may continue throughout next year. Hitherto, Indian sterling stock has occupied a very high place among what are known as gilt-edged securities. For the first time for very many years, Indian securities recently had a sudden, but fortunately only temporary set back in popularity owing to apprehensions felt in the United Kingdom regarding the internal situation in this country. Brief as was the period of depression, the incident nevertheless carries its own warning, and I feel that it would be unsafe to count on a total borrowing, in rupees and sterling combined, larger than that for which we have taken credit. As regards rupee borrowing there are, moreover, two considerations to be borne in mind. In the first place we must remember that any appreciable revival in trade must inevitably lead to other channels of investment for those people who during the past two years have subscribed to our loans. Secondly, several of the Provincial Governments will themselves be entering the market, one of them at all events to a very substantial extent. Altogether, if we look ahead for the next few years, we have to remember that our essential capital liabilities, namely, the provision of an adequate railway programme and the repayment of our short-term bonds, represent a total sum which will strain our borrowing capacity to the utmost, and every serious thinker will I believe agree that to rely to any substantial extent on our annual borrowings to finance large revenue deficits and to provide us with funds for carrying on the ordinary day to day administration is out of the question.

Unsafe to rely on larger borrowings.

35. So far I have dealt with our ways and means position taking our balances in India and England together. It is now necessary, however, that I should give some explanation of the position at our Home Treasury, for, as the House will see, this is likely to have an important bearing upon our general currency and exchange arrangements. In normal times the usual procedure for keeping the Home Treasury in funds is for the Secretary of State to sell Council Bills upon India. No Council Bills have however been sold since 1919, the reason being that there has been no trade demand for them, while the Secretary of State has been able to keep himself in funds by recoveries made by him from the Home Government in respect of expenditure incurred by us on their behalf in India and Mesopotamia, this operating, in effect, as a remittance from us to the Secretary of State. In one financial year, namely, 1918-19 our recoveries from the Home Government were no less than £92 millions. Since then owing to the closing down of the Mesopotamian operations and the gradual disbandment of the additional troops that had been raised during the war for service overseas these recoveries have greatly diminished, and during the current year, we only expect the Secretary of State to recover about £25 millions, while during next year we do not expect that he will recover more than £9½ millions. His total liabilities, including the ordinary home charges, together with about £18½ millions on account of purchases in Europe of railway material and stock, are expected to amount to about £52¼ millions. There is therefore a substantial deficit in his resources. How is that to be supplied? I have already mentioned that he hopes to obtain about £17½ millions from sterling borrowings. Assuming that he will succeed in raising this large amount, there will still remain a gap of £18 millions, which will have to be covered by a transfer of funds from India to England. Now there are only two possible ways of making this remittance; the Secretary of State must draw on us, either through the sterling reserves or by the sale of Council Bills. It is necessary that I say a few words about each of these methods of remitting funds to him.

Problem of keeping the Secretary of State in funds.

Two possible methods.

36. As regards the former, namely, the transfer of our sterling reserves from England to India, there will be in England at the beginning of the financial year about £5¾ millions of the Paper Currency Reserve and £40 millions in the Gold Standard Reserve. Both of these are held mainly in the form of British Treasury Bills, which are readily convertible into cash. The Secretary of State can, therefore, to the extent of his requirements, draw on those reserves, provided of course (and the House will soon see that the proviso is an important one) that we earmark the necessary funds in India for credit to those reserves, the net result being a transfer of the reserves from England to India. In the case of the Paper Currency Reserve we should at this end cancel notes to an amount equivalent to the British Treasury Bills sold out by him, thus reducing the circulation to that extent. In the case of the Gold Standard Reserve we should have to earmark funds for credit to that reserve in India; we propose to do this by earmarking gold,

(1) By transfer of sterling reserves to India

i.e., we should transfer gold from the Paper Currency Reserve, which contains £24 millions, in sovereigns and gold bullion, to the Gold Standard Reserve. But here again, in order to be able to make this transfer, we should of course have to make equivalent payments to the Currency Reserve, and thus cancel notes to the necessary extent. So, whether the Secretary of State draws through the Paper Currency Reserve or through the Gold Standard Reserve, the net result is a cancellation of notes in this country. That is the operation generally known as "deflation", and I use the word for the reason that this is the actual effect of such drawings, and not because we consider that circumstances justify a policy of deflation on its own merits. But when one looks at this matter practically the question at once arises, whether we could in fact effect cancellation to the necessary extent. I must point out moreover that deflation in order to put the Secretary of State in funds does not represent the whole of the cancellation necessary, seeing that under the Paper Currency Act we are bound to apply the interest on our Paper Currency Reserve investments to the cancellation of notes issued against our ad hoc securities in India, and further, we have also undertaken to apply to the same purpose any excess in the Gold Standard Reserve over and above the figure of £40 millions. The deflation in respect of these two items will amount next year to about 6 crores, and when added to the deflation necessary on our present estimates to put the Secretary of State in funds, represent a total sum of 33 crores. I have only to mention this amount for the House to judge of the practicability of cancelling 33 crores of notes out of a total circulation of about 1,70 crores. I need not elaborate this point, for it is one which all bankers and financiers, and indeed most business men will at once appreciate. Every crore of notes cancelled by us means a withdrawal of a crore of notes from the money markets, with a proportionate tightening of money. By cancelling notes at judiciously chosen opportunities we hope to be able to provide some portion of the Secretary of State's requirements in the coming year in this manner; and of course deflation, if carried out with caution and with due regard to the legitimate needs of trade, has, as the economists tell us, a valuable effect in reducing the general level of internal prices. But, as recent experience in other countries has shown, there is an obvious limit to which we can or should go in this direction, and we recognise fully the responsibility on us not to go too far, or to produce such a sudden or rapid stringency as might lead to a dangerously acute position.

Danger of attempting too much deflation.

37. If the House has followed me in my remarks regarding the possibilities of deflation, it will be clear to it that to the extent to which our deflation falls short of the amount which we at present estimate as necessary to keep the Secretary of State in funds, it will be necessary for him to sell Council Bills. We have not entered any figure in the estimates for a remittance through Council Bills, and have for the present shown the whole remittance as effected through the sterling reserves, but of course we hold ourselves free, should circumstances require and the state of the exchange market permit, to make remittances by Councils. Further, the facts and figures which I have given to the House must dispose of any apprehension that the business community in India may still feel as regards the Secretary of State's unlimited powers to force up exchange to the two shilling level.

(2) By sale of Council Bills.

The finances of the provinces.

Exhaustion of provincial balances.

38. Now that the provincial Governments have almost complete financial autonomy, it would ordinarily be unnecessary for me to make any reference to their financial operations. What I have already said, however, regarding the difficulties in which the provinces now find themselves, and their effect upon our general ways and means operations, makes it desirable that I should make a few observations on the all-India position. A few facts will suffice to show the general position in the provinces. At the beginning of the current year the total provincial balances were 16·16 crores, while at the end of next year the aggregate balances are expected to be only 5½ crores, even after allowing both for the various loans which several provincial Governments have raised or will have raised, during the two years, and also for the proceeds of extra taxation which several provinces are imposing for their own purposes. Further, there is not a single province which, according to our present information, is not budgeting for a deficit next year. I am not in a position to give full figures, because several provincial budgets have not yet been presented, but the House may take it as reasonably correct when I say that, taking the provinces as a whole, their expenditure next year (omitting of course expenditure of a capital nature which will be defrayed from loan funds) will exceed their revenues by an amount of about 8 crores. Several of the provinces will by the end of the current year have already exhausted the balances which we keep for them as their bankers, and at least one of the major provinces will have to take a substantial advance from us merely in order to carry on. The position of the Central Government's own finances, as I have endeavoured to explain to the House this morning, shows that there can be no question of our attempting to reduce the provincial contributions of 9¾ crores in the immediate future. To do so would merely increase our own uncovered deficit, and the net result would be exactly the same whichever course we adopted, for, whether the all-India deficit be regarded as completely central, or partly central and party provincial, it will have to be financed mainly on the credit of the Central Government. The problem, therefore, is really an all-India one. The great difficulties in which most of the provinces find themselves have led in many cases to requests in non-official quarters that what is known as the Meston Settlement should be revised. I am not quite sure how far such requests are put forward with the object of obtaining a different distribution of the total contributions between the provinces, or merely represent requests for the acceleration of the abolition of the contributions. I must, however, point out that any attempt to wipe the Meston Settlement off the slate might have a very different result from what is sometimes anticipated. Lord Meston's Committee worked on our assumption that the deficit of the Central Government at the initiation of the Reforms, to be made good from contributions from the Provinces, would be 9,83 lakhs. Now, that figure was arrived at upon various assumptions, two of which were of great importance. The first was the 2 shilling rate of exchange; the second a military budget of 43 crores. The non-realisation of the first assumption means, on the present figures of our Home charges, a difference to us of no less than 15½ crores a year. As for the military budget, although the strength of the Army is not greater (it is indeed somewhat less) than the pre-war strength, the cost is some 20 crores higher than the 43 crores we assumed. I would ask, therefore, those who desire to see that settlement upset, to consider whether an impartial committee, now arriving in India to effect a new settlement, might not take a very different view as to the amount of the contributions necessary from the provinces in order to enable the Central Government to discharge its fundamental duty of securing the country's defence, maintaining internal peace, and the service of the national debt.

Problem an all-India one.

Falsification of assumptions upon which present contributions are based.

39. Knowing, however, the difficulties which each Local Government has to face, we consider that the time has come when it is desirable for us to discuss the whole position with them, in order that we may exchange ideas and learn something of each other's difficulties. We propose, therefore, as soon as convenient, to invite the financial officials of each Local Government to a conference, in order to discuss the general position as regards the contributions, and at the same time to take the opportunity of examining the problems which each province has to face in the matter of financing capital outlay on irrigation and other schemes for which the provinces are now responsible.

CONCLUSION.

40. And now, Sir, I can conclude my task. For us, for the Provincial Governments, for the country at large the year has been a difficult and disappointing one; nor is there yet any clear promise of an early lifting of the clouds which veil the horizon of our finances. We can only address ourselves with what determination we can command to the task of finding a solution for the urgent problems which immediately confront us. One fact, I think, stands out in prominence; the overwhelming importance to India's trade and exchange of world factors over which we have no control. Any attempt to devise remedies as if India were a separate entity, divorced from world conditions, would be doomed to failure. A second fact is also clear; that the world at large, and we also with other countries, have underestimated the period of convalescence necessary for recovery from the maladies of the war. I need not labour the point, for wherever you look, whether towards Central Europe, or to the United Kingdom, or even to America, it is now clear that the problems are so stupendous that recovery cannot be other than slow. But the conclusion seems to me equally clear. If our troubles are due to world causes, we must move in line with the best thinkers of the outside world in seeking the remedy; and the one solution which they can indicate for the difficulties in which State finance now everywhere finds itself, is the deliberate attempt at any cost and at any inconvenience to make revenue meet expenditure. India's financial credit has stood high with the world in the past; if she is to maintain this, and if she is to make good what is of equal importance, her political credit with the world, she cannot afford to falter in applying the obvious and inevitable remedy which the situation demands.

LASCAR SEAMEN.

Delhi, the 2nd March 1922.

RESOLUTION.

On the 26th September 1921, the Legislative Assembly adopted the following resolution:—

"This Assembly recommends to the Governor General in Council that the draft Convention for establishing facilities for finding employment for seamen adopted by the General Conference of the International Labour Organisation of the League of Nations convened at Genoa on the 15th day of June, 1920, should not be ratified, but that an examination should be undertaken, without delay, of the methods of recruitment of seamen at the different ports in India in order that it may be definitely ascertained whether abuses exist and whether those abuses are susceptible of remedy."

A similar resolution was adopted by the Council of State on the 27th September 1921.

2. In consequence of these resolutions, the Government of India made arrangements for a preliminary inquiry into the conditions under which seamen are recruited at Bombay and Calcutta, the only ports in India where seamen are engaged in large numbers. This inquiry which, under the orders of Government, was intended especially to verify the existence and extent of corrupt practices, was conducted by Mr. A. G. Clow, I.C.S., Controller of the Labour Bureau in the Government of India, accompanied by representatives of the shipowners and seamen selected by the Governments of Bombay and Bengal. For the enquiries in Bombay, the Government of Bombay nominated Mr. F. L. Barnett, Marine Superintendent, of Messrs. Turner Morrison and Company, and Mr. Mohamad Ibrahim; for the enquiries in Calcutta, the Government of Bengal nominated Mr. C. S. Penny, Marine Superintendent, B. I. S. N. Company, and Mr. M. Daud, M A., B.L., General Secretary of the Indian Seamen's Union. A large number of witnesses were examined in each place, and investigations were made in the Shipping Offices, on the ships, and in the seamen's boarding houses.

3. The Government of India have now decided to appoint a Committee which will include two Members of the Legislature in addition to the five gentlemen who have taken part in the preliminary enquiry. The Committee will sit at Delhi to examine the evidence already collected and to report what reforms are possible in existing methods of recruitment. The Committee will be constituted as follows :—

SCHEDULE IV.

(See section 279.)

Declaration between the Government of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland and the Government of the French Republic with reference to the disposal of the proceeds of Wrecks on their respective Coasts.

Act VII of 1880, Schedule added by Act VI of 1891, s. 8.

The Government of Her Majesty the Queen of the United Kingdom of Britain and Ireland, Empress of India, and the Government of the French Republic, desiring to regulate by a new Agreement questions relative to the disposal of the proceeds of wrecks on the coasts of the two States, have agreed to replace the Declaration signed at London on the 16th June 1879, by the following arrangements :—

ARTICLE I.

When any ship belonging to the subjects of one of the two Contracting States is wrecked or stranded on the coast of the other, the competent local authorities shall, with as little delay as possible, bring the fact to the knowledge of the Consul General, Consul, Vice-Consul or Consular Agent nearest to the spot where the wreck or stranding has taken place.

ARTICLE II.

All operations relative to the salvage of British ships which may be wrecked or stranded on the coasts of France shall be directed by the Consuls General, Consuls, Vice-Consuls or Consular Agents of Great Britain, and reciprocally the French Consuls General, Consuls, Vice-Consuls and Consular Agents shall direct all operations relative to the salvage of ships of their nation wrecked or stranded on the coasts of Great Britain.

ARTICLE III.

If the owners of the ship and cargo, or their duly authorised representatives, shall be present and shall claim it, the Consuls General, Consuls, Vice-Consuls and Consular Agents shall hand over to them the conduct of the salvage operations after requiring the deposit of the ship's papers, as well as the reimbursement of the expenses already defrayed, and a sufficient guarantee for those incurred before the operations were handed over, and which may not have been already settled.

ARTICLE IV.

The intervention of the local authorities shall only take place in the two countries for the purpose of assisting the Consular authority, of maintaining order, of securing the interests of the salvors if they are strangers to the ship-wrecked crews, and of assuring the due execution of the arrangements to be carried out for the entry and departure of the merchandise saved.

In the absence, and until the arrival, of the Consuls General, Consuls, Vice-Consuls or Consular Agents, the local authorities shall, moreover, take all necessary measures for the protection of the persons and for the preservation of the articles which shall have been saved from the wreck.

This intervention shall not give rise to any charges, with the exception of those which the salvage operations and the protection of the articles saved shall have rendered necessary, and those to which national ships would, under similar circumstances, be liable. These charges shall be paid according to the circumstances of the case, either by the Agents of the Consular service, or by their owners or their proxies.

In case absence, sickness or any other cause should prevent the Agents of the Consular service from seeing to the operations and the management of the salvage, the local authorities who may be charged with the operations and management in question shall be bound to remit to the aforesaid Agents the ship's papers and the net proceeds of the ship and the cargo.

ARTICLE V.

The merchandise and articles saved shall not be liable to any customs-duties, unless they are intended for home consumption, in which case they shall pay the same duties as they would have had to pay if they had been imported in national vessels.

ARTICLE VI.

The stipulations of the present Declaration shall be applicable to all the Colonies and foreign possessions of Her Britannic Majesty, excepting to those hereinafter named, that is to say, except to—

India.	Victoria.
The Dominion of Canada.	Queensland.
Newfoundland.	Tasmania.
The Cape.	South Australia.
Natal.	Western Australia.
New South Wales.	New Zealand ;

Provided always that the stipulations of the present Declaration shall be made applicable to any of the above-named Colonies or foreign possessions on whose behalf notice to that effect shall have been given by Her Britannic Majesty's Representative to the French Republic within one year from the date of the signature of the present Declaration.

The stipulations of the present Declaration shall be applicable to all the Colonies and foreign possessions of France.

ARTICLE VII.

The present Declaration shall come into operation three months after the date of its signature, and shall remain in force until the expiration of one year from the day on which either Party may give notice of its intention to terminate it.

In witness whereof, the undersigned Plenipotentiaries, His Excellency the Earl of Lytton, Ambassador of Her Majesty the Queen of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland, Empress of India, and His Excellency M. Eugène Spuller, Minister for Foreign Affairs, have signed the present Declaration, and have affixed thereto their seals.

Done at Paris, this twenty-third day of October, 1889.

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.

The object of this Bill is to consolidate as far as may be the Indian Acts relating to merchant shipping. The first Act now on the Indian Statute Book dealing with that subject was passed in 1838 and the last in 1920, and during this period of nearly a century, a large number of Acts have been from time to time enacted by the Legislature. The result is that the law has become increasingly difficult to refer to and the case for consolidation is very strong.

Attempts have been made on several occasions in the past to remedy this state of affairs. In 1867, again in 1882, and more particularly in the years 1893 to 1896, Bills attempting to effect a complete or partial consolidation were brought before the Legislature. These attempts failed for a variety of causes with which it is unnecessary to enter in detail, but a possible cause common to all was the fact that consolidation and amendment were undertaken at the same time. If, as seems probable, the effects to consolidate and amend at the same time were contributory to the failures in the past, such a course is not less undesirable in 1922, for the volume of the law to be dealt with is far greater and the legislative machinery is far more complex. The present Bill, therefore, does not attempt to go beyond consolidation and that not even of the whole of the law which is not feasible for reasons which will be dealt with later.

Any consolidating measure must, however, necessarily involve a consideration of the English Statute Law on the subject, for by the enactment of the Imperial Statute, the great Merchant Shipping Act of 1894, the powers of the Indian Legislature were both curtailed and extended. The Indian law has therefore to be brought into legal harmony with that enactment and its amending Acts. Save for this purpose and in the few unimportant respects, mostly necessitated by the lapse of time, which are referred to in the Notes on Clauses, no change of substance has been made intentionally.

2. The Bill is an imperfect consolidation of the law in one important respect. It leaves untouched the Indian law relating to the registration of ships. That law is contained in Act XIX of 1838 and Act X of 1841 and its amending Acts. The latter Acts were passed in virtue of Acts of Parliament which have been repealed, and though their provisions are saved there is no power to re-enact them even if it were desirable to do so. Whether they can now be repealed and the matter left to be dealt with by Part I of the English Merchant Shipping Act, 1894, which extends throughout the British Empire, or whether special provisions must be maintained to meet the case of country craft and other classes of shipping provided for by these Acts are matters which are beyond the scope of a consolidating Bill prepared under the auspices of the body which stands sponsor for the present measure.

3. The Bill has been prepared and considered by the Statute Law Revision Committee and they consider it a useful step towards the clarification of the Statute Book.

They do not, however, recommend it should be passed into law in its present shape. It is abundantly evident that numerous amendments of the law are called for, some of which they have indicated in the Notes on Clauses.

They would recommend that the passage of the present Bill should be suspended at some convenient stage in its consideration by the Indian Legislature, and that an amending Bill drawn to harmonize with this consolidating measure should, when all controversial points have been decided, be referred for amalgamation with the present Bill.

A. P. MUDDIMAN,

President, Statute Law Revision Committee.

The 6th February, 1922.

Notes on Clauses.

Clause 2.—The definitions of "effects" and "wages" are new. They have been inserted for purely drafting purposes, in order to shorten the language of the Bill and follow the definitions in the Merchant Shipping Act, 1894, section 742.

Clause 4.—This clause does not exactly reproduce the existing law. Section 114 of the Indian Merchant Shipping Act, 1859, section 5 of the Indian Merchant Shipping Act, 1883, and section 5 (c) of the Indian Steam-ships Act, 1884, except from the operation of the provisions of those Acts, respectively, ships "belonging to His Majesty or the Government, etc." On the other hand, sections 3 and 80 of the Indian Merchant Shipping Act, 1880, except ships "belonging to, or hired by, Her Majesty or the Secretary of State for India in Council"; section 2 of the Native Passenger Ships Act, 1887, excepts ships of the Royal Navy and Indian Marine and "any other ship for the time being in the service of Her Majesty"; and the Indian Wireless Telegraphy (Shipping) Act, 1920, does not exempt any ships at all. As the exact amendment of the various provisions here noticed has, in the past, frequently been questioned, and as the Acts of 1859 and 1883 were amended in this respect in 1919, it seems possible that the provisions, as consolidated in the draft Bill, will be suitable and sufficient.

The Merchant Shipping Act, 1894, confers a special exemption in regard to ships belonging to a foreign State. The exemption in the English law, and the same is also probably true as regards India, rests on the general exemption consequent on the absolute independence of every sovereign authority under the international comity which induces every sovereign State to respect the independence and dignity of every other sovereign State as a consequence of which public property which is destined for the public use of a State is exempt from territorial jurisdiction. See the Parlement Belles (1890), 5 P. D. 197 C. A. As, however, the Indian Acts contain various exemptions, this clause reproduces in a generalised form the exemption of public ships of foreign States. There is a slight alteration in the law to which attention is drawn, in that Act X of 1887, section 2 (2) (iii) confines the exemption to ships of war.

Clause 5 (1).—Section 262 of the Merchant Shipping Act, 1894, exempts pleasure yachts from certain requirements of the corresponding Part, and it seems probable that the same exemption should find place in the Indian law. The matter is one for an amending Bill.

Clause 5 (2).—This gives the widest scope possible to our Indian legislation having regard to section 261 of the Merchant Shipping Act, 1894. This part of the Bill fills up the lacunæ which the section in question leaves in the application of Part II of the Imperial Act. Sub-clause (3) of the same clause gives the widest application to the Part which is possible under the Imperial Law and refers in support of this to section 264 of the Merchant Shipping Act, 1894.

Clause 6.—The terms "shipping-master" and "shipping office" were originally used in the English Merchant Shipping law, but by section 15 of 25 and 26 Vict., C. 63, the phrases "Superintendent of a mercantile marine office" and "Mercantile marine office" were respectively substituted. From the drafting point of view there is no particular advantage in making the substitution in the Bill, and it is possible that, for administrative reasons, it may be undesirable to change well-known titles. Under section 742 of the Merchant Shipping Act, 1894, the Superintendent, so far as regards a British possession, includes any shipping-master or other officer discharging in that possession the duties of the Superintendent, so no difficulty arises in that connection from the retention of the word "shipping-master". If for any administrative reasons the substitution is considered desirable, it is a matter which might well be dealt with by an amending Act.

Clause 9.—This clause reproduces the existing law. It may be pointed out that the fees payable upon engagements and discharges of seamen have been abolished in the United Kingdom and by the Statute Law Revision Act, 55 and 56 Vict., C. 19, the law which authorises the levy of those fees was repealed.

Clause 11.—Clause 11 has been drawn in the somewhat awkward form in which it appears in the Bill, as, though it reproduces the existing law, it seems probable that an amendment will be called for. Under the English law, section 92 of the Merchant Shipping Act, all ships to which that section applies are required to have at least a certificated master.

Clause 11 (2).—The draft Bill makes a slight change here in the existing law, as a steam-ship proceeding to the Straits Settlements would require engineer officers only on the scale required for home-trade ships; whereas, under section 31 of the Indian Steam-ships Act, 1884, she is treated in this respect as a foreign-going ship. It is to be observed that the reference to the Straits Settlements was included in the definition of a "foreign-going ship" contained in section 118 of the Merchant Shipping Act, 1859, by the Indian Merchant Shipping Law Amendment Act, 1891, and that a similar amendment was not made in section 30 (1) of the Indian Steam-ships Act, 1884. Attention is drawn to the point in case the matter may be one of practical importance.

Clause 11 (3).—The provision in Act VII of 1884, section 32, which is here re-enacted is re-enacted in an absolute form instead of depending as it does in the existing law on an order of the Local Government. This clause, it is thought, is justified as it is understood that all maritime Local Governments have made the order and the requirement is in force and is also in accordance with the trend of modern legislation.

Clause 16.—The examiners are required to report on the sobriety, experience and ability of applicants for certificates as masters and mates under the existing Indian law. The clause as drawn extends this requirement to the case of engineer certificates, and thus makes a small alteration in the law. There seems no reason why the law should not be assimilated into the English law, and the fact that the requirement does not exist would appear to be mainly due to the different periods of time at which the Acts here consolidated were enacted. As, however, a small alteration in the law is involved attention is drawn to this clause.

Clause 17.—This clause omits those portions of section 12 of Act I of 1859 which appear to be clearly spent. It further substitutes what are understood to be the modern designations of the Officers of the Naval or Royal Indian Marine officers referred to in the existing law. The Committee, however, are not in possession of sufficient information on the subject to say whether the designations employed are entirely accurate, and attention is drawn to this clause from that point of view.

Clause 22.—Following the drafting of the Merchant Shipping Act, 1894, the provisions of the law relating to the production of certificates of competency to the shipping-master are separated from those relating to the production of the agreement with the crew, which will be found in clause 34. This separation makes the drafting clearer and is necessitated by the re-arrangement of the order of the provisions incorporated in the Bill.

Clause 23.—The provisions of the Apprentices Act, 1850 (XIX of 1850), relating to apprentices to the sea service have been reproduced in the Bill, and the references in the Apprentices Act have accordingly been repealed. It is thought that these provisions more appropriately belong to the law relating to Merchant Shipping, especially as they impose duties on shipping-masters. It may be pointed out, however, that these provisions merely refer to ships registered in British India. It has been ascertained by inquiry from those conversant with the facts that apprenticeships are made in British India to owners of ships registered in the United Kingdom. The provisions of sections 108 and 109 of the Merchant Shipping Act, 1894, only apply in the United Kingdom. It seems desirable that they should be re-enacted mutatis mutandis in the Indian law, but the matter is one for an amending Bill.

Clause 27.—The requirement regarding agreements with the crew under the existing law, which is here reproduced, only extends to home-trade ships of three hundred tons or upwards. Attention is drawn to the provisions of the Merchant Shipping Act, 1894, section 113, which requires an agreement in the case of all ships, except home-trade ships of less than eighty tons.

Clause 28 (2) (f).—The power to fix the scale of provisions in the case of lascars or other native seamen is by the existing law conferred on the Local Government, with the previous sanction of the Governor General in Council. This provision is reproduced in the Bill, but the re-arrangement of the Bill brings out the inconsistency of this division of the powers when it is considered that the form of agreement is to be sanctioned by the Governor General in Council. There appears to be some case for a consideration of an amendment of the law.

Clause 28 (2) (g).—The reference to short allowance of provisions herein contained reproduces the existing law, but it is understood that in the sanctioned form of agreement this punishment has long been struck out. In these circum stances here also there appears to be a case for the amendment of the law.

Clause 38.—This clause reproduces the existing law, but it is for consideration whether some amendment is not desirable. The clause relates to the engagement of seamen "to proceed to any port out of British India". This would include some home-trade voyages. The question seems to arise, therefore, whether some amendment is not necessary.

Clause 49.—The existing law is reproduced by this clause, but the attention of Government might be called to the provisions of section 137 of the Merchant Shipping Act, 1894, which enables small questions of wages to be dealt with in the case of foreign-going ships without a written agreement. The matter is not, however, one that can be dealt with in a consolidating Bill.

Clause 56.—Sub-clause (2) of this clause is new. It is based on section 56 (g) of the Merchant Shipping Act, 1894. As will be seen it is merely a drafting amendment, and, therefore, may reasonably be inserted in a consolidating Bill. It remedies a defect in the section which is obvious.

Clause 59.—In connection with this clause attention is drawn to the provisions of section 160 of the Merchant Shipping Act, 1894, under which a seaman is not entitled to wages where his illness is only caused by his own default. Apparently under the Indian law a man is entitled to wages in those circumstances.

Clause 63.—This reproduces the existing law, but some amendment is desirable, as the Indian law does not recognise a summary suit before a Magistrate.

Clause 65.—Section 167 (2) of the Merchant Shipping Act, 1894, gives the master and the persons lawfully acting, owing to his illness, for the master similar rights in respect of lawful disbursements. This is a provision which might well find place in an amending Bill.

Clause 75 (1) (c).—The provision here reproduced is that contained in section 56 (c) of Act VII of 1880. It seems somewhat anomalous that the control over the local authority which is appointed by the Local Government [clause 74 (2)], should be vested in the Governor General in Council.

Clause 98.—This clause reproduces the existing law, and follows the Merchant Shipping Act, 1854, which only applies to ships before arrival in dock or the place of discharge. A substantial amendment is necessary if the Indian law is to be brought into harmony with the English law contained in section 218 of the Merchant Shipping Act, 1894.

Clause 147.—Under section 368 of the Merchant Shipping Act, 1894, the provisions of Part III of that Act (other than the provisions relating to passenger steamers only) do not apply to British India, but by sub-section (2) of that section, the Governor General in Council is, by Act, allowed to declare that all or any provisions of Part III shall apply to the carriage of steerage passengers upon any voyage from any specified port whatsoever. This section in the Merchant Shipping Act, 1894, is based on section 99 of 18 and 19 Vict.,

C. 119 (the Passengers' Act, 1855). Under the powers conferred by that Act, the Indian Sea Passengers' Act, 1855, was passed. The Passengers' Act dealt with the carriage of passengers of all classes. Section 368 referred to above only deals with the carriage of steerage passengers. The provisions of the Indian Sea Passengers' Act were, in effect, made applicable to certain voyages specified in section 3 of that Act, and to those voyages the provisions of sections 273 and 274 and Schedule VII of the Passengers' Act were applied. The corresponding provisions of the Merchant Shipping Act of 1894 are the provisions in case of wreck contained in sections 332, 333, 334 and 335 of the Act of 1894, and these provisions have been incorporated in a Schedule to the Bill.

Section 365 (3) provides that an Act passed in virtue of the power conferred by that section shall not have effect under the section unless it is reserved for the signification of His Majesty's pleasure thereon, or contains a suspending clause providing that the Act shall not come into operation until His Majesty's pleasure thereon has been publicly signified in British India. Section 368 does not contain a provision with reference to Acts passed under the power reproduced thereby similar to that in section 735, sub-section (2) of the Merchant Shipping Act, 1894. It will, therefore, appear to be necessary to insert a clause making the repeal of the existing law take effect from the date on which His Majesty may signify his pleasure.

Part IV.—The clauses of the Bill in this Part are a consolidation of the Native Passenger Ships Act, 1887 (X of 1887), and the Pilgrim Ships Act, 1895 (XIV of 1895). Though possibly for some reasons it might be more convenient to keep these Acts separate, it is impossible to do so in a consolidation Bill, as a large number of the clauses of the two Acts are verbatim reproductions. The plan adopted has been to state the general provisions which apply to both classes of ships, and then to proceed to deal with the special rules which relate only to the particular class in question.

Clause 149 (2).—It has been found desirable to define "native passenger ship", and the reference in the provision is to clause 147 (2).

Clause 218.—In this clause and in the clause following, clause 219, regarding the marking of load-lines, the provisions of the existing law have been consolidated so as to bring together, subject to the exceptions provided by the Part, the provisions of the law relating both to British and foreign ships.

Clause 228.—This clause contains the saving for foreign ships contained in Act VII of 1880, and the Bill as drawn in this form makes it possible to summarise the provisions relating to overloading and improper loading and the marking of the deck of load-lines covering the cases of all classes of vessels.

Clause 238.—This clause contains the special provisions, in the application to foreign ships, of the provisions as to detention which are contained in section 85 of Act VII of 1880.

Clauses 240—245.—These clauses consolidate the law in regard to the provision of wireless telegraphy on board ships, which seem to fall appropriately under this part of the Bill.

Part VI.—This Part separates from the main body of the Act the provisions of the law in regard to shipping inquiries in Courts. In this respect it follows the Merchant Shipping Act, 1894, and the arrangement is probably convenient.

Clause 251.—The power to legislate to give power to hold an inquiry in the case of a master, mate or engineer holding a certificate under the Merchant Shipping Act, 1894, is restricted by section 478 of the Merchant Shipping Act, 1894, to the cases mentioned in clause (b) of sub-clause (1) of that clause. It seems desirable that this limitation should appear on the face of the Act, and accordingly it has been inserted in this clause.

Clause 258.—The power conferred by section 472 of the Merchant Shipping Act, 1894, appears to supersede the power in section 80 of Act I of 1859 as regards Courts having Admiralty jurisdiction, and the reference in this clause is intended to draw attention to the existence of that power.

Clause 265.—This clause gives power to Courts, in ports where there is no Colonial Court of the Admiralty, to remove a master.

Clause 280.—This clause brings together the officers or other persons who are by various sections of the Act consolidated and declared to be public servants within the meaning of the Indian Penal Code (XLV of 1860). This consolidates the provisions as to the place of trial which are scattered over the various Acts.

Clause 281.—This consolidates, in as general a form as possible, the scattered provisions as to the depositions of witnesses who cannot be produced.

Section 112 of the Merchant Shipping Act, 1859, does not confine the power to try cases thereunder to first class Magistrates, but under the existing law it is only Magistrates of the first class who can try cases summarily. In the Act of 1880 there is no special provision as to the class of Magistrate who may try offences except section 54, which provides that Chapter III should be taken as part of the Indian Merchant Shipping Act, 1859, and the same remark applies to the Act of 1883. Section 38 of the Indian Steam-ships Act, 1864, contains the provision which appears in the Bill, whilst the Native Passenger Ships Act, 1887, and the Pilgrim Ships Act, 1895, confine the power to try cases under those Acts to Magistrates of the first and second classes. The Indian Wireless Telegraphy (Shipping) Act, 1920, imposes no limitation. This clause, therefore, does not exactly reproduce the existing law, but it is suggested that, in a Bill of this kind, it would be difficult, and possibly is not necessary, to specify various offences as triable, respectively, by first and second class Magistrates.

Clause 284.—This places in the appropriate part of the Bill the provisions for enforcing the detention of a ship.

Clause 286.—This consolidates the various provisions scattered through the Act as to the levy of wages, fines, etc., by description of the ship.

Clause 288.—This gives general application to the provisions of two Acts regarding the application of fines imposed under the Act.

Clause 289 (1).—This clause follows the Merchant Shipping Act, 1894, section 723, in that it gives to the shipping-master a power of entry on board British ships in all cases and not only, as in section 30 of the Indian Merchant Shipping Act, 1859, reproduced in clause 41 of the Bill, for the purpose of preventing a seaman from being shipped contrary to the provisions of that Act.

H. MONCRIEFF SMITH,
Secretary to the Government of India.

Every sadhu or fakir who may wish to adopt as a chela or murid any minor shall present himself together with the minor whom he wishes to adopt and such minor's father or guardian before the district magistrate, or any other magistrate of the first class within the limits of whose jurisdiction the said minor resides, and shall apply in writing that a record of the proposed adoption be made, and such magistrate, after examining the parties appearing before him and recording such other evidence, if any, as he may consider necessary, shall, if satisfied that the applicant is a member of some recognized religious order in which the practice of adopting minors as chelas or murids is permitted and that the consent of the minor and of his father or guardian is free, and voluntary, record the fact of the adoption in a register to be kept for this purpose, and shall give to the said sadhu or fakir a certificate signed by himself in the form prescribed by rules framed under section 14 of this Act.

If the magistrate to whom an application to record an adoption is made is not satisfied as to the particulars hereinbefore mentioned, he shall refuse to record the adoption.

Procedure when no father or guardian of the minor is discoverable.

4. If any sadhu or fakir should wish to adopt as a chela or murid any minor whose father or guardian is not discoverable, he shall present himself together with such minor before the magistrate of the district in which such minor resides or is found and apply in writing that a record of the proposed adoption be made, and the said magistrate shall thereupon proceed as nearly as may be in the manner prescribed by the last preceding section :

Provided that the magistrate of the district may refuse registration if he considers that it is not in the interests of the minor, and may deal with him in one or other of the ways provided for by section 10.

Registration of existing chelas or murids.

5. Every sadhu or fakir who, at the date of the coming into force of this Act, has under his control as a chela or murid any minor shall forthwith present himself together with such minor before the magistrate of the district in which the adoption in fact took place or in which the said sadhu or fakir generally resides, and apply in writing that a record of the alleged adoption be made, and such magistrate shall thereupon proceed as nearly as may be in the manner prescribed by section 3 or section 4 of this Act.

Appeal.

6. From any order passed under section 3, 4 or 5 recording or refusing to record an adoption an appeal shall lie, if preferred within thirty days from the date of the order, to the District Judge, whose decision thereon shall be final.

Production of certificate.

7. (1) Every certificate of adoption granted under section 3, 4 or 5 shall be retained by the applicant and must be produced when demanded by any magistrate or by any police officer not below the rank of a sub-inspector.

(2) If a sadhu or fakir, who has obtained a certificate of registration, dies leaving a minor chela or murid, it shall not be lawful for his successor to keep the chela or murid in his custody without obtaining a certificate of registration as provided for in this Act.

Chapter III.—Offences.

Sadhu or fakir found with uncertificated minor.

8. After the expiry of one year from the date of the coming into force of this Act, any sadhu or fakir, in whose custody any minor, not being his natural-born son, may be found, and who cannot produce a certificate of adoption in respect of such minor granted under the provisions of this Act, shall be punishable in respect of the first offence with fine which may extend to fifty rupees, or with simple imprisonment which may extend to one month, or with both, and in respect of any subsequent offence with fine which may extend to one hundred rupees, or with rigorous imprisonment which may extend to three months, or with both.

Father of uncertificated minor.

9. The father of any minor in respect of whom in the circumstances mentioned in the last preceding section no certificate has been granted shall be punishable with fine which may extend to fifty rupees or with simple imprisonment which may extend to one month, unless he can show that the minor has become associated with the sadhu or fakir against his father's wishes and in circumstances beyond his control and that at the time the said minor disappeared from his custody he reported such disappearance to the police or made a complaint to a magistrate.

Power of magistrate to dispose of uncertificated minor.

10. (1) Where any minor is found in the custody of a sadhu or fakir who cannot produce a certificate granted under this Act, any magistrate making an inquiry under section 8 may direct that the minor be restored to his father or guardian, if discoverable, or be made over to any respectable person, of the same religion as the minor, who is willing to take charge of such minor, and may obtain an agreement in writing from such person that the minor will be properly taken care of and duly instructed in some trade, profession or calling by the exercise of which he may be able to earn his own livelihood, or, failing such person, be disposed of in any manner to be provided for by rules framed by the Local Government under section 14.

(2) Upon complaint made to any magistrate by or on behalf of any minor, in respect of whom such agreement as aforesaid shall have been executed, of refusal or neglect to provide for him or to teach him according to the agreement, or of cruelty or other ill-treatment by his master or by the agent under whom he shall have been placed by his master, the magistrate may summon the master or his agent, as the case may be, if he is within his jurisdiction, to appear before him at a reasonable time to be stated in the summons to answer the complaint, and at such time, whether the master or his agent be present or not (the service of the summons being proved), may examine into the matter of the complaint and, upon proof thereof, may cancel the agreement and assess upon the offender whether he shall be the master or his agent a reasonable sum for the benefit of the minor not exceeding Rs. 500, and if the offender shall not pay the sum so assessed may levy the same by distress and sale of his goods and chattels and if the offender shall not be the master, but his agent, by distress and sale of goods and chattels of his master also.

Sadhus or fakirs from other provinces.

11. Notwithstanding anything hereinbefore contained, if any sadhu or fakir against whom proceedings are being taken under section 8 of this Act alleges that the minor came under his control in some place outside the territories to which this Act applies, the magistrate in charge of such proceedings may by order direct him to furnish within a time specified therein evidence of the manner in which he obtained possession of the minor and may during such time remand to custody either the sadhu or fakir, or the minor, or both, or take bail for their appearance before him on any specified date.

If the magistrate should find that the adoption was made with the consent of the parent or guardian of the minor, or that the parent or guardian of the minor cannot be traced, but that the adoption is in the interest of the minor, the magistrate shall either grant to the sadhu or fakir a certificate as provided for by section 3 or shall send the parties concerned to the magistrate of the district in which proceedings under section 8 are being taken with recommendation that such certificate be granted, and the district magistrate shall accordingly grant such certificate. But if the magistrate should find that the circumstances of the case do not justify the granting of a certificate he may then proceed as provided for by clause 10:

Provided that this will not apply to the case of a minor who is a natural-born son of a sadhu or fakir and is found so begging in company of his father.

If satisfactory evidence be furnished that the possession of such minor is legitimate, the magistrate shall record the circumstances and either grant to the sadhu or fakir a certificate as provided for by section 3, or send the parties concerned to the district magistrate with a recommendation that such certificate be granted.

If no satisfactory evidence as to the origin of the possession of such minor be produced, the magistrate shall direct that the minor be taken from the sadhu and be dealt with as provided in section 10.

Disposal of minor found begging.

12. Any minor found begging in any street or public place, whether under the pretext of offering anything for sale or otherwise may be dealt with in the manner provided for by section 10 of this Act.

Offences by whom cognizable.

13. (1) Any police officer not below the rank of a sub-inspector may arrest without a warrant any person who appears to him to be committing an offence under section 8 of this Act.

(2) All offences provided for by this Act shall be bailable.

Chapter IV—Miscellaneous.

Power of Local Government to make rules.

14. The Local Government may frame rules prescribing—

(a) the form of registers to be maintained under this Act;

(b) the form of certificate to be granted under this Act;

(c) the form of agreement which may be obtained under section 10;

(d) the fees, if any, payable on the registration of an adoption;

(e) the maintenance at the headquarters of each district of a record of all registrations effected in the United Provinces under this Act;

(f) the manner of disposing of unclaimed orphans under section 10;

(g) generally for the more effectual carrying out of the purpose of this Act.

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.

THIS Bill aims at the removal of a standing grievance in the whole country that minors, both Hindus and Muhammadans, are forced or induced to become sadhus or fakirs before the age of 18 years, who generally lead a life of mendicancy or commit crimes. I moved a resolution in the United Provinces Council, and a committee under rule 13 of the then Council Rules was appointed to draft a Bill. The committee after making inquiries drafted a Bill in 1919 and submitted it to the Government, but as the councils were going to be reformed, no further action was taken on the subject. The majority of opinion received on the subject were unanimous in having some legislation on the subject. As it is an All-India subject, I would like to introduce the enclosed Bill in the Council of State. It is a very mild measure and requires every person, who gets a minor to have him registered in the district from which he takes the boy. The Bill concerns only the boys and not the girls. If no registration will be made and a person will be found in custody of any unregistered minor, he shall be required to get a certificate of registration or make over the boy to the officer in charge who would make him over, for being brought up, to any private individual or to any recognised orphanage. The provisions of the Bill are tentative and liable to necessary changes, which can be made after the introduction of the Bill in the Council.

LEGISLATIVE DEPARTMENT.

The following Bill was introduced in the Legislative Assembly on the 27th February, 1922 :—

No. 9 OF 1922.

A bill to regulate the employment of child labour in ports in British India.

WHEREAS it is expedient to regulate the employment of child labour in ports in British India; It is hereby enacted as follows :—

Short title.

1. This Act may be called the Indian Ports (Amendment) Act, 192 .

Amendment of section 6, Act XV of 1908.

2. In section 6 of the Indian Ports Act, 1908,— XV of 1908.

"(1A) In addition to any rules which it is empowered to make under sub-section (1), the Local Government shall make rules prohibiting the employment at piers, jetties, landing-places, wharves, quays, docks, warehouses and sheds of children under the age of twelve years upon the handling of goods other than goods which can be transported by hand"; and

(b) in sub-section (2) after the word and figure "sub-section (1)" the words and figure "and sub-section (1A)" shall be inserted.

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.

The general Conference of the International Labour Organisation of the League of Nations convened at Washington on the 29th October, 1919, adopted a Draft Convention concerning the minimum age for admission of children to industrial employment. Article 6 (c) of the Convention prohibits, inter alia, the employment of children under twelve years of age in the handling of goods in docks, quays and wharves, but excluding transport by hand. On the recommendation of the Legislative Assembly and the Council of State, the Governor General in Council has ratified the whole of the Convention, and the Government of India are now under an obligation to make the provisions of Article 6 (c) effective. The object of the present Bill is to fulfil this obligation so far as the employment of children in the handling of goods in docks, quays and wharves is concerned.

LEGISLATIVE DEPARTMENT.

The following Bill was introduced in the Legislative Assembly on the 28th February 1922 :—

No. 10 OF 1922.

A Bill to define the liability of a Hindu Coparcener.

WHEREAS doubts have arisen as to the liability of a Hindu coparcener, subject to the Mitakshara Law, for the debts incurred by the manager for family necessity, and also as regards the antecedent debt of the father; and whereas it is expedient to define his liability; It is hereby enacted as follows:—

Short title, commencement and extent.

1. (1) This Act may be called the Hindu Coparcener's Liability Act, 192 .

(2) It shall come into force on the day of

(3) It shall extend to persons subject to the Mitakshara Law in the whole of British India.

Interpretation clause.

2. In this Act, unless there is anything repugnant in the subject or context:—

(i) "coparcener" includes a minor member of a joint Mitakshara family;

(ii) "debt" includes a pecuniary obligation arising out of a contract, express or implied, or from a breach of civil duty;

(iii) "antecedent debt", with reference to a transfer made by the father, means a debt contracted prior thereto in a transaction unconnected therewith.

Explanation:—A debt may be antecedent though it was contracted on the security of coparcenary estate.

Coparcener's share when liable.

3. Notwithstanding anything otherwise held to the contrary, the interest of a member of a joint Mitakshara family in the family property shall be liable for a debt incurred by the manager for legal necessity or for the benefit of the estate, and where the debt is incurred by the father, also for his own antecedent debt, not illegal or immoral.

Extent of son's liability.

4. The son is liable to pay his father's debts, not illegal or immoral, to the extent of his interest in the coparcenary estate, or of the assets inherited by him.

Save as above such liability is otherwise coextensive with that of the father and is not dependent upon the latter's death.

Creditor's suit against the son.

5. (1) The unsecured creditor suing the son for the recovery of his father's debt must prove the debt.

(2) It is then upon the son to prove that the debt was non-existent, or that it was illegal or immoral, of which fact the creditor had notice.

(3) The creditor may then show that he had made the loan after reasonable inquiry, being satisfied that it was required for a purpose neither illegal nor immoral.

Mortgagee's suit against coparceners.

6. In a suit on a mortgage executed by the father or manager against the other coparceners, it lies on the mortagee to prove that the debt was contracted for a purpose binding upon them.

Joinder of parties.

7. In a suit instituted to enforce a mortgage executed by the manager, the other members are proper parties, but their non-joinder does not exempt them from liability, if it appears that they were sufficiently represented by the manager.

Burden where purchaser is in possession.

8. (1) It lies on the coparcener suing for recovery of joint property sold by the manager to prove that the sale was one which, by its nature and purpose, did not bind his interest, and that the purchaser had notice of it.

(2) In a sale made in execution of a decree obtained against the manager the Court will presume that the purchaser, if a stranger to the suit, had no notice of anything that does not appear in the decree.

Effect of decree against the manager.

9. (1) A decree passed against the manager in respect of a liability incurred within the scope of his authority is enforceable against the other members of the joint family though they may not have been parties to the suit.

(2) But in such case the other members are not precluded from contesting the authority of the manager or the binding nature of the debt.

(3) Where a decree directs sale of the rights, title and interest of the defendant in any property, the question whether the sale so made suffices to pass the entire estate of which the defendant was the manager or only his own interest, is one of construction and intention to be gathered from the proceedings and other circumstances of the case.

(4) In particular and without prejudice to the generality of the foregoing provision in determining the question the following facts are material :—

(a) The nature of the contract, if any.

(b) The character of the debt.

(c) The capacity in which the defendant is sued.

(d) The intention of the Court.

(e) The price paid by the purchaser.

(f) And any fact which shows what interest he intended to purchase.

Illustration.

A decree is passed against the father A, for sale of his interest in mouza B, which is his family property. C objects to the sale of anything beyond A's interest therein on the ground that the decree was obtained for A's immoral debt. He fails to prove it. The sale conveys the entirety of B.

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.

THIS Bill is intended to restore the current of decisions relating to the coparcener's liability for debts contracted and transfers made by the manager of a Mitakshara joint family, and the father who occupied a position of greater strength before the decision of the Privy Council in Sahu Ram's case (39 A. 437 P. C.). This case has given rise to a crop of cases upon which there is already a sharp conflict between the several High Courts. In two Full Bench cases the Madras and the Patna High Courts have held the case to leave undisturbed the pre-existing law [43 M. 711; F. B. (1921) Pat 245 F. B.]; but this view has not found favour with the other Courts (41 A. 235; 529; 52 I. C. Oudh Case 449; 22 Oudh Case 25; 84; 23 Oudh Case 204; 264; 327; 6 Oudh L. J. 297; 331; 48 I. C Nagpur Case 193). Advantage has been taken of the present Bill to define not only the liability of the coparcener and the son but the extent of their rights in the coparcenary estate.

It is hoped that the measure if passed into law will not only quell the doubts which the Courts have felt on the position of coparceners but assist in the administration of Hindu Law, in which others dealing with members of a joint family feel equally concerned, and who have a right to expect from the Legislature a clear enunciation of their rights and liabilities which cannot be left to the chance of litigation.

The notes on clauses hereto appended explain and justify them on the strength of cases noted thereon.

NOTES ON CLAUSES.

Clause 2.—'Debt' has nowhere been defined in the Hindu Law. The question whether it includes a pecuniary liability arising from a breach of civil duty has been answered in the affirmative by the Calcutta High Court (24 C. 672, 39 C. 862).

'Antecedent debt'.—This definition accords with the cases decided before Surit Ram's case (39 A. 377 P. C.) and is in accordance with the decisions of the Full Bench in 43 M. 711; 1921 Pat. 245.

It overrules Sahu Ram V. Bhup Singh (39 A. 377 P. C.) so far as it is understood to lay down the contrary and the cases which so understand it.

Clause 3.—This is in accordance with the following cases :—

6 M. I. A. 393; 40 M. 709 P. C. The position of the father as such is independent of his status as manager, see 13 C. 21; 40 C. 342; 33 B. 264; 43 M. 711.

Clause 4.—This is the effect of 8 B. 220, 309, 33B. 264; 40 C. 342. The son's pious obligation arises independently of the father's death—22 M. 49 F. B. which is in accordance with Hindu Law. The contrary laid down by the Privy Council in 39 A. 377 is here overruled.

Clauses 5—9.—These are copied from my Hindu Code (ss. 123—127), where numerous authorities will be found cited in support of them.

The following Bill was introduced in the Legislative Assembly on the 28th February, 1922:—

No. 11 OF 1922.

A Bill further to amend the Married Women's Property Act, 1874.

III of 1874. WHEREAS it is expedient further to amend the Married Women's Property Act, 1874, in the manner hereinafter appearing; It is hereby enacted as follows:—

Short title. 1. This Act may be called the Married Women's Property (Amendment) Act, 192 .

Amendment of section 6, Act III of 1874. 2. To section 6 of the Married Women's Property Act, 1874, the following shall be added, namely:— III of 1874

"Notwithstanding anything contained in section 2, this section shall apply, and shall be deemed to have always applied, to Hindus, Muhammadans, Buddhists, Sikhs, and Jains."

Saving of past judgments. 3. Nothing herein enacted shall invalidate any judgment of any competent Court pronounced before the date on which this Act shall receive the assent of the Governor General.

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.

DOUBTS have arisen whether, in view of section 2 of the Married Women's Property Act, 1874 (III of 1874), section 6 thereof, which relates to a Policy of Insurance effected by a married man on his own life and expressed on the face of it to be for the benefit of his wife, or of his wife and children, or any of them, applies to Hindus, Muhammadans, Buddhists, Sikhs, and Jains. There is a conflict of decisions of the different High Courts on the point. The Madras High Court has held that section 6 applies to Hindus, etc. (Vide I. L. R., 37 Madras, 483), whereas the Bombay High Court in 37 Bom. 471 has held that section 2 excludes Hindus, etc., from the benefit of section 6, so that a Policy of Insurance effected by a Hindu husband and expressed on the face of it to be for the benefit of his wife forms part of the estate of the deceased, and is not a trust for his widow.

It is desirable to place the point beyond any doubt, to have a uniformity of law on the subject throughout India, and to extend the benefit of section 6 to Hindus, etc. This Bill is intended to effect this by an amendment of section 6 of the Married Women's Property Act of 1874.

The following Bill was introduced in the Legislative Assembly on the 28th February 1922:—

No. 12 OF 1922.

A Bill further to amend the Indian Penal Code.

WHEREAS it is expedient further to amend the Indian Penal Code; It is hereby enacted as follows:— XLV of 1860.

Short title.

1. This Act may be called the Indian Penal Code (Amendment) Act, 192 .

Admendment of section 375, Act XLV of 1860.

2. In section 375 of the Indian Penal Code for the word "twelve" in both places where it occurs, the word "fourteen" shall be substituted. XLV of 1860.

Repeal of Act X of 1891.

3. The Indian Criminal Law Amendment Act, 1891, is hereby repealed. X of 1891.

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.

THE object of this Bill is to raise in the case of rape the age of consent of the female concerned from twelve to fourteen years by substituting the word "fourteen" for the word "twelve" in the definition of the offence as given in section 375 of the Indian Penal Code, in the clause marked "Fifthly" and in the "Exception" of the section.

The reasons for this amendment are that the age of consent, for the purposes of the offence of rape according to the original Penal Code as it was framed in 1860, was fixed at ten years. The more advanced members of the Society have always been questioning the correctness of the Legislature in this respect, and had been trying to press upon the public as well as upon the Legislature the necessity of raising this limit of age, but had been helpless to meet the opposition of the orthodox section of the country until the inhuman consequences of this legislation were judicially established in the case of Queen Empress versus Hurree Mohan Mythee (18 Cal. I. L. R. page 49), in which the accused husband who was found to have caused the death of his wife aged eleven years and three months by an act of sexual intercourse with her, could not be charged with the offence of rape. This was an instance of destruction of human life of an innocent girl of immature age by an inhuman act of her husband; though a girl of such immature age is neither capable of feeling any sense of carnal knowledge, nor is physically developed for sexual intercourse; and her consent to the cohabitation is no consent in the eye of the law. This case, however, had the effect of drawing the attention of the Legislature to the injurious consequences resulting from the extremely low age fixed in section 375 of the Indian Penal Code on the lives of girls of immature age by acts of sexual intercourse and of necessitating its amendment by raising the age-limit from ten to twelve years by Act X of 1891. Though since this amendment no other case of homicide has been judicially detected as a consequence of early marriage and consummation with child wives, but it is highly improbable to detect any such cases which are not uncommon amongst families of high classes who allow marriages at so early an age which is still too low and not quite free from danger of the loss of life of immature girls of very weak constitution. In the case published in 18 Cal., page 49, the girl was found to be of strong constitution and the amendment made by Act X of 1891 raising the age of consent to a few months above the age of the girl concerned in the above-mentioned ruling does not provide sufficient safeguard against danger to the life of immature girls of weaker constitution even though slightly exceeding the age of twelve years; while even in the case of the girls of stronger constitution, before puberty the sexual intercourse invariably causes grievous sufferings short of death and produces permanent injury to the proper and regular development of the physical and mental constitution of the girl as well as of the offspring born by such girl. In England Statute 48 & 49 Vict., Cap. 69, sections 4 and 5 prescribe minimum age for consent in the case of offence of rape at sixteen years which is the minimum age at which a girl becomes, according to medical science, fully developed for sexual intercourse and for giving birth to a healthy child without danger to the life or health of herself and of the child. I believe in other civilized countries of Europe and America the age of consent for purposes of the offence of rape is not below sixteen years; and therefore the age of consent of the girl, so far as the offence of rape is concerned, requires to be raised to sixteen years; but having regard to the custom of early marriage still prevailing in this country amongst high classes of Hindus and Muhammadans, only a medical step is recommended for the present, and fourteen years is fixed as the age before which sexual intercourse even by the husband with his wife though consented to by the girl must be legally prohibited and be made an offence within the definition of rape in the Indian Penal Code. This amendment is expected to have the effect of reducing death rate amongst married girls of immature age and amongst infants, and is expected to improve the physical constitution, longevity and mental strength of the progeny.

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.

1. The object of this Bill is to provide the additional resources referred to in my speech introducing the Budget for 1922-23 and to continue certain provisions of the Indian Finance Act, 1921 (VI of 1921), which would otherwise cease to have effect from the 1st April, 1922.

2. Clause 2 of the Bill provides for the raising of the salt duty from Re. 1-4 to Rs. 2-8 per maund.

3. Clause 3 substitutes a revised tariff schedule. The substantive changes made are :—

(1) The raising of the general ad valorem import duty of 11 per cent. to 15 per cent.

(2) The raising of the specific import duty of 20 per cent. in the case of certain articles of luxury to 30 per cent.

(3) The raising of the import duty on machinery, iron and steel and railway material from 2½ per cent. to 10 per cent

(4) The raising of the import duty on sugar from 15 per cent. to 25 per cent.

(5) The raising of the import duty on matches from 12 annas per gross boxes to Re. 1-8 per gross boxes.

(6) The withdrawal of yarn from the free list and the levy of an ad valorem duty of 5 per cent. thereon.

(7) Increase of the duty on all alcoholic liquors (except wines and denatured spirits) by approximately 20 per cent.

(8) Increase in the duty on imported petroleum from 1½ annas to 2½ annas per gallon.

4. Clause 4 provides for the enhancement of the excise duty on cotton manufactures from 3½ per cent. to 7½ per cent.

5. Clause 5 lays down new rates of postage, the changes being—

(i) abolition of the present rates of ½ anna and 9 pies for letters, the minimum in future being one anna for letters not exceeding 2½ tolas in weight and one anna for every additional 2½ tolas or fraction thereof, and

(ii) raising to half anna the ¼ anna postcard.

6. Clause 6 imposes an excise duty of 1 anna per gallon on kerosene produced in India, corresponding to the increase in the import duty referred to in paragraph 3 (8) above.

7. Clause 7 contains the rates of income-tax and super-tax proposed for the year. The only changes in ordinary income-tax are the raising of the rate for incomes between Rs. 30,000 and Rs. 40,000 from 14 pies to 15 pies, and the rate for incomes of Rs. 40,000 and over from 16 pies to 18 pies.

There are no changes in the rates of super-tax up to the present maximum of 4 annas for incomes over 3½ lakhs; thereafter there is a progressive application of the same principle till the new maximum of 6 annas is reached; so that the new rates introduced are as follows :—

(a) in respect of the 1st fifty thousand rupees of taxable income over 4 lakhs	4½ annas in the rupee.
(b) in respect of the 2nd fifty thousand rupees of taxable income over 4 lakhs	5 annas.
(c) in respect of the 3rd fifty thousand rupees of taxable income over 4 lakhs	5½ annas.
(d) in respect of all taxable income over 5½ lakhs of rupees	6 annas in the rupee.

8. Clause 8 repeals the Freight Tax Act XIII of 1917. The existing rates of surtax were imposed for the year 1921-22 by section 4 of the Indian Finance Act, 1921. The surtax will be replaced by increased rates on goods traffic on railways from the 1st April, 1922, and in consequence no surtax will be levied from that date. It is necessary, however, for this purpose to repeal Act XIII of 1917, as otherwise the rates originally imposed by that Act would come into force when section 4 of the Indian Finance Act, 1921, ceases to operate.

9. The changes mentioned in paragraphs 2, 3, 4 and 6 are intended to come into effect from the 1st March, 1922; the rest from April 1st. The Bill provides that the changes mentioned in paragraphs 2, 5 and 7 shall remain in force till the 31st March, 1923.

GOVERNMENT OF INDIA.

LEGISLATIVE DEPARTMENT.

The following Report of the Select Committee on the Bill to repeal the Indian Press Act, 1910, and the Newspapers (Incitements to Offences) Act, 1908, and to make certain provisions in regard to the liability of editors of newspapers, and to facilitate the registration of printers and publishers; and to provide for the seizure and disposal of certain documents was presented to the Legislative Assembly on the 1st March, 1922:—

WE, the undersigned, Members of the Select Committee to which the Bill to repeal the Indian Press Act, 1910, and the Newspapers (Incitements to Offences) Act, 1908, and to make certain provisions in regard to the liability of editors of newspapers, and to facilitate the registration of printers and publishers; and to provide for the seizure and disposal of certain documents, was referred, have considered the Bill and have now the honour to submit this our Report, with the Bill as amended by us annexed thereto.

Khan Bahadur Mir Asad Ali and Rai Jadunath Mazoomdar Bahadur were prevented from attending any of the meetings of the Committee. Maulvi Abul Kasem and Mr. M. K. Reddi missed the last meeting.

We have very carefully considered clause 2 of the First Schedule which amends section 5 of the Press and Registration of Books Act, 1867. We are of opinion that much of the criticism which has been levelled against this clause is based on the fact that it required the editor's name to be printed on the front page of a newspaper. We think the purposes of the law will be sufficiently served if the editor's name appears clearly in any part of the issue, and we have made an amendment to effect this.

In clause 5 of the same Schedule, which introduces a new section 8A in Act XXV of 1867, we have made small amendments which will relieve the Magistrate in some cases of the necessity of himself making the inquiry contemplated by the section, and which will allow him to extend for sufficient cause the period within which a declaration is to be made by a person whose name wrongly appears as editor of a newspaper.

We have reduced the pecuniary penalty in sections 12, 13, 14 and 15 of the same Act from five thousand rupees to two thousand rupees.

The new provisions to be introduced in the Sea Customs Act, 1878, and the Indian Post Office Act, 1898, enabling certain officers to detain packages and postal articles suspected to contain seditious matter, allow any person interested to apply to the Local Government within two months of the detention for the release thereof. We think that provision should be made requiring any officer exercising these powers to give notice forthwith to the consignee or addressee of any package or article detained, where such notice is practicable, and we have introduced amendments in the Second and Fourth Schedules of the Bill to give effect to this.

In clause 1 of the Third Schedule we have made a slight amendment in new section 99D to be introduced in the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1898, in order to remove any doubt that may exist as to the nature of the proof which may be required by a Special Bench hearing applications under these new provisions of the Code.

The other amendments made in the Bill are of a purely drafting nature.

2. The Bill was published in the Gazette of India, dated the 17th September, 1921.

3. We think that the Bill has not been so altered as to require re-publication, and we recommend that it be passed as now amended.

Rainfall summary for the seven days ending at 8 hours on Wednesday, the 1st March 1922, based on the Indian Daily Weather Reports of the period.

Despite the heaviness of the falls at many frontier stations the depression failed to give appreciable rainfall in the plains of northern India. Northeast India, including Orissa.—The only station that reported rain during the week was Darjiling, where a moderate fall occurred on the 28th.

Local snow fell in Kashmir between the 22nd and 24th, and there was local rain in the north Punjab on the 23rd and in upper Sind on the 22nd.

The Peninsula.—There was no rain.

Provided that, if such person or such owner obtains, in accordance with the provisions of this Act, a refund of any portion of the tax so deducted, no credit shall be given for the amount of such refund.

(3) If any person has not furnished a return within the time allowed by or under sub-section (1) or sub section (2), or having furnished a return under either of those sub-sections, discovers any omission or wrong statement therein, he may furnish a return or a revised return, as the case may be, at any time before the assessment is made, and any return so made shall be deemed to be a return made in due time under this section.

(4) The Income-tax Officer may serve on the principal officer of any company or on any person upon whom a notice has been served under sub-section (2) a notice requiring him, on a date to be therein specified, to produce, or cause to be produced, such accounts or documents as the Income-tax Officer may require:

Provided that the Income-tax Officer shall not require the production of any accounts relating to a period more than three years prior to the previous year.

23. (1) If the Income-tax Officer is satisfied that a return made under section 22 is correct and complete, he shall assess the total income of the assessee, and shall determine the sum payable by him on the basis of such return.

(2) If the Income-tax Officer has reason to believe that a return made under section 22 is incorrect or incomplete, he shall serve on the person who made the return a notice requiring him, on a date to be therein specified, either to attend at the Income-tax Officer's office or to produce, or to cause to be there produced, any evidence on which such person may rely in support of the return.

24. (1) Where any assessee sustains a loss of profits or gains in any year under any of the heads mentioned in section 6, he shall be entitled to have the amount of the loss set off against his income, profits or gains under any other head in that year.

(2) Where the assessee is a registered firm, and the loss sustained cannot wholly be set off under sub-section (1), any member of such firm shall be entitled to have set off against any income, profits or gains of the year in which the loss was sustained in respect of which the tax is payable by him such amount of the loss not already set off as is proportionate to his share in the firm.

(2) Any person discontinuing any such business, profession or vocation shall give to the Income-tax Officer notice of such discontinuance within fifteen days thereof, and, where any person fails to give the notice required by this sub-section, the Income-tax Officer may direct that a sum shall be recovered from him by way of penalty not exceeding the amount of tax subsequently assessed on him in respect of any income, profits or gains of the business, profession or vocation up to the date of its discontinuance.

(3) Where any business, profession or vocation which was in existence at the commencement of this Act, and on which tax was at any time charged under the provisions of the Indian Income-tax Act, 1918, is discontinued, no tax shall be payable in respect of the income, profits and gains of the period between the end of the previous year and the date of such discontinuance, and the assessee may further claim that the income, profits and gains of the previous year shall be deemed to have been the income, profits and gains of the said period. Where any such claim is made, an assessment shall be made on the basis of the income, profits and gains of the said period, and if an amount of tax has already been paid in respect of the income, profits and gains of the previous year exceeding the amount payable on the basis of such assessment, a refund shall be given of the difference.

Cancellation of assessment when cause is shown.

27. Where an assessee or, in the case of a company, the principal officer thereof, within one month from the service of a notice of demand issued as hereinafter provided, satisfies the Income-tax Officer that he was prevented by sufficient cause from making the return required by section 22, or that he did not receive the notice issued under sub-section (4) of section 22, or sub-section (2) of section 23, or that he had not a reasonable opportunity to comply, or was prevented by sufficient cause from complying, with the terms of the last-mentioned notices, the Income-tax Officer shall cancel the assessment and proceed to make a fresh assessment in accordance with the provisions of section 23.

Penalty for concealment of income.

28. (1) If the Income-tax Officer, the Assistant Commissioner or the Commissioner in the course of any proceedings under this Act, is satisfied that an assessee has concealed the particulars of his income, or has deliberately furnished inaccurate particulars of such income, and has thereby returned it below its real amount, he may direct that the assessee shall, in addition to the income-tax payable by him, pay by way of penalty a sum not exceeding the amount of income-tax which would have been avoided if the income so returned by the assessee had been accepted as the correct income:

Provided that no such order shall be made, unless the assessee has been heard, or has been given a reasonable opportunity of being heard:

Provided, further, that no prosecution for an offence against this Act shall be instituted in respect of the same facts on which a penalty has been imposed under this section.

(2) An Assistant Commissioner or a Commissioner who has made an order under sub-section (1) shall forthwith send a copy of the same to the Income-tax Officer.

Provided that no appeal shall lie in respect of an assessment made under sub-section (4) of section 23, or under that sub-section read with section 27.

(2) The appeal shall ordinarily be presented within thirty days of receipt of the notice of demand relating to the assessment or penalty objected to, or of the date of the refusal to make a fresh assessment under section 27, as the case may be; but the Assistant Commissioner may admit an appeal after the expiration of the period if he is satisfied that the appellant had sufficient cause for not presenting it within that period.

(3) The appeal shall be in the prescribed form, and shall be verified in the prescribed manner.

Hearing of appeal.

31. (1) The Assistant Commissioner shall fix a day and place for the hearing of the appeal, and may from time to time adjourn the hearing.

or, in the cases of an order under sub-section (2) of section 25 or section 28,

(2) The appeal shall be in the prescribed form, and shall be verified in the prescribed manner.

(3) In disposing of the appeal the Commissioner may, after giving the appellant an opportunity of being heard, pass such orders thereon as he thinks fit.

33. (1) The Commissioner may of his own motion call for the record of any proceeding under this Act which has been taken by any authority subordinate to him or by himself when exercising the powers of an Assistant Commissioner under sub-section (4) of section 5.

(2) On receipt of the record the Commissioner may make such inquiry or cause such inquiry to be made and, subject to the provisions of this Act may pass such orders thereon as he thinks fit:

Provided that he shall not pass any order prejudicial to an assessee without hearing him or giving him a reasonable opportunity of being heard.

Income escaping assessment.

34. If for any reason income, profits or gains chargeable to income-tax has escaped assessment in any year, or has been assessed at too low a rate, the Income-tax Officer may, at any time within one year of the end of that year, serve on the person liable to pay tax on such income, profits or gains, or, in the case of a company, on the principal officer thereof, a notice containing all or any of the requirements which may be included in a notice under sub-section (2) of section 22, and may proceed to assess or re-assess such income, profits or gains, and the provisions of this Act shall, so far as may be, apply accordingly as if the notice were a notice issued under that sub-section:

Provided that the tax shall be charged at the rate at which it would have been charged had the income, profits or gains not escaped assessment or full assessment, as the case may be.

Rectification of mistake.

35. (1) The Income-tax Officer may, at any time within one year from the date of any demand made upon an assessee, on his own motion rectify any mistake apparent from the record of the assessment, and shall within the like period rectify any such mistake which has been brought to his notice by such assessee:

Provided that no such rectification shall be made, having the effect of enhancing an assessment unless the Income-tax Officer has given notice to the assessee of his intention so to do and has allowed him a reasonable opportunity of being heard.

(2) Where any such rectification has the effect of reducing the assessment, the Income-tax Officer shall make any refund which may be due to such assessee.

(3) Where any such rectification has the effect of enhancing the assessment, the Income-tax Officer shall serve on the assessee a notice of demand in the prescribed form specifying the sum payable, and such notice of demand shall be deemed to be issued under section 29, and the provisions of this Act shall apply accordingly.

Tax when payable.

46. (1) When an assessee is in default in making a payment of income-tax, the Income tax Officer may in his discretion direct that, in addition to the amount of the arrears, a sum not exceeding that amount shall be recovered from the assessee by way of penalty.

Mode and time of recovery.

(2) The Income-tax Officer may forward to the Collector a certificate under his signature specifying the amount of arrears due from an assessee, and the Collector, on receipt of such certificate, shall proceed to recover from such assessee the amount specified therein as if it were an arrear of land-revenue.

(3) In any area, with respect to which the Commissioner has directed that any arrears may be recovered by any process enforceable for the recovery of an arrear of any municipal tax or local rate imposed under any enactment for the time being in force in any part of the province, the Income-tax Officer may proceed to recover the amount due by such process.

(6) The Local Government may direct, with respect to any specified area, that income-tax shall be recovered therein, with, and as an addition to, any municipal tax or local rate by the same person and in the same manner as the municipal tax or local rate is recovered.

(3) If the owner of a security from the interest on which, or any person from whose salary, income-tax has been deducted in accordance with the provisions of section 18, satisfies the Income-tax Officer that the rate of income-tax applicable to his total income of the previous year was less than the rate at which income-tax has been charged in making such deduction in that year, he shall be entitled to a refund on the amount of interest or salary from which such deduction has been made calculated at the difference between those rates.

Relief in respect of United Kingdom income-tax.

49. (1) If any person who has paid Indian income-tax for any year on any part of his income proves to the satisfaction of the Income-tax Officer that he has paid United Kingdom income-tax for that year in respect of the same part of his income, and that the rate at which he was entitled to, and has obtained, relief under the provisions of section 27 of the Finance Act, 1920, is less than the Indian rate of tax charged in respect of that part of his income, he shall be entitled to a refund of a sum calculated on that part of his income at a rate equal to the difference between the Indian rate of tax and the rate at which he was entitled to, and obtained, relief under that section:

Provided that the rate at which the refund is to be given shall not exceed one-half of the Indian rate of tax.

Repeals.

6. The Indian Official Secrets Act, 1889, and the Indian Official Secrets (Amendment) Act, 1904, are hereby repealed. XV of 1889. V of 1904.

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.

The position in regard to the protection of official secrets in India is briefly as follows. The provisions of the law which are now in force are :—

(a) An Act of the Legislature in India—the Indian Official Secrets Act, 1889, as amended by the Indian Official Secrets (Amendment) Act, 1904; and

(b) A Statute of Parliament,—the Official Secrets Act, 1911 (1 & 2 George V, C. 28).

The provisions of the British Statute have, as a result of experience gained during the War, been considerably modified by the enactment of the Official Secrets Act, 1920, but the latter Statute does not apply to British India.

2. It has for some time past been recognised that it is unsatisfactory to have two separate laws in force simultaneously in India. Further, although the British Act of 1911 is in force in India, difficulties arise in applying it because of the use in it of English common law terms and so on. For these reasons it is desirable that there should be a single consolidated Act applicable to Indian conditions, and the desirability of this has been emphasised by the passing of the British Act of 1920 which has considerably amended the Act of 1911, but is not applicable to India.

3. The provisions of the British Act of 1911 are more effective, particularly in the matter of the protection of military secrets than the Indian enactments, and they have been further strengthened by the enactment of the amending Statute of 1920, which is based on experience gained during the War. It is considered desirable, therefore, that the law in India should be assimilated to that in force in the United Kingdom, and the object of this Bill is to consolidate the provisions of the British Acts of 1911 and 1920 and to enact them in a form suitable for India.

4. As this Bill is a purely consolidating measure, it is not necessary to deal with the clauses in detail, but it may be mentioned that it is proposed to omit provisions on the lines of sections 4 and 5 of the Act of 1920, as it is considered that the matters dealt with in these sections are sufficiently covered by the provisions of the Indian Telegraph Act, 1885, and the Indian Post Office Act, 1898.

5. If this Bill is passed it will not be necessary to retain the Indian Acts, and provision is therefore made in clause 15 for their repeal.

LEGISLATIVE DEPARTMENT.

(2) It extends to the whole of British India.

2. In this Act, unless there is anything repugnant in the subject or context,—

3. (1) The Local Government may, for the purpose of protecting the cotton grown in any area in the Province from being mixed with cotton of an inferior variety, by notification in the local official Gazette prohibit the import of cotton into that area save under, and in accordance with the conditions of, a licence.

(2) Any such notification may prohibit the delivery to, and the taking of delivery by, any person, at any specified railway station, situated in the protected area, of cotton consigned from a railway station not situated in that area, unless such person holds a licence for the import of the cotton into that area.

Refusal to carry unlicensed cotton.

4. (1) Notwithstanding anything contained in the Indian Railways Act, 1890, or any other law for the time being in force, the station master of any railway station or any other railway servant responsible for the booking of goods or parcels at that station may refuse to receive for carriage at, or to forward or allow to be carried on the railway from, that station any cotton consigned to a notified station, unless both stations are in the same protected area, or unless the consignor produces a certified copy of a licence for the import of the cotton into the protected area in which such notified station is situate. IX of 1890.

(2) Every certified copy of a licence when so produced shall be attached to the invoice when the consignment is booked as goods and to the way-bill when the consignment is booked as a parcel, and shall accompany the consignment to its destination, and shall there be dealt with in the prescribed manner.

(3) Where by or under any law in force in the territories of any State in India the import of cotton into any area, or the delivery of cotton at any railway station, situate in such State has been prohibited, the Governor General in Council may, by notification in the Gazette of India, declare that the provisions of sub-section (1) shall apply in respect of all cotton consigned to any such station as if such area and such station were respectively a protected area and a notified station, and as if any licence granted under such law were a licence granted under this Act.

Procedure where cotton arrives at notified station.

5. (1) Where any cotton having been consigned to a notified station arrives at that station, the station master or other railway servant responsible for the receipt and delivery to the consignee of goods or parcels, as the case may be, at that station shall, unless both the notified station and the railway station from which the cotton has been consigned are situated in the same protected area, refuse to deliver the cotton until he is satisfied that the consignee holds a licence for the import of the cotton into the protected area in which such notified station is situated; and, if he is not so satisfied, or if, within a reasonable time, the consignee or some person acting on his behalf does not appear in order to take delivery, shall return the cotton to the railway station from which it was consigned, together with an intimation that delivery of the cotton has been refused or has not been taken, as the case may be.

(2) Any station master or other railway servant receiving any cotton returned under sub-section (1), or returned with a like intimation from a railway station specified in a notification under sub-section (3) of section 4, shall cause to be served on the consignor in any manner authorised by section 141 of the Indian Railways Act, 1890, a notice stating that the cotton has been so returned and requiring the consignor to pay any rate, terminal or other charges due in respect of the carriage of the cotton to and from the railway station to which it was consigned, and such charges shall be deemed to be due from the consignor for all the purposes of section 55 of that Act.

Penalties.

6. Any person who, in contravention of the provisions of this Act, or of any notification or rule made hereunder, takes delivery of any cotton from a notified station or imports, or attempts to import, any cotton into a protected area, and any station master or other railway servant who, in contravention of the provisions of sub-section (1) of section 5, without reasonable excuse, the burden of proving which shall lie upon him, delivers any cotton to a consignee or other person, shall be liable to a fine not exceeding one thousand rupees, and upon any subsequent conviction to imprisonment which may extend to three months, or to fine which may extend to five thousand rupees, or to both.

Power to make rules.

7. (1) The Local Government may make rules to provide for any of the following matters, namely:—

(a) the prevention of the import of cotton into a protected area by road, river or sea save under, and in accordance with the conditions of, a licence;

(b) the terms and conditions to be contained in licences and the authorities by which they may be granted; and

(c) the manner in which licences and certified copies thereof shall be dealt with on and after the delivery of the cotton to which they relate.

(2) Any such rules may provide that any contravention thereof or of the conditions of any licence, not otherwise made punishable by this Act, shall be punishable with fine which may extend to five hundred rupees.

Previous approval of Local Legislature to issue of notifications and rules.

8. No notification under section 3 or rule under section 7 shall be made by the Local Government of any Governor's Province, unless it has been laid in draft before the Legislative Council of the Province, and has been approved by a resolution of the Legislative Council, either with or without modification or addition, but upon such approval being given the notification or rule, as the case may be, may be issued in the form in which it has been so approved.

Protection for acts done under Act.

9. No suit or other legal proceeding shall be instituted against any person in respect of anything which is in good faith done or intended to be done under this Act.

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.

The Indian Cotton Committee, which was appointed in 1917, brought to notice—

(1) that the practice of adulterating long staple cotton with short staple was very prevalent at the gins and press-houses in certain long staple areas, the object being to secure for the mixture the higher prices offered for long staple;

(2) that, owing to the consequent mixture of seed, there was considerable deterioration in the cultivation of many of the superior varieties of cotton;

(3) that soft cotton waste was also used for the purpose of adulteration with "kapas" (the natural floss); and

(4) that short staple cotton was frequently railed to a long staple area and re-booked thence, even without mixing, as long staple cotton.

2. As instances of (1) and (2), the Committee quoted the imports of short staple cotton into the Broach tract, the result of which has been that Broach cotton has largely lost its former reputation. Other superior varieties of cotton are threatened with the same fate. The practice described under (4) above is facilitated by the trade custom whereby cotton is bought and sold on the name and reputation of the area where it purports to have been grown; i.e., on the name of the railway station from which the bales are last booked.

3. These malpractices are exercising so serious and dangerous an influence on the industry as a whole, that the necessity of taking Governmental action has become a matter of immediate importance. The Bill provides a remedy by enabling Local Governments to prevent inferior cotton or cotton-waste, as defined, from being imported, except under licence, into areas which it is desired to protect.

The principal provisions of the Bill are as follows :—

(1) Local Governments are empowered, with the previous consent of the Provincial Legislature, to define the areas and to notify the stations which should be regarded as protected. Consignments of cotton are not allowed to any such notified station except from other notified stations in the same area.

(2) It is necessary to make certain exceptions to the prohibition in favour, for instance, of mill-owners within the area requiring extraneous cotton and of purchasers of cotton waste for industrial purposes. Local Governments are accordingly empowered to frame rules for a licensing system and to appoint the authorities for the issue of licences.

(3) Station masters or other railway servants responsible for the delivery of goods or parcels are prohibited under penalties from delivering cotton improperly consigned to their stations.

The term "chlorate mixture" means any explosive containing a chlorate.

The chlorate mixture class has two divisions.

EVERY EXPLOSIVE IN THIS CLASS, AND EVERY EXPLOSIVE INGREDIENT THEREOF SHALL BE SO THOROUGHLY PURIFIED AND OTHERWISE OF SUCH A CHARACTER AS TO SATISFY A TEST KNOWN AS THE HEAT TEST, AND SPECIFIED IN THE RULE FOR TESTING EXPLOSIVES, PUBLISHED WITH GOVERNMENT OF INDIA, DEPARTMENT OF COMMERCE AND INDUSTRY, NOTIFICATION No. 4013—33, DATED THE 6TH JUNE 1914, REFERRED TO ABOVE.

DIVISION 1.

Division 1 comprises any chlorate preparation which consists partly of nitro-glycerine or of some other liquid nitro-compound.

PROVIDED THAT EVERY EXPLOSIVE IN THIS DIVISION SHALL BE OF SUCH CHARACTER AND CONSISTENCY AS NOT TO BE LIABLE TO LIQUEFACTION OR EXUDATION.

DIVISION 2.

Division 2 comprises any chlorate mixture as hereinbefore defined, which is not comprised in Division 1.

Nil.

CLASS 5.—FULMINATE.

The term "fulminate" means any chemical compound or mechanical mixture, whether included in the foregoing classes or not, which, from its great susceptibility to detonation, is suitable for employment in percussion caps or any other appliances for developing detonation, or which from its extreme sensibility to explosion, and from its great instability (that is to say, readiness to undergo decomposition from very slight exciting causes) is especially dangerous.

This class consists of two divisions.

DIVISION 1.

Division 1 comprises such compounds as the fulminates of silver and of mercury, and preparations of those substances, such as are used in percussion caps; and any preparation consisting of a mixture of a chlorate with phosphorus or certain discriptions of compounds of phosphorus, with or without the addition of carbonaceous matter, and any preparation consisting of a mixture of a chlorate with sulphur, or with a sulphuret, with or without carbonaceous matter.

Nil.

DIVISION 2.

Division 2 comprises such substances as the chloride and iodide of nitrogen, fulminating gold and silver, diazobenzol, and the nitrate of diazobenzol.

Nil.

CLASS 6.—AMMUNITION.

The term "ammunition" means any explosive of any of the foregoing classes when the same is enclosed in any case or contrivance, or is otherwise adapted or prepared so as to form a cartridge or charge for small-arms cannon or any other weapon, or for blasting or to form any safety or other fuze for blasting or for shells, or to form any tube for firing explosives or to form a percussion cap, detonator, fog-signal, shell, torpedo, war-rocket, or any other contrivance other than a firework.

*The term "percussion cap" does not include a detonator.

The term "detonator" means a capsule or case which is of such strength and construction and contains fulminate in such quantity, that the explosion of one capsule or case would communicate the explosion to other like capsules or cases.

The term "safety fuze" means a fuze for blasting which burns and does not explode, and which does not contain its own means of ignition, and which is of such strength and construction and contains an explosive in such quantity that the burning of such fuze will not communicate laterally with other like fuzes.

The ammunition class has three divisions.

DIVISION 1.

Nobel's Safety Electric Time Fuze.
Percussion Caps.
Railway Fog Signals.
Safety Cartridges.
Safety Fuzes for blasting.
Safety Electric Fuzes.

* In consequence of the results of experiments carried out, it has been decided that a percussion cap can only be properly classed as such if it contains less than 0·6 grain, of a composition of the 1st Division of the fifth (Fulminate) class of which not more than 25 per cent. consists of fulminate of mercury or less than 0·5 grains, of any other explosive of the 1st Division of the 5th (Fulminate) Class; and it has been further decided that percussion caps shall not be classed as such when they contain anvils or have their composition unprotected by tin foil or other suitable substance, as under those circumstances they are liable to explode en masse.

DIVISION 2.

Division 2 comprises any ammunition as hereinbefore defined, which does not contain its own means of ignition, and is not included in Division 1.

Cartridges for Blasting or other like purposes.
Cartridges for Small Arms which are not Safety Cartridges.

The term "firework" comprises firework composition and manufactured fireworks.

DIVISION 1.—FIREWORK COMPOSITION.

The term "firework composition" means any chemical compound or mechanically mixed preparation of an explosive of inflammable nature, which is used for the purpose of making manufactured fireworks, and is not included in the former classes of explosives, and also any star and any coloured fire composition, subject to the proviso to the definition of manufactured fireworks.

Nil.

DIVISION 2.—MANUFACTURED FIREWORKS.

MANUFACTURED FIREWORKS, consisting of any explosive of the classes 1, 2, 3, 4 and 6 and any firework composition, when such explosive or composition is enclosed in any case or contrivance or is otherwise manufactured so as to form a squib, cracker, toy cap or amorce, serpent, rocket (other than a war-rocket), maroon, lance, wheel, Chinese fire, Roman candle, or other article specially adapted for the production of pyrotechnic effects, or pyrotechnic signals, or sound signals.

Provided that a substantially constructed and hermetically closed metal case, containing not more than one pound of coloured fire composition of such a nature as not to be liable to spontaneous ignition shall be deemed to be a "manufactured firework" and not a "firework composition."

PREFATORY NOTE.

Prices of Country Produce and Salt in India in the first half of February, 1922, as compared with the preceding half month.

The general level of wholesale prices of foodgrains (cereals and pulses) in India in the middle of February, 1922, showed, on an average, no change as compared with the previous fortnight. Although there was a rise of 3 per cent in maize and of 2 per cent in wheat and bajra, prices of arhar dál fell by 3 per cent, of gram by 2 per cent, and of barley by 1 per cent. Prices of rice and jawar remained unchanged. Ghi and raw sugar (gúr) were cheaper by 1 per cent while salt showed no fluctuation.

The noticeable movements in provincial prices are as follows:—Delhi records a rise of 12 per cent in rice, 13 per cent in wheat and 14 per cent in jawar. In the North-West Frontier Province there was an advance of 15 per cent in wheat but a fall of 11 per cent in ghi. In the Central Provinces and Berar the price of gram declined by 10 per cent. In the United Provinces and Sind-Baluchistan the price of arhar dál fell by 19 and 10 per cent, respectively.

The price of wheat in the Punjab rose by 5 per cent but that of rice in Bengal was stationary.

FOREIGN AND POLITICAL DEPARTMENT.

Delhi, the 15th March 1922.

RESOLUTION.

In their Resolution No. 427-431 (Political), dated the 8th August 1913, recorded in the Home Department, the Government of India issued a general warning to British Indian subjects against proceeding to foreign countries in search of manual employment unless assured of remunerative work upon arrival.

2. It has been brought to the notice of the Government of India that a number of Indian labourers, residing in the Punjab, were recently induced by fallacious representations made by a passage broker in Bombay to put down large sums of money for their passages to France and to proceed to that country in the expectation that they would secure employment at Rs. 15 per day. On arrival they found that they had been duped, and having exhausted their resources, had to be repatriated at Government expense.

3. In order to protect innocent persons against deception of this kind, the Governor General in Council requests all local Governments and Administrations to give publicity to these facts, more especially in districts from which labour is in the habit of emigrating and to warn the public of the risk run by persons in proceeding to foreign countries in search of employment, unless they have received in advance satisfactory assurance of remunerative work in the country to which they are destined.

ORDER.—Ordered that this Resolution be communicated to all local Governments and Administrations for information and guidance; and to Department of Revenue and Agriculture and Home Department.

Ordered, also, that a copy be published in the Gazette of India for general information.

DENYS BRAY,
Secretary to the Government of India.

No. 1194-F.

GOVERNMENT OF INDIA.

RAILWAY DEPARTMENT.

(RAILWAY BOARD.)

Delhi, the 9/10th March 1922.

RESOLUTION.

In paragraphs 139—142 of their Report the Railway Committee comment on the necessity of bringing public opinion in India into closer touch with the administration of the railways, and with that object in view they recommend a system of Advisory Councils. They propose that Local Advisory Councils should be established either at important railway centres, or in connection with important railways, and they further suggest that a Central Advisory Council should be set up at the headquarters of the Government of India. The Governor General in Council is generally in sympathy with the object of these proposals, and Local Governments and Railway Administrations have already been addressed regarding the establishment of Local Advisory Councils. Some time must necessarily elapse before this question can be definitely settled, but in the meantime the Governor General in Council accepts the recommendation that a Central Advisory Council should be established and proposes to give effect to this recommendation at once.

2. From paragraph 141 of their Report it appears that the Committee contemplated the establishment of a Central Advisory Council on the model of the Polish Railway Council, and they suggest that it should be composed mainly of non-officials. One-half of the non-official members, it is suggested, should be nominated by the leading commercial and industrial associations, both European and Indian. The other half should be representative of the rural interests and of the Indian travelling public in different parts of the country, and the Committee suggest that this object might best be attained if one representative were appointed by the Legislative Council of each Province. In addition, they propose that the Council should include representatives of certain Departments of the Government of India. The recommendations of the Committee as regards the constitution of the Council have been carefully considered by the Governor General in Council, but it is thought that in the circumstances of India and having regard especially to the size of the country, the necessary representation of the different interests could be most conveniently secured by selection from among the Members of the Council of State and the Legislative Assembly. As was announced in Resolution No. 800-F., dated the 17th November last, a Committee of the Legislature was recently appointed by the Governor General in Council to consider the recommendations of the Railway Committee in regard to railway finance. This Committee contains representatives of the most important Provinces of India as well as representatives of certain important commercial interests. The Governor General in Council, therefore, has decided that the best course would be to constitute this Committee with certain necessary changes as a Central Advisory Council for railways. Until a definite decision has been arrived at on the proposal of the Railway Committee to appoint a Member for Communications in the Governor General's Council, the Member in charge of Commerce, Industries and Railways will be the Chairman of the Committee. The Committee will be constituted as below :—

The Hon'ble Mr. C. A. Innes, C.S.I., C.I E., M.L.A.	Chairman.
„ Mr. E. M. Cook, C.I.E.	Member.
Colonel W. D. Waghorn, C.B., C.M.G., M.L.A.	„
The Hon'ble Sir Alexander Murray, Kt., C.B.E.	„
„ Sir Arthur Froom, Kt.	„
„ Mr. Phiroze C Sethna, O.B.E.	„
„ Rai Bahadur Lala Ramsaran Das, C.I.E.	„
„ Sir Dinshaw Wacha, Kt.	„
Sir Vithaldas Thackersey, Kt, M.L.A.	„
Mr. N. M. Samarth, M.L.A.	„
Dr. H. S. Gour, M.L.A.	„
Moulvi Abul Kasem, M.L.A.	„
Rao Bahadur Tiruvenkata Rangachariar, M.L A.	„
Khan Bahadur Saiyid Muhammad Ismail, M.L.A.	„
Mr. P P. Ginwala, M.L.A.	„
Munshi Iswar Saran, M.L.A.	„

It will have the power to co-opt, if necessary, representatives of the Departments of the Government of India when matters particularly affecting the interests of those Departments are under consideration. The Members of the Railway Board will also be invited, when necessary, to attend meetings of the Advisory Council in order to provide, where necessary, expert advice.

3. The functions of the Central Advisory Council will, as its name implies, be purely advisory. It will discuss such important questions of policy as may be placed before it by the Member in charge of Railways.

ORDER.—That a copy of this Resolution be communicated to the members of the Advisory Council.

Ordered also that the Resolution be published in the Gazette of India for general information.

Secretary, Railway Board.

(b) that adequate financial provision has not been made for the performance of any such duty or for the proper maintenance of the Hospital;

it may, by order in writing, direct the Board, within such period as may be specified in the order, to make arrangements to the satisfaction of the Local Government for the proper performance of any such duty or the proper exercise of any such power, or to make financial provision to the satisfaction of the Local Government for the performance of any such duty or for the maintenance of the Hospital, as the case may be; and the Board shall thereupon comply with such direction.

(2) On the failure of the Board to comply with any such direction, the Local Government or any person appointed by the Local Government in this behalf may perform such duty or exercise such power or make such provision, as the case may be, and the Local Government may attach the funds of the Board or any portion thereof and may apply the same to meet any charges incurred in the performance of such duty or the exercise of such power, or in the making of such provision, as the case may be.

(3) On the repeated failure of the Board to comply with such directions, or if the Board otherwise exceeds or abuses its powers, the Local Government may, with the previous sanction of the Governor General in Council, by notification in the Gazette of India and in the Bihar and Orissa Gazette, declare the Board to be incompetent or to have exceeded or abused its powers, as the case may be, and direct that the Board shall be superseded for such period as may be specified in the notification.

(c) all funds and other property vested in the Board shall, during the period of supersession, vest in the Local Government on behalf of His Majesty; and

(d) before the expiration of the period of supersession, elections shall be held and appointments made for the purpose of reconstituting the Board.

(5) If the Local Government is informed by the Governor General in Council that the Board has made default in the repayment of any sum due on account of a loan under section 5 or section 6, the Local Government shall forthwith exercise such of its powers under sub-sections (1) and (2) as may be necessary for the purpose of enforcing such repayment.

20. No act done or proceedings taken under this Act shall be questioned on the ground merely of—

(a) the existence of any vacancy in or any defect in the constitution of the Board or the Managing Committee; or

(b) any person having ceased to be a Trustee; or

(c) any omission, defect or irregularity not affecting the merits of the case.

Classification of Hospital.

21. For all the purposes of the Indian Lunacy Act, 1912, the Hospital shall be deemed to be an asylum established by the Government. IV

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.

A central asylum has for some years been established at Ranchi for the reception of European lunatics from Northern India. As it was intended to serve the needs of several provinces the whole initial cost of the buildings and equipment was met from Imperial funds, but the Provincial Governments concerned agreed to pay the cost of maintenance of all lunatics maintained in the hospital from their provinces. The recovery of these charges has now incidentally been placed upon a legal basis by the enactment of the Indian Lunacy (Amendment) Act, 1922, but the Government of Bihar and Orissa still anticipate considerable difficulties in financing the hospital which in a great measure has been instituted to meet the needs of other provinces.

With the separation of provincial from central finances which has followed the introduction of the Reforms, the Government of India are unable to finance the hospital to a greater extent than is permissible under the Devolution Rules. That is, the Central Government can meet the cost of maintenance of lunatics from places under the Central Government who are maintained in the hospital, and otherwise can only make advances to the Local Government from central revenues under Devolution Rule 25. In order to meet these difficulties, it is considered that it is desirable to make over the hospital to a Board of Trustees on which the various provinces interested in the maintenance of the hospital would be represented and which would be responsible for its proper upkeep under the control of the Government of Bihar and Orissa. The ordinary annual charges would be met by the Board by recoveries from the patients and Local Governments concerned, and the Board would be placed in funds until such recoveries become due by an advance from the central revenues, and the capital cost of original works would also be met by similar advances. Such advances would be repaid to the Central Government by equated instalments of principal and interest within such periods as would be fixed in each case. The object of the present Bill is to give effect to this scheme. It provides for the incorporation of the Board of Trustees, the powers of the Board and the restrictions upon the powers of the Board. The Government of Bengal is given greater representation on the Board than other Local Governments, because 58 per cent. of the inmates of the hospital come from that province. In addition, arrangements are included for the control and supersession of the Board in the event of its failure to perform its duties or of its repeated failure to perform its duties. Finally, the Bill provides for the dissolution of the Board at any time and the re-vesting of the funds and other property of the Board in the Government of Bihar and Orissa on behalf of His Majesty. An order to this effect can, however, only be made by the Government of Bihar and Orissa with the previous sanction of the Governor General in Council, and the intention is that such sanction shall not be granted unless suitable provision is made by the Local Government for safeguarding the interests of other Local Governments which have contributed to the maintenance of lunatics in the Asylum.

Paper No. II—From the Government of the United Provinces, No. 1658, dated the 1st December, 1921.

WE, the undersigned, Members of the Select Committee, to which the Bill to amend the law relating to the emoluments claimable by Watandar Hindu priests was referred, have considered the Bill and the papers noted in the margin, and have now the honour to submit this our Report, with the Bill as amended by us annexed thereto.

Mr. N. M. Samarth was unable to attend the meeting of the Committee.

2. Only two of the amendments which we have made in the Bill call for particular mention. In the first place, we have added an extent clause providing for the original extension of the Act to the Presidency of Bombay and to the Central Provinces. We consider that a clear case for the application of the Act to Bombay has been made out and we are, by a majority, of opinion that such a case has also been made out in regard to those parts of the Central Provinces which the Bill will affect. Secondly, we have omitted the definition of "Hindu", a term which, we are convinced, it is impossible satisfactorily to define.

3. The remaining alterations which we suggest are merely of a drafting nature, and do not alter the scope of the Bill as introduced.

The Bill was published in the Gazette of India, dated the 2nd April, 1921.

4. We think that the Bill has not been so altered as to require republication, and we recommend that it be passed as now amended.

MINUTE OF DISSENT.

WE do not agree that the Act should be applied to the Central Provinces at once. It should better be left to the discretion of that Local Government to extend it, if necessary, as, in its opinion, there is no indication of any hardship at present in that Province. Moreover, it may be found necessary to consider the question of compensation, if the vested rights of a Watandar Joshi are greatly affected by the application of this Act.

To this extent we would be free to move an amendment to the Bill.

(2) It shall extend, in the first instance, to the Presidency of Bombay and to the Central Provinces; but the Local Government of any other Province may, by notification in the local official Gazette, extend it to that Province or any part thereof.

DEPARTMENT OF REVENUE AND AGRICULTURE.

Season and Crop Prospects for the week ending Saturday, 11th March 1922.

Burma.—The week was practically rainless. Threshing and winnowing are almost completed in Upper Burma. Sowing of summer rice and miscellaneous crops continues. Harvesting of miscellaneous and dry crops is proceeding. Standing crops are generally satisfactory. Cattle are generally fair. Supplies of paddy are small and prices range from Rs. 180 to Rs. 185 and that of white rice (specials) has risen slightly to Rs. 460 per hundred baskets.

Assam.—The weather is seasonable but rain is wanted. Harvesting of mustard and pulses is practically finished. Pressing of sugarcane, ploughing for rice and jute and preparation of land for jhuming continue. Sowing of autumn rice is common. The outturn and prospects of crops are generally fair. Cattle disease is reported from two districts. The price of common rice is practically unchanged.

Bengal.—The weather continues dry. Harvesting of spring crops is in progress. The continued absence of rain is retarding the preparation of land for jute and other autumn crops. Sowings are being delayed. The growth of standing crops are being affected. The average price of common rice has slightly risen.

Bihar and Orissa.—Practically no rain fell during the week. Spring crops are being harvested. The weather is seasonable. The price of common rice has risen in four districts, fallen in five and remained stationary in the remainder. The average price of local common rice at headquarters (excluding Angul) was 7·03 seers a rupee against 7·06 seers in the preceding week and that of maize was 9·89 seers against 9·76 seers in the preceding week. Cattle disease is reported from nine districts. The condition of standing crops in the Feudatory States of Orissa and Chota Nagpur is good.

United Provinces.—No rain fell during the week. Preparation of land for sowing of extra crops and sugarcane, harvesting of spring crops and irrigation of extra crops and poppy and extraction of opium continue. Standing crops are in good condition. Prospects are favourable. The condition of agricultural stock is satisfactory although cattle disease still exists in some districts. Fodder, water and market supplies are sufficient. Prices are mostly stationary but in places show a tendency to fall.

Punjab.—The weather remained dry. Rain is wanted. The condition of irrigated wheat and other spring crops is average to good and that of unirrigated crops is poor in the south-east and generally average elsewhere. Sowings of extra spring crops and irrigation of sugarcane continue in some districts. Reaping of rapeseed, gram and barley is in progress in the south-east. The expected yield is normal on irrigated and below normal on unirrigated areas. Cattle are healthy. Water and green fodder are sufficient. Stocks of fodder and water are sufficient. Stocks of food grains are generally insufficient. Prices are generally stationary and above scarcity rates. Price of wheat:—Ferozepore, Lahore, Rawalpindi and Lyallpur 4 and Ambala 4¼ seers per rupee.

Punjab States.—Rainfall nil. Crops are suffering for want of rain in Bahawalpur. Damage by winds is reported from Faridkot. Insects damaged the gram crop in parts of Jind. Fodder is insufficient in Chamba and parts of Sirmur and Jind. Cattle disease is reported from Chamba. Prices are high in Bilaspur and Sirmur, falling in Mandi and Faridkot except for wheat in Faridkot. The lowest price was:—rice 4 seers in Mandi and the highest price was:—gram 6·8, barley 5·6 and maize 5·14 per maund. The highest price of wheat was 9·10 per maund in Faridkot.

North-West Frontier Province.—Rain again fell in parts of the Province. Pressing of sugarcane continues in one district. The outturn is good. The condition of standing crops is generally good, but the wheat crop in one district is beginning to wither from excessive moisture. Fodder and water are generally sufficient. Prices of food grains continue dangerously high. Wheat is selling in Peshawar at 4¼ seers and in Dera Ismail Khan at 3¾ seers per rupee.

Jammu.—No rain fell during the week. Fodder is sufficient. Prices are stationary.

Kashmir.—The week was generally dry and occasionally cloudy. Prices are stationary.

Baluchistan.—(Report for the week ending the 4th March 1922.)—More rain fell during the week and benefited spring crops which are doing well. High winds are reported to have damaged fruit trees in Loralai. Prices and economic conditions remained unaltered. 203 persons were employed on relief works on the Chagai district. Relief works have been recommended in the Quetta-Pisin district. Statistics, however, are not yet available. The general conditions continue to cause anxiety particularly in Loralai where people are clamouring for work. The state of livestock is good. Fodder is poor in Chaman and Pisin and sufficient elsewhere.

Rajputana.—The weather is clear with a moderate temperature. Slight damage to standing crops by high cold winds is reported from the Tonk, Shahpura, Dungarpur and Todgarh tehsils in the Merwara district. Irrigation of spring crops is in progress. Cattle disease is reported from Sarwar and the grain districts of the Kishangarh State, also from parts of Kotah and from villages of Tonk. Fodder is sufficient. Water is scanty in parts of Kotah and Tonk. Prices are falling in Marwar and Partabgarh, otherwise they are steady.

Central India.—Rainfall nil. Harvesting of autumn crops continues in Indore and Malwa. Harvesting of spring crops continues in Indore, Bhopal, Baghelkhand, Malwa and the Southern States. Land is being prepared for the next crops in the Southern States. The condition of standing crops is fair to good except in the Rampura-Bhanpura district of Indore and in the Basoda State. The probable outturn is fair to good except in the Rampura-Bhanpura district and in the Basoda State. The condition of agricultural stock is fair to good except for cattle disease in Mhow and in parts of Rewa, Jaso Jagir and Barwani. The condition of pasturage is fair to good. Prices are high. The condition of opium is fair in Indore and good in Malwa.

FORMATION OF THE CENTRAL HAJ COMMITTEE FOR THE PURPOSE OF RAISING FUNDS IN CONNECTION WITH THE REPATRIATION OF DESTITUTE PILGRIMS FROM THE HEDJAZ.

COMMUNIQUÉ.

A meeting was held on the 18th February 1922 at the Legislative Assembly buildings, Delhi, of Muslim Members of the Council of State and the Legislative Assembly. The Hon'ble Mian Sir Muhammad Shafi, who presided, explained the situation regarding the repatriation of pilgrims from the Hedjaz. The Government of India had, it was explained, started a fund, called the Jeddah Repatriation Fund, which however has at present realised only about Rs. 8,000, though other promises have been made. In 1921 nearly half the pilgrims, who embarked at Bombay and Karachi for Jeddah, travelled with single tickets and many at the conclusion of the Haj returned to Jeddah in a destitute condition. About 500 had to be re-embarked for Bombay and Karachi at the expense of Government. Government, in the hope that the Repatriation Fund would by the end of the year have become substantial, had obtained the approval of the Legislative Assembly to a grant of only Rs. 10,000 for purposes of repatriation. It was necessary, however, in view of the large number of destitute pilgrims, to place before the Standing Finance Committee a further demand for Rs. 30,000.

After considerable discussion it was ascertained that, while a number of those present were in favour of compulsory return tickets as the ideal arrangement, the unanimous feeling was that it would be inexpedient at the present time to introduce any such system, since this action on the part of Government was likely to be misunderstood. It was therefore unanimously decided on the motion of Haji Wajih-ud-Din, M.L.A., of Meerut, that a committee should be formed for the purpose of raising a fund for this object. It was hoped that, whatever amount might be raised, Government would lay before the Legislative Assembly a demand for a similar amount up to a certain limit. All the members present were desirous of serving on the Committee, which was accordingly formed with Haji Wajih-ud-Din and the Hon'ble Khan Bahadur A. K. G. Ahmedthamby Maricair of Madras as Honorary Secretaries. The Committee will issue an appeal at the earliest possible opportunity.

The Committee will be known as the "Central Haj Committee of India." Contributions should be sent to the Central Haj Fund at the Imperial Bank of India, Delhi. The Chairman said that, if the Fund made good progress, the amount standing at the credit of the Jeddah Repatriation Fund would probably be amalgamated with it. Advice of any contributions made direct to the Bank should be sent to Haji Wajih-ud-Din, M.L.A., Meerut.

The proceedings ended with a vote of thanks to the chair and the members expressed their desire that the Hon'ble Mian Sir Muhammad Shafi should be President of the Central Haj Committee.
